SENATORS TURN DOWN REQUEST FOR ARMS POOL

Refuse to Provide 1,347 Millions.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12.—A special appropriation of 1,347 million dollars for an ordnance reserve pool, requested by the war department for use if "we move into armed conflict," was rejected unanimously today by the senate appropriations committee.

With the special ordnance item eliminated, the committee reported the first supplemental armaments bill of the new fiscal year, aggregating 6,865 million dollars, of which 1,000 million is in contractual authority for the United States maritime commission's ship building program.

The senate committee made miscellaneous additions aggregating 112 million dollars to the 8,100 million dollar bill passed by the house, and the net reduction was 1,234 million dollars.

Total Tops 50,000 Million.

The bill as reported still brings the total of appropriations and authorizations in the preparedness program, including the 7,000 million dollar British aid appropriation, to more than 50,000 million dollars.

Members of the senate appropriations committee nevertheless attributed great significance to their elimination of the 1,347 million dollar ordnance item. It was the first time since the outbreak of the European war that an appropriations committee in congress cut an appropriation requested by the war or the navy department.

Members of the committee said the special ordnance item could be justified only on the ground the administration is preparing to enter the European war and send a vast expeditionary force overseas. They said this was the unmistakable implication of testimony by Robert P. Patterson, undersecretary of war.

A "Departure," Committee Told.

Patterson told the committee the 1,347 million dollar item was "in a measure a departure." He said the request was put in because "those items will clearly be necessary in greatly increased quantities if we move into armed conflict."

He said some of the material required for mechanized warfare required a long time to manufacture.

Patterson and other war department officials testified that even without the 1,347 million dollar special ordnance item the bill included funds to complete the "critical" equipment necessary for a force of 3 million men. Equipment not commercially manufactured, such as guns, tanks, and ammunition, is classed as "critical."

War department representatives testified funds made available by the bill would complete the so-called essential equipment, including commercially manufactured items, for a force of 1,727,000 men. The army soon will be increased to this strength.

Equipment Funds Included.

The bill also includes funds for equipment to increase the tactical strength of the air forces from 54 to 83 groups. Groups vary in size according to the type of planes in them, but a fighter group has four squadrons of 16 planes each.

Undersecretary Patterson indicated before the senate committee that the special ordnance reserve fund contemplated the production of 4,600 medium tanks and 1,500 light tanks. Maj. Gen. C. C. Wesson, chief of the ordnance bureau, testified that the appropriation also called for the production of 1,000 4.7 inch anti-aircraft guns.

This was the first official revelation that the army finally has adopted the British 4.7 inch anti-aircraft gun.

John D. Biggers of the Office of Production Management testified that the 4.7 anti-aircraft gun "has not even reached the contractor."

Russia Grants Amnesty to All Polish Prisoners

MOSCOW, Aug. 13 [Wednesday] (AP).—Russia announced today that all Polish prisoners of the soviets had been granted amnesty. This followed an agreement reached with the Polish government-in-exile whereby released Polish soldiers would fight against Germany.

NAZIS CHECKED ALL ALONG LINE, MOSCOW CLAIMS

Moscow indicated this morning that the Russian army had put a check to the third German offensive from the northern lakes to the Ukraine. A communique stated there was nothing important to report from the front. However, the Russians claimed annihilation of the 68th German infantry division with 7,500 casualties in a battle over a railway station.

German bombers attempting to raid Moscow last night were dispersed before they could reach the city, it was stated.

German troops have stormed forward to the Black sea, Berlin claimed yesterday, and have hemmed in large Russian forces in the Odessa area. The gains, it was declared, virtually make the Ukraine untenable by the Red army. Routes of escape by land were said to be closed and Russia was reported trying to remove troops on Black sea vessels. Six transports were sunk off Odessa, Berlin claimed. Rail traffic in southern Ukraine has been paralyzed, it added.

VACATION TRIPS "SUPERFLUOUS"—SO SAY GERMANS!

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 12.—The Germans again are being exhorted to refrain from "superfluous vacation trips."

Altho the season is at its height, the German tourist head warned vacationists today that, in all probability, neither bed nor board would be available in numerous German summer resorts, since they already are "completely filled up."

Overcrowded conditions in German summer resorts are due, directly and indirectly, to the war. First, popular Baltic and North sea resorts are barred to civilians for military reasons. Second, many thousands of Germans from bomb menaced areas in northern and western Germany, including large numbers of school children, have flocked to resorts in the south and east, especially Bavaria and Austria. Third, wounded German soldiers are sent to these "havens of peace and quiet" to recuperate.

Senator's Age No Barrier to Evalyn's Love

Miss Evalyn Walsh McLean, 20 years old, heiress to one of the great American fortunes, told a TRIBUNE reporter by long distance telephone yesterday that the 37 years' difference between her own age and that of Senator Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.], to whom she is engaged to be married, "doesn't mean a thing" to them.

Miss McLean is the only daughter of socially prominent Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean of Washington, D. C., owner of the famous Hope diamond and heiress to the millions of her father, Thomas Walsh, a Colorado mine owner. Mrs. Walsh, who is known for her elaborate entertainments in the national capital, announced her daughter's engagement on Monday.

She Prefers Older Men.

"I prefer older men," Miss McLean said at the summer resort colony of Stockbridge, Mass. "I know and like many younger men, but I just have a general liking for the older ones. I've really never given any thought to the difference in our ages."

Miss McLean said she first met Senator Reynolds, who is 57 and has been married four times before, at a party in Washington more than a year ago.

"I don't think we were particularly attracted to each other on that occasion," she said in response to questions. "We met later at numerous other parties. I can't recall when we became romantically interested in each other.

Have the Same Interests.

"The senator and I have the same interests and the same likes. We both like to fly, to go horseback riding, and to play golf. We're not air pilots, but we like to ride in planes."

Miss McLean amiably declined to reveal when the senator proposed to her and under what circumstances.

"The wedding date is terribly indefinite," she said. "It won't be a big affair, just a simple wedding."

Miss McLean's father, Edward B. McLean, former newspaper owner and close friend of President Harding, died two weeks ago. His will cut off his widow with only dower rights and directed that $300,000 from his estate be given to Rose Davies, sister of Actress Marion Davies.

Reynolds first and fourth wives died. His second and third marriages ended in divorces.

NYE AND DR. O'BRIEN SPEAK AGAINST WAR IN THE ARENA TONIGHT

Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.] will speak tonight at an anti-war rally sponsored by the America First committee in the Arena, 400 East Erie street. His subject will be "Cheating."

The North Dakota noninterventionist will be joined on the speaker's platform by the Rev. John A. O'Brien, professor in the graduate school at the University of Notre Dame, who also is strongly against this country's meddling in Europe's squabbles. The speakers will be introduced by Gen. Robert E. Wood, acting national chairman of America First, who will preside at the meeting.

America First officials said that delegations from Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, and Wisconsin, as well as representatives from downstate chapters, are expected to attend. Doors of the Arena, which has a seating capacity of 8,000, will be opened at 7 p. m.

A program of organ music and community singing led by Carl Craven, America First song leader, will entertain earlycomers until 8 o'clock. Gen. Wood will introduce Dr. O'Brien at that time.

Parking lots in the immediate vicinity of the Arena will accommodate several thousand automobiles, America First officials said. A special detail of 50 police will be assigned to handle traffic near the hall.

2 Jap Tankers Get Permit for Cargoes of Diesel Oil

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 12 (AP).—Two Japanese tankers, after waiting in the harbor a week, received permission today to take aboard full cargoes of low grade Diesel oil for Japan. They are the Nittei Maru, given permission by the federal export control board to load 70,000 barrels, and the Otowosan Maru, which obtained a permit for a 75,000 barrel cargo.

Sweden Hears Reds Block Finns with Gasoline Shells

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Aug. 12 (AP).—The newspaper Social Demokraten reported today that Russians on the Finnish front fire shells loaded with gasoline. They burst 200 feet from the ground and ignite forests and an artillery barrage is then laid down to prevent the Finns from extinguishing the flames.

CALLS ON NATION TO BACK FIGHT AGAINST REDS

Darlan Given Full Military Powers.

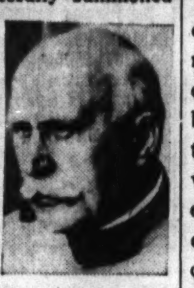
[Copyright: 1941: By the New York Times.]

New York, Aug. 12 [Special].—Advices reaching here from European centers tonight said a serious clash of authority between Gen. Maxime Weygand, commander for Africa, and Admiral Jean Darlan, Vichy vice premier, might be expected within 48 hours after Darlan's assumption of the post of minister of national defense, in which the "protection" of all naval and air bases of the French empire is completely under his personal direction. Other reports told of the arrival in Marseilles of a large contingent of blond, strapping, square shouldered "tourists," whose orderly procession toward the port might have deceived some into believing that a military parade was being observed.

VICHY, France, Aug. 12.—Marshal Philippe Petain fatefully summoned France to collaborate willingly with Germany tonight, gravely calling upon the nation to share with her conqueror in recasting the map of the world, and threatening to smash French opponents of the new order by "decimating their leaders." He mentioned particularly freemasons and politicians "thirsty for a comeback."



Philippe Petain.

The 85 year old chief of state announced his momentous decision in a radio address in which he frankly admitted to his uneasy countrymen that his own program for the regeneration of France had not succeeded and that French democracy was dead—in fact, never had lived in the American pattern.

Joins Fight Against Reds.

He aligned his government morally and squarely behind Germany in her fight against Russia, in what Petain called "gigantic tasks in developments to the east [he strongly accented the phrase] in defense of a civilization and which can change the map of the world."

What course the collaboration will take was not stated. The German controled press of Paris has been clamoring for weeks, however, for joint German-French defense of Dakar and other French African possessions.

Collaboration, Petain observed, "is a long term labor and has not yet been able to bear all its fruit."

To implement his decision, the old World war hero of Verdun, who came out of virtual retirement in France's

This Deluded Land
(An Editorial)

Presently Mr. Marriner Eccles of the federal reserve board will be telling the householder how much he will have to pay down on any appliance he wants to buy and how quickly he will have to pay the balance. Mr. Roosevelt has made use of his own self-proclaimed unlimited national emergency and of the trading with the enemy act, a war measure of 1917 never repealed, to put control of instalment buying in the hands of Mr. Eccles and his board. The commissar thus steps between the American citizen who has something to sell and the citizen who wants to buy it. Terms which might be satisfactory to them will not be sufficient in this new American way of life. They must be approved by the federal reserve board.

Nothing in Mr. Roosevelt's edict is to touch the instalment paying for houses as arranged by the Federal Housing authority. Altho the new edict is to check buying, to accumulate a large, unsatisfied demand for consumer goods for later uses, and to lay a restraining hand on prices, there is to be no restriction on the easy borrowing for instalment buying of homes financed by government guarantee. There is to be no accumulation of a backlog in the building industry. And altho Mr. Eccles has these powers conferred on him by Mr. Roosevelt to prevent inflation, so it is said, Mr. Roosevelt will not surrender his power to devaluate the dollar or to print paper money, both inflationary possibilities.

Presently, if you want a used car, you will ask Leon Henderson, the price administrator and civilian supplier, how much you can pay for it. Mr. Henderson says this will be a large job and a tough one, but he thinks he can attend to it. He is saying how many new cars there are to be built and he is around putting price tags on one commodity after another. Mr. Roosevelt gave him the authority to do that, having given himself, under his proclamation of unlimited national emergency, the authority to give it.

An edict stopped the processing of silk, and the women are wondering what their new stockings will be like. Mr. Ickes' gasoline ukase in the east, limiting the hours of sale, was a flop and he is expected to issue another, rationing the automobile owner. He will tell you that you don't get 10 gallons, you get five. The commissars also are approaching the use of electricity and of fuel. You are to set the thermostat at 65 degrees and not exceed that heat. Mr. Wickard of the agricultural department has suggested that the American people quit eating cheese.

The priorities and the allocations of material have produced a confusion in American industry which leaves big and little business men staring at a future in which they can see only governmental control and in which many of them see ruin. These things have all been in the view of the perceptive eye for years. The approach to them began when the world was at peace for the most part and when there could be no pretenses of national emergency. The only excuse then was the depression, nourished as the best friend of the collectivists who were trying to gain control of American life. They could see that they would fail unless they got a great emergency.

The war abroad revived their hopes. If war conditions could be brought here, their position would be strengthened and their program could be presented as imperative. It was a favorite reflection of some of these people—and they gave it voice—that only in the requirements of a great war could the country be brought to sacrifice itself to the social and economic and political objectives of the program for a communistic state, and most of these people are now at work in the war program which has entered American life in the manner observable at every point.

Step by step we have gone further than we dreamed possible toward government by edict, proclamation, executive order, and administrative regulation. This autocratic state is already in full flesh and the citizens are obeying it. Initiative has been taken out of their hands and their enterprises are passing under the will of the government official. Further evidences of this increase day by day. Liberties once thought safe are dissolving under attack.

The trouble with the American people has been that they were too little suspicious. They were incredulous. They had never before encountered in their government forces determined to delude them into surrendering their way of living. They couldn't believe their political system was in any danger. They couldn't imagine that any one would take away from them things they thought were inviolably theirs. They had always felt that their politicians could be made to obey when the occasion arose. They didn't think that their masters would arise and attain positions where they could not be touched. As it proves, the American people were ripe for just what has happened to them. They have lost control of their government and they can't do anything with it. They have lost control of congress. They can't stop government by edict. They simply submit.

When an order issues forth from Washington, however strange and extraordinary it may be, the people find themselves obeying it, regardless of the violence it does their system of government and regardless of the injury it does them. The imaginary war which assails them is thrown at them to smother their rebellious instincts and they have become bewildered and pliable.

When they voted to destroy the limitation of tenure in the White House they voted the probability of their own destruction. They didn't know the tenant in the White House when they gave him title to the premises and dominion over them.

HORSES COMING BACK; REPLACE TRUCK IN LOOP

The horses did it yesterday—replaced the automobile. Two sturdy Belgian mares, drawing a wagon with automobile brakes, took over the route of one of the Keeshin Motor Express trucks.

J. L. Keeshin, president of the corporation, said that two horse drawn wagons will be used for the present in the loop and near north side, where trucks can't travel much faster than horses. Ultimately he plans to replace trucks with 15 or 20 wagons.

"Tires are going up," he explained. "Truck repairs are getting more costly and it's becoming difficult to get parts. Gasoline is expected to rise. But there's plenty of oats. We thought we could economize with horses. If they're successful, we will send several teams to New York, where the gasoline shortage is becoming troublesome."

HOUSE PASSES BILL TO EXTEND TERM, 203-202

Members in Stormy 11 Hour Session.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12.—The house by a one vote margin tonight adopted a resolution declaring that the national interest is imperiled and authorizing President Roosevelt to extend for 18 months the terms of service of draftees, National Guardsmen, reservists, retired personnel of the army and regular army enlisted men.

The vote on the breath-taking final roll call was 203 to 202. For several moments, goggle-eyed spectators in the packed galleries saw the administration trembling on the brink of defeat for the first time since the outbreak of the European war on an issue involving foreign policy.

It was an amazing finish to a hectic, at times uproarious session, made all the more surprising because the huge Democratic majority had held an iron clad control all day and succeeded near the close of the session in beating down an opposition motion to recommit the measure by a vote of 215 to 190.

21 Republicans Join Majority.

Twenty-one Republicans joined with 182 Democrats to provide the one-vote majority of 203. Voting against the measure were 65 Democrats, 133 Republicans, 3 Progressives, and one American Labor party member, a total of 202.

The middle west went heavily against the resolution. The states of Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Minnesota gave only 12 votes to the legislation and registered 64 against. The Illinois vote was 7 for to 18 against.

The measure is substantially the same as that adopted by the senate last week by a vote of 45 to 30, which was also the smallest margin of victory in that chamber on any test of strength involving foreign policy since 1939.

Under its terms, draftees and National Guardsmen must serve a total of 30 months, a year and a half beyond the 12 months required under the original conscription bill and the National Guard mobilization bill passed last year.

900,000 Limit Lifted.

It also lifts the existing limitation of 900,000 draftees who can be in training at any one time and provides for $10 extra pay per month for time served over 12 months in the cases of draftees, Guardsmen, reservists, and retired army men and over three years in the case of regular enlisted men.

The bill now goes to a conference committee of members of the house and senate for adjustment of minor differences. Afterward it will be returned to both houses for approval in the form in which it will be sent on to the White House. Administration leaders said they expect to have it ready for Mr. Roosevelt's signature before the end of the week.

Unlimited Plan Abandoned.

Up to today the house had been considering a bill entirely different from that as passed by the senate. It followed the original war department request placing no limit on the length of time draftees could be retained.

Last evening, however, the administration retreated before the onslaughts of the opposition and, attempting to garner enough votes from doubtful members to secure favorable action, agreed upon the 18 month provision which was introduced earlier today and accepted by voice vote.

Lifting the 900,000 restriction on the number of draftees in the ranks at one time was approved despite warnings that empowering the high command to raise an army of unlimited strength would be another step toward all out participation in another shooting war on foreign soil. An amendment which would have kept the restriction was defeated in a teller vote, 134 to 95.

Passage of the bill marked the end of one of the bitterest legislative controversies in recent years. The finish came finally after an 11 hour session amid bedlam and confusion.

Pounds Vainly for Order.

ARMY SMASHES TO BLACK SEA, BERLIN CLAIMS

'Hems In' Large Russian Forces Near Odessa.

BERLIN, Aug. 12 (AP).—German troops stormed forward to the shores of the Black sea today, hemming in large Russian forces in the Odessa area and making the Red army's position in the Ukraine virtually untenable, German military sources declared tonight.

They did not disclose where the sea was reached, but German, Italian, and Slovak forces were reported earlier to be moving down both banks of the Bug river, and it appeared they had followed that stream southward toward Nikolaev, port on the Bug estuary 70 miles northeast of Odessa.

Since German and Rumanian troops have stood for weeks on the Dniester river south and west of Odessa, the drive down the Bug has practically closed all land escape for the Russians at both Odessa and Ochakov, 40 miles east of Odessa, it was said.

Reds Try to Escape by Sea.

The Russians were described as trying to withdraw what troops they could by sea, and DNB, German official news bureau, said six Russian transports had been sunk by bombers off Odessa.

Other Russian forces were said to be still "sitting tight" in a small area to the eastward in the big bend of the Dnieper river, which swings southeastward from Kiev and then cuts back southwest to empty into the Black sea.

The broad-flowing Dnieper itself was portrayed as under control of German weapons below Kiev, making Russian traffic along it virtually impossible. DNB said German gunfire sank three gun boats in the lower Dnieper on Sunday and Monday.

Rail Traffic "Paralyzed."

In addition, military sources said German forces held control of the thin network of railroads in the southern Ukraine, paralyzing all traffic and practically dissipating Russian chances of withdrawing or of bringing of reinforcements.

Over all the Ukraine the German air force ranged. It was credited by DNB with destroying 108 soviet vehicles and downing 27 soviet planes this morning.

Military sources added that generals of the Russian 12th and 13th armies had been captured. [The commanding general of the 12th army was claimed as a prisoner last week in the first big German advance in the Ukraine.]

Last Elite Regiment "Crushed."

Farther to the north there was less detailed news, but DNB said that at Vyazma, east of Smolensk and only 130 miles west of Moscow, the Germans "wiped out what evidently was the last remnant of soviet elite regiments." Then, it said, a German infantry battalion continued to advance.

German infantry also laid claim to several soviet artillery positions east of Lake Peipus in a storm assault thru swamps and forests.

Besides reporting another night air raid on Moscow, the German high command confined itself to a statement that operations all along the front are "continuing favorably."

Political absorption of conquered territory is being pushed. A DNB dispatch from Nerakau, former Polish Galicia, said that district had been placed under the civil administration of Dr. Hans Frank, German executive in the general government area of former Poland.

Two Views of Russian War Front

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

This map, published yesterday by the German high command in Berlin and transmitted to America by radio, was said in Germany to represent the extent of the progress of the campaign in Russia. Broken line (1) indicates German-Russian border of 1914. Broken line (2) represents the front six weeks after the start of the spring offensive in 1915. Solid line (3) represents the front at the start of armistice negotiations in 1917. Spellings are in German. Indistinct place names are caused by transmission difficulties.

FINNS' PRISONERS GO OUT AND BRING IN MORE RUSSIANS

Few Require Guards, Writer Finds.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ON THE NORTH LAKE LADOGA FRONT IN RUSSIA, Aug. 12.—Finland's army has found it is not necessary to guard most of the Russian soldiers captured on this front.

Eight Russians seized yesterday were given scythes today and ordered to cut hay in a field bordering a forest. They returned tonight with five other Russians who asked for similar jobs. The crops on the collectivized farms are being harvested by prisoners without guards.

The monotonous Finnish army fare of pea soup with a small slice of pork, with soup made of corned beef, potatoes and greens for a change, is praised by the Russians with the enthusiasm an American would display in describing a Thanksgiving dinner. The captives receive the same food as the Finnish soldiers.

Prisoners continue to arrive at all hours. Some are deserters and others have been lost for days in the forest. After being fed they are given a Finnish steam bath. The wounded are placed in hospitals and others are put to work.

A Finnish soldier arrived today with a striking group following him. The first nine men had their hands clasped on their heads, denoting they were prisoners, but behind them were five armed Russians. They dropped their guns at command and politely asked if they could become prisoners! The soldier said the five joined his prisoners in the forest, but did not understand his order to put down their arms. He calmly turned his back and they followed him peacefully.

There are many strange stories. A 14 year old messenger was halted by three armed Russians on a forest road. He drew a knife, whereupon the Russians laughed, laid down their arms, and motioned to him to bring them in.

NAZIS CHECKED ALL ALONG LINE, MOSCOW CLAIMS

Says Front Is Calm from North to Ukraine.

MOSCOW, Aug. 13 [Wednesday] (AP).—Comparative calm descended on the eastern front today, indicating that Russian resistance had put a check to the third German offensive from the northern lakes to the fields of the Ukraine.

The early morning soviet communique announced significantly that there was nothing important to report from the front. The Red air force continued action over land troops locked along the 1,800 mile battle lines. It was the first time a Russian communique had failed to mention the areas in which fighting took place.

Claim Division Annihilated.

The 68th German infantry division has been annihilated after a long battle in which 7,500 Nazis were killed or wounded, the Russians declared. Destruction of the division came after another German division had been routed in a battle for an undisclosed railway station.

The Germans held the station, the official soviet account said, with an SS [Black Shirt] division, plus two regiments of a "Viking" division supported by tanks and artillery.

These forces were routed and the 68th destroyed when it tried to retake the station.

Meanwhile Moscow was the object of the 17th attack by German air raiders, but an official announcement said all were turned back before reaching the capital.

Four Torpedo Boats Destroyed.

The communique reported the destruction on Monday of four German torpedo boats and two transports by the Baltic fleet.

Russian flyers were said to have destroyed 41 planes while losing 34 in air fighting Sunday. The Germans lost two planes in a raid on Moscow Monday night, the communique said.

In the central sector west of Moscow, soviet war reports indicated, the Germans still were without gain, while to the north the Nazis were hammering to close the jaws of a giant vise they have set in motion toward Leningrad.

Communiques yesterday gave little information on the general situation, saying only that the Red army continued fighting in the areas of Kakisalmi, 75 miles north of Leningrad; Soltsi, 120 miles south of Leningrad; Smolensk, west of Moscow; Korosten, 80 miles northwest of Kiev, in the Ukraine, and Uman, 120 miles south of Kiev.

ASK CHICAGOANS TO LEND BOATS TO COAST GUARD

Chicago power boat owners were asked yesterday to lend 15 boats to the coast guard to strengthen the anti-sabotage patrol of Lake Michigan harbors on which defense idnustries are situated. Lieutenant Commander N. S. Fulford, district reserve director, said the boats will be kept for emergency, depending upon the wishes of their owners.

"We need power cruisers between 30 and 50 feet in length which are able to move at 10 knots or faster," Lieutenant Commander Fulford said. "They should provide living accommodations for four men. The boats will be maintained in first class condition by the coast guard, and any possible damage to them will be paid for by the government."

Owners of the boats will receive no compensation for their use.

THE STORIES OF 7 CITIES ENGULFED BY NAZI-RED WAR

Invaders Are Not News to Russian Centers.

Since the vast German offensive against Russia began taking shape, war bulletins from the front have carried the names of Leningrad, Smolensk, Kiev, Bel Tserkov, Odessa, Nikoleav, and Uman almost daily. Here are important facts concerning these key points:

LENINGRAD—This second largest city in Russia [population 3,191,304] was built in 1703 by Peter the Great on a series of piles over the marshes of the Neva river at the head of the Gulf of Finland. Originally called St. Petersburg, it was renamed for the bolshevik leader, Lenin, after the 1917 revolution. An important seaport [Russia's only Baltic outlet] and shipbuilding center, it has a damp and severe climate. Among its many industries are the manufacture of steel, tractors, turbines, engines, machinery for agriculture, textiles, paper, and alcoholic beverages.

Key to Invasion Route.

SMOLENSK.—For centuries this fortress city has commanded the classical invasion path to Moscow, a corridor 45 miles wide between the Dvina and Dnieper rivers. The city had a population of 156,677. Its first fortress was built during the reign of Boris Godunov [1598-1605]. Napoleon demolished most of the city in a two day battle in 1812 during his march on Moscow. Smolensk is the junction of five railroad lines. Its industries include manufacture of textile machinery, saw milling, and brewing.

KIEV.—Russia's third largest city [population, 846,293, pronounced Key-eff] lies in the heart of the rich Ukraine, on the northern border of the black earth zone. It is located on a strategic trade route. It was the first home of the Greek Orthodox church in Russia and is noted for its beautiful churches and other early architecture. From early times it has been sacked by armies of Turks, Tatars, Poles, Lithuanians, Ukrainians, and Cossacks. During the civil war of 1917-'20 it changed hands 20 times. It has many industries, including smelters, tobacco factories, flourmills, sugar refineries, distilleries, leather factories, and glass plants.

Town Often Ravaged.

BEL TSERKOV [Belaya Tserkov.]—Lying about 60 miles southwest of Kiev, this provincial town of about 42,000 [pronounced Byé-la-ya Tsér-koff] has often been ravaged by marauding armies. It has figured in Lithuanian, Muscovite, Turkish, and Polish wars since the 16th century. In 1919 it was the scene of a brutal pogrom against its Jewish community by Simon Petlyura, leader of Ukrainian forces fighting the Red armies.

UMAN—Once part of the vast empire of Count Potocki of Poland, Uman [pronounced oo-mahn-y] is 120 miles southwest of Kiev, on the slope of a hill in a rolling plateau region particularly suited for cavalry operations. Half of its population of 44,000 is Jewish. Founded in the early 17th century as a fortress against raiding Tatars, its inhabitants were twice massacred, almost to the man, during the many Ukrainian wars.

Odessa's Past Bloody.

ODESSA—Like most of the other Ukrainian cities, it has a bloody history, dating almost from the time of its first colonization by Greeks. This Black sea port has five harbors. It is strategically situated between the estuaries of the Dnieper and Dniester rivers. Its most important industries are salt production, munitions, an aviation factory, glass, metals, machinery, tin, brick, and superphosphates. Its population is 604,223.

NIKOLAEV.—Important Black sea port, with large export trade in grain and other commodities, Nikolaev [population 167,108, pronounced neh-ko-lee-ev] was founded in 1790 during the reign of Catherine II. The city lies at the confluence of the Ingul and Bug rivers. Its approaches are said to be strongly fortified. The city contains a great naval shipyard and naval school. Industrial enterprises include the manufacture of machinery, plows, nails, glass, footwear, macaroni, tobacco, and alcoholic drinks.

Wins Custody

Mrs. Eula Ware in county building trying to persuade son, who was in custody of father, to return to Georgia with her.

The tears of his stepmother and his two stepsisters failed yesterday to prevent 5 year old Robert Ware from being sent home to Georgia with his mother. Judge Oscar F. Nelson gave custody of the child to Mrs. Eula Ware, 23, of Dalton, Ga., on habeas corpus proceedings she had brought against her former husband, George, 24, of 3411 North Kenton avenue.

Ware divorced the boy's mother last Oct. 7 in Georgia and was granted custody of Robert, with the provision that the child should remain in the care of his maternal grandmother in Dalton. On July 10, however, Ware obtained court permission there to bring Robert to Chicago for three months. The mother followed them here.

Ware's present wife, Florence, 29, and her children by a previous marriage, Phyllis, 10, and Joan, 9, protested Judge Nelson's order. The judge blamed Ware for refusing to let his former wife see the boy after she arrived here, and stated that Ware's present wife was apparently so attached to the boy that she would never permit his return to Georgia unless it was ordered.

FLIES A BOMBER 'BELOW GROUND' TO ESCAPE NAZIS

LONDON, Aug. 12 (AP).—A pilot told tonight how he dived his bomber below ground—into a stone quarry—to escape German anti-aircraft fire in the hedge-hopping raid on power-plants near Cologne today.

Coming out of the quarry he bent a propeller on a telegraph post, caught a wing tip in a tree, glazed a church steeple, and reached home to land with a disabled undercarriage.

Even going over the Low Countries he flew so low he could see what people on the streets were doing, he said.

TURKEY ASSURED RUSSIAN-BRITISH AID IF ATTACKED

Nip Iran 'Plot'–Reds

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—The Moscow radio reported tonight a plot had been discovered in Iran [Persia] in which an attempt would have been made to overthrow the government on Aug. 22. Many foreigners and Iranian army officers have been arrested, said the broadcast heard here. The British have charged that German fifth columnists were in Iran attempting to stir up a revolt.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ANKARA, Turkey, Aug. 12.—The British and Russian governments have formally assured the Turkish government that they have no aggressive intentions against the Dardanelles, but on the contrary are prepared to offer all support and assistance if Turkey should be attacked by a third power, it was announced here today.

The assurances were given in separate notes to Turkish Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu on Sunday by British Ambassador Sir H. M. Knatchbull-Hugessen and Soviet Ambassador Vinogradov.

It is understood that the restatement of the attitude of the allies toward Turkey was made as a result of what is alleged to be German propaganda attempts to impair the relations of Russia and Britain with Turkey.

Action Pleases Turkey.

The Turkish government, according to diplomatic circles, expressed satisfaction with the British-soviet action, regarding it as an important development in relations with third powers.

Meanwhile, it was reported here that the German firm Telefunken, which constructed a broadcasting station at Teheran, is now building radio stations at seven other Iranian towns.

The report, from usually reliable sources seems to bear out previous information that most of the several thousand Germans who have flocked to Iran since the war are electrical, communications, and transportation experts.

The British are asking the Iranians to expel 80 per cent of them.

When Murmansk, Russia's White sea port, freezes up, and if Japan eventually blockades Vladivostok, Russia's Pacific port, the only route over which American help could reach Russia would be thru the Persian gulf. A railroad runs from the gulf nearly to the Russian border.

FRENCH CAST LOT WITH GERMANY, PETAIN TELLS AIM

Darlan Is Given Supreme Military Command.

last desperate republican days in 1940 to lead the new régime, designated Vice Premier Admiral Jean Darlan to take full control of the French military structure.

Darlan long has favored working with Germany.

Appeals to United States.

As Petain thus told the story which every foreign correspondent in Vichy knew and had been trying to get out to the world for weeks past, the marshal unexpectedly interrupted himself to appeal to the United States to understand, asserting that there was "no reason to fear a decline of French ideals."

Speaking in the strongest terms, with weighted words, Petain declared that the age-old quarrel with Germany must give way to a larger perspective which "by our activity can open up a reconciled continent."

Frankly, he stated, "that is the aim toward which we are heading."

The old marshal, who made the armistice with Germany in June, 1940, and then became chief of the new French state, opened his address in this fashion:

"Frenchmen! I have grave things to tell you!

"For the last several weeks I have felt an ill wind rising in many regions of France. Disquiet is overtaking minds; doubt is gaining control of spirits.

Raps "Intrigue" and Rumor.

"The authority of my government is made a subject of discussion; orders often being ill-executed. In an atmosphere of false rumors and intrigues, the forces of reconstruction are growing discouraged."

Then he swiftly made these points:

1. His government has not yet succeeded in carrying out the aims of the national revolution.

2. He has increased the influence of the anti-British Darlan, concentrating all military powers in the vice premier's hands despite the admission that the admisal has been misunderstood and not always given a fair chance by the French people.

3. It is necessary for France to collaborate with the Germans in making a new Europe.

4. The internal setup in France has been reorganized, virtually eliminating members of the senate and the chamber of deputies by suppressing their pay and suppressing all political activity.

5. All ministers and high functionaries of the state must swear personal allegiance to Petain.

Seeks "Stable Ties" with Italy.

With Italy, too, he mentioned in passing, "our desires are to escape from these provisional relations [the armistice], to create more stable ties without which the European order cannot be constructed."

But France's difficulties and troubled minds, he said, "do not have as their sole origin the vicissitudes of our foreign policy. They come especially from our slowness in building a new order or, more correctly, in imposing one. . . .

"The troops of the old régime are legion. I rank among them without exception all who place their personal interests ahead of the permanent interests of the state—freemasonry, political parties deprived of their clientèle but thirsty for a comeback, officials attached to an order of which they were the beneficiaries and masters—or those who have subordinated the interests of the fatherland to foreign ones.

"A long wait will be needed to overcome the resistance of all these opponents of the new order, but we must start in now to smash their undertakings by decimating their leaders."

The marshal hinted at the possibility of French prisoners being freed by Germany, declaring:

"As long as more than a million Frenchmen, comprising the young and vigorous elements of the nation and the best section of its elite, remain outside the country's activities it will be hard to build a new and lasting edifice. Their return will make it possible to fill the great gap from which we suffer."

Petain's appeal to the United States was couched in these terms:

"I should like to recall to the great American republic the reasons why it has no reason to fear a decline of French ideals.

"Certainly our parliamentary democracy is dead. But it never had but little in common with the democracy of the United States.

"As for the instinct of liberty, that lives always with us—proud and strong.

"The American press has often misjudged us. Let it now make an effort to understand the quality of our soul and the destiny of a nation whose soil has during the course of history been periodically ravaged, its youth decimated, its well-being troubled by the weakness of Europe, in whose reconstruction France intends today to participate."

Sharply critical of affairs inside France, of "indiscipline" and self-seeking, Petain obviously was striving to pull the French together behind his government's course.

Mentions Food Shortage.

Petain mentioned particularly the question of food supply, one of the sorest in France at the moment. Without referring by name to Food Minister Jean Achard, who was ousted, Petain said:

"I already have taken sanctions and struck at an entire system in the person of a single man: That of the national distribution centers which assured great commercial agents of exclusive and usurious control of all questions of food supply to the detriment of the producer and consumer."

Petain also announced that he had created a high tribunal to try to punish "those responsible for our disaster" and which is ordered to report to him before Oct. 15.

[Former Premiers Daladier and Reynaud, Gen. Gamelin and others have been in detention ever since the fall of France, the "war guilt trials" being always postponed.]

Abolishes Free Masonry.

Petain declared he was doubling the means of police activity to guarantee public order and was creating a group of 11 "commissars of public power" to check on ways and means to carry out government decrees.

The official journal announced a decree abolishing all secret societies, such as free masonry, which it was intimated had been carrying on underground activities against the state.

In the general government reshuffle, Admiral Darlan emerged with greater powers than any person or combination of persons in France excepting only Petain himself.

The concentration of powers in Darlan's hands followed week-end conferences by Petain, Darlan, War Minister Gen. Charles Huntziger, and Gen. Maxime Weygand, commander-in-chief for French Africa.

Dr. Serge Huard, secretary of state for family and health, replacing Jacques Chevalier, who resigned on account of his own health.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Walter Witt's cat, Adolf.

A year ago Walter Witt, 13 years old, 2925 Diversey avenue, found a hungry little kitten, whose black and white markings bore a strange resemblance to Adolf Hitler.

He named the kitten Adolf despite the fact that Fraulein Hitler would have been more appropriate. As Adolf grew her stubby mustache and the marking like a lock of hair over her right eye grew blacker. She also grew more belligerent, biting people's ankles whenever they annoyed her, killing Walter's pet baby chick and stealing food.

"She is a regular dictator and bosses all the other cats in the block," Walter declared. "She gets into so many scraps that she is going to need all of her nine lives."

FRANCE FASCIST POWER NOW, IN BRITISH OPINION

LONDON, Aug. 12.—France was regarded here today as a full-fledged Fascist power following Marshal Petain's announcement of "grave things." The first impression was that Vichy seeks to create a model dictatorship along Italian lines, and that in the process it will yield to every demand made by Germany.

Vice Premier Admiral Jean Darlan is regarded here as an out and out dictator whose powers exceed those of any Frenchman since Napoleon. He is destined to succeed Petain, according to the British, and will do everything in his power to edge France into complete coöperation with Adolf Hitler.

This means more concessions to Germany and the disposition of those grand prizes—the north African bases and the French fleet, in the British view.

THREATEN MOVES TO KEEP NAZIS OUT OF FRENCH ISLES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12.—The Vichy French government's pledge of full collaboration with Nazi Germany resulted today in strong congressional sentiment for the seizure of Martinique and other French western hemisphere possessions if necessary to prevent their occupation or control by Germany.

Among those intimating that such a move by the United States may become necessary as a result of the new French-German collaboration were Senator Tom Connally [D., Tex.], chairman of the foreign relations committee, and Senator Walter F. George [D., Ga.], ranking majority member and former chairman of the committee.

There were indications also that administration officials are considering the adherence of France to the Nazi cause as a basis for possible action of some kind by this government. In President Roosevelt's absence, Secretary of State Cordell Hull headed a war cabinet discussion of the French government's action, with Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox participating.

Noncommittal on Dakar.

Mr. Hull later asserted that this government is giving careful consideration to the Vichy announcement. It is too early, however, to comment on the future course of Franco-American relations, Mr. Hull said.

The secretary refused to say what this government might do if Germany should occupy Dakar, strategic outpost on the French West African coast. President Roosevelt intimated in a radio address last May 27 that the occupation of Dakar by Germany would constitute a threat to the safety of the western hemisphere and could not be tolerated by the United States. Administration extremists long have advocated an attempt to seize Dakar.

In congress today, however, there appeared to be little sentiment for any move by this country outside the western hemisphere.

[In addition to Martinique, the French possessions in the western hemisphere include the colony of St. Pierre and Miquelon, off the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and French Guiana, in South America.]

"The statement of Marshal Petain and the selection of Admiral Darlan as commander of all French naval and military forces are tragic in the extreme," said Senator Connally. "To French military collapse has now been added the collapse of her freedom and her economic life.

"A Plunge Into Tyranny."

"Vichy now embraces her former enemy and her recent conqueror. She plunges into totalitarianism and tyranny. If Vichy undertakes to deliver possession to Hitler of any of her territories in the western hemisphere, or allows him to establish bases in such territories, or threatens to do so, we should immediately seize such territories and hold them with armed force.

"In the World war Pershing, standing at the tomb of Lafayette, said, 'Lafayette, we are here!' Petain and Darlan, at the foot of Washington's statue, say: 'Gen. Washington, we have deserted.'"

Senator George said the French action "increases the probability that we may face the necessity of anticipating German occupation of French territory in the western hemisphere, particularly if there is any evidence that they intend to exercise any sort of joint control."

Wheeler Tells Stand.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], leader of the noninterventionists, said he would have no objection to the occupation by American forces of French possessions in the western hemisphere if such action should become necessary to prevent a Nazi move in this hemisphere.

"But this action by the French government must not be used as a pretext for war, or to go into Africa, which would mean war," said Senator Wheeler. He attributed to Great Britain and the Roosevelt administration responsibility for France's action.

"We have lectured France and refused to help feed her hungry people and we have been prevented from doing so by England," he said.

Reported Missing

LONDON, Aug. 12 (AP).—Wing Commander Douglas R. Bader, legless veteran of the battle of Britain who had been credited with shooting down 15 German planes, and Acting Flight Lieut. E. S. Lock, another ace credited with 30 victories, were reported missing today.

Bader, 30 years old, had won the distinguished service order and bar and distinguished flying cross with bar, an accomplishment achieved by only one other man in the service, A. G. Malan, a South African. He lost both legs in a 1931 plane crash.

Lock, 21, called "Sawnoff Lockie" because he was so short, also was a holder of the distinguished service order and distinguished flying cross with bar. He gained nine of his victories in one week last September and was decorated at Buckingham palace after undergoing 15 operations for burns suffered in battle.

ECUADOR CLAIMS PERU REOPENS BORDER FIGHTING

QUITO, Ecuador, Aug. 12 (AP).—An Ecuadorean communique said tonight Peruvian forces had captured and then abandoned the town of Zapotillo in a revival of border warfare with Ecuador.

Ecuadorean forces, it said, withdrew to Sabanilla in the face of the Peruvian assault in which planes, artillery, infantry, and cavalry took part.

The announcement said the town of Chito was under attack from July 28 to Aug. 8, but did not state the outcome.

Japan Gets Apology.

TOKIO, Aug. 12.—The government announced today that Ecuador had apologized for recent anti-Japanese incidents and had promised not to interefere with Japanese ships in Ecuadorean waters.

PUSH U. S. PLAN FOR NEW MOVES AGAINST JAPAN

3 Leaders of War Cabinet Hold Long Parley.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12.—With the conviction spreading that President Roosevelt is conferring somewhere with Prime Minister Churchill of Great Britain, the war cabinet continued today to press the diplomatic and economic war on two fronts.

Preparations went forward to crack down on Japan with further economic reprisals and possibly with the employment of American armed forces if the Japanese should invade Thailand.

These activities are in support of the British, who yesterday warned Japan invasion of Thailand would be regarded a menace to Singapore and Burma and would mean war.

3 Hold Long Conference.

The three leading members of the war cabinet—Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, and Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox—held a protracted conference but declined to reveal its purpose.

While preparations for dealing with eventualities in both the European and Asiatic theaters of war were being pushed, officials were careful to say that no actual moves will be made without the express approval of the President, who is not expected to return to Washington before the latter part of the week.

Administration officials professed ignorance of the whereabouts of the President, if he is not still aboard his yacht, the Potomac, cruising off the New England coast. Not since Saturday, however, has the navy department issued a bulletin reporting on the activities of the President and his party.

With the whereabouts of Prime Minister Churchill also still a mystery, it became the well nigh universal opinion on Capitol hill that the long rumored conference of the chiefs of state of the two English speaking powers is actually in progress, probably on a warship in the north Atlantic.

Secrecy Proves Boomerang.

One administration senator told a cloakroom audience he knew it to be a fact that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill were scheduled to meet on the high seas at about this time. Another administration senator telephoned the state department and was told that not even Secretary Hull knows whether such a meeting had been projected.

The secrecy surrounding the whereabouts of the President, and the undenied rumors of his meeting with the British prime minister, presumably on a greater degree of participation in the war by the United States, are creating an unfavorable impression among senators and congressmen, including many administration supporters.

Numerous Democrats whose devotion to the President is unquestioned are expressing misgivings privately that the public reaction is likely to be unfavorable to Mr. Roosevelt.

Jap Envoy Startled.

It transpired during the day that the hurried trip to Tokio of Kaname Wakasugi of the Japanese embassy, bearing to his government an alarming report of the attitude of the United States, is the result of some exceedingly blunt utterances by Mr. Welles to the Japanese ambassador, Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, a few days ago.

The admiral was so startled and impressed by Mr. Welles' words and manner that he lost no time in dispatching Wakasugi, his second in command, to Tokio with more information on the situation than he was willing to intrust to the cables.

When Minister Wakasugi told the Japanese press in an interview in Los Angeles that "the United States is prepared and determined to meet the worst eventualities" he was merely repeating, it appears, the substance of what Mr. Welles said to Admiral Nomura.

In other ways, also, Mr. Welles is said to have given the Japanese ambassador to understand that American naval and air forces will be used if necessary in coöperation with the British to resist further Japanese aggression in the south Pacific.

7 AMERICANS DIE AS BRITISH PLANE CRASH KILLS 22

Ferry Pilots Lost on Way Back to Canada.

LONDON, Aug. 12 (AP).—Seven American officer pilots and 15 British and Canadian officers were killed Sunday when a large transocean airplane crashed into a hillside just after leaving a British airport, it was announced today.

The plane was believed to have been heading back to Canada with crews to ferry American bombers to Britain. Eight victims were Canadians, six British, and one from Australia. By tonight 16 bodies had been recovered.

List of Americans Killed.

Capt. George T. Harris, Lawrence, Kas.

Capt. Watt M. King, Little Rock, Ark.

Capt. Hoyt R. Judy, Dallas, Tex.

Capt. James Wixen, Los Angeles.

Capt. J. J. Roulstone, Long Beach, Cal., and Flight Engineer E. G. Reeves, Roslyn Heights, N. Y.

[According to officials in Washington, D. C., all the Americans had enlisted in the British air force and were engaged in ferrying planes from Canada to England. It is believed they were on their way back to Canada after they had delivered a consignment of planes. None of them were American observers, Washington sources said.]

Flew on Chicago Plane Run.

Judy was a veteran of 1,500 flying hours and two years on the Braniff Air Lines' Dallas-Chicago run. A former navy flyer, he was 23 years old and married.

Reeves was 26, single, and a veteran of 4½ years' service as flight engineer of Transcontinental and Western Air. Roulstone was 27, single, a former employé of United Air Lines. He held the rating of trans-Atlantic ferry pilot. His nearest relative was given as Mrs. J. G. Kirk of Long Beach.

Duggan, 37, was married and had two sons. He volunteered in Canada two years ago. King was a former cotton duster and had flown since he was 13. He was married and had expected to quit the ferry service when his contract expired, next month.

Harris was 34 and married. He was assigned this year to the ferry service. Wixen was 28, a former TWA and American Air Lines pilot. He joined the RAF four months ago. Born in Russia, Wixen had liven as a boy in Newark, N. J.

Yankee Division to Hold Annual Picnic Sunday

The Yankee Division club, composed of Chicagoland veterans of the 26th, or Yankee, division of the AEF, will hold its annual picnic Sunday at Pulaski Woods West in the forest preserve. The division took part in every major offensive in which American troops fought in France, according to D. M. Hubbard, president of the club.

Willkie Buying 6th Farm; Total to Reach 1,445 Acres

Rushville, Ind., Aug. 12 (AP).—Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 Republican Presidential nominee, is buying another Rush county farm. Willkie, who owns five farms in the county, disclosed he was about to close a deal for an 80 acre place adjoining some of his other holdings, thus making him the owner of 1,445 acres.

Tells How War Taxes Boost Cost of Living in England

Geoffrey Crowther, editor of the London Economist, described British wartime taxes in a talk yesterday before the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations in the Palmer House.

To meet the record wartime budget of 16,828 million dollars, taxation in Great Britain has been driven to heights undreamed of even by government officials three years ago, the British editor declared.

The standard rate income tax of 50 per cent and the surtax on higher incomes leaves fewer than 100 persons in England with an annual income of $16,000 to $20,000, Crowther said. And the income tax is only the beginning, he added.

A Few Other Levies.

Crowther listed a few others:

1. Purchase taxes [sales tax in the United States] are 12 per cent on what the government terms necessary commodities, and 24 per cent on all other merchandise.

2. The license fee for a medium priced automobile is $150 a year.

3. The tax on gasoline is 25 cents a gallon.

4. The excess profits tax, applying only to company profits, is 100 per cent.

Despite the heavy taxes, the British people are saving 1,500 million dollars a month and contributing heavily to special war drives, Crowther told his audience. "Few Britons complain about the high taxes," he said. "They know it takes money to help win the war and they are determined to see it thru to victory."

Installment buying in England has ceased, Crowther said, not by government order but because there is nothing to buy. Stocks of automobiles, refrigerators, and radios diminished long ago, he declared, and will not be manufactured again until after the war.

"In fact," Crowther said, "Great Britain has almost reached the point where every essential commodity is rationed, and every non-essential commodity is unobtainable."

Crowther predicted that the British government would continue to supervise the distribution of food and clothing after the war.

"But that doesn't mean socialism," he continued. "Individual enterprise will be given a wider scope than ever before. It means that it is the government's duty to see that all the people receive the essential commodities for a decent life.

"The government must continue to use its coöperative organizing power to insure a more firm and just economic life."

Small Damage to Factories.

Damage to British factories by enemy planes is "unbelievably small," the British editor declared, but admitted that production was being crippled by a shortage of raw materials and time lost while the workers remained in air raid shelters or traveled from their homes to factories in the blackout.

During the last few months, he said, production has gone on during air raids, the workers retiring to shelters only when roof spotters give the signal that raiders are directly overhead.

BODY OF U. S. FLYER, LOST WITH TRANSPORT, FOUND ON SCOT COAST

LONDON, Aug. 12 (AP).—A body washed up on the Scottish coast was identified by means of a gold watch today as that of Kenneth Brown Collings, American war correspondent and aviator whose death in the sinking of a Canadian troop transport was announced on May 6.

Collings and 11 other American flyers en route to England to serve as bomber ferry pilots were among 122 persons listed as missing in the loss of the unidentified troop transport due to "enemy action."

Born in Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 22, 1897, he was a marine corps aviator in the World war, earning the rank of captain. He fought the Italians in Ethiopia in 1935. He was arrested by the Russians in December, 1939, while touring war-torn Poland for an American magazine. His home address was Rockville Center, N. Y.

SHEPHERD'S DOG FINDS VICTIMS OF PLANE CRASH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 12.—A shepherd's collie dog, THE TRIBUNE was informed tonight, first revealed the fate of the 22 persons killed when a trans-Atlantic plane crashed into a hillside in Britain Sunday. The collie brought to his master a shoe with a foot still inside it and his master clambered up the steep, barren hillside to the wreckage. Nearly 200 men, including holiday makers and service men on leave, were mobilized to search for the bodies. The tragedy was not discovered for 24 hours, altho it happened within two miles of a village.

British Order Reinforced Concrete Barges in Crisis

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 12.—To speed up cargo ship construction the British admiralty has ordered a large number of ferroconcrete [reinforced concrete] barges, each capable of carrying cargo up to 200 tons, it was announced today. The cost is said to be approximately the same as for a steel barge, but under favorable conditions a barge built of precast concrete slabs can be assembled and completed in about eight weeks.

HOUSE APPROVES EXTENDED DRAFT BY SINGLE VOTE

2½ Year Service Bill Wins by 203 to 202.

[R., Mo.], minority member of the foreign affairs committee and floor manager of the opposition, one of a score of embattled Republicans shouting to be heard.

Cries of steamroller tactics and foul play were being hurled about the chamber as members milled before the speaker's rostrum or exchanged bitter remarks and shook their fists across the rows of seats.

The final vote was first announced as 204 to 201 in favor of the bill. Representative Andrew J. Somers [D., N. Y.], jumped to his feet and announced he wanted to change his vote from aye to no. Rayburn thereupon announced the vote was 203 to 202.

"No Corrections."

Representative Short immediately demanded a recapitulation of the tally. Members listened silently as the names of members voting in the affirmative were read followed by the names of those who had voted against the bill.

"Any corrections?" asked Rayburn when the clerk had finished. No member spoke and Rayburn declared dramatically—"There are no corrections! The vote stands! The bill is passed!"

Amid the ensuing uproar, Rayburn insisted later, he said, that "without objection, a motion to reconsider the vote is laid on the table." Short was on his feet shouting for recognition to make such a motion which would have called for still another roll call.

When Short finally made the motion Rayburn informed him that the motion had already been tabled "without objection." Short and other Republicans roared protests. No one had heard the speaker's announcement, they said. Rayburn, crimson of face, became indignant.

"There's no use getting excited about this," remarked Representative Earl C. Michener [R., Mich.].

It "Indicates Something."

"Does the gentleman from Michigan indicate that the chair is excited?" demanded Rayburn.

"The speed with which the motion was tabled and the refusal to recognize the gentleman from Missouri [Short] indicates something," said Michener.

Rayburn pounded his gavel and refused to listen further to Republican objections. A few moments later, the bill was on its way to conference with the senate.

G. O. P. Fights Stubbornly.

Earlier in the session the stubborn resistance of Republicans and non-interventionist Democrats, and their unflagging efforts to amend the bill or kill it were unavailing in the face of the huge Democratic majority.

Administration leaders paraded out their strength early this morning and kept it in the chamber thruout the day, releasing the members a few at a time only to eat. The galleries were packed early and remained so thruout the session. Altho the spectators engaged in few demonstrations it was plain from their attempts at applause that their sympathies were with Republican leaders who kept up an unremitting fight to stem the tide as the day wore on.

News that Pro-Nazi Admiral Darlan had been placed in charge of France's armed forces was seized upon by administration supporters to strengthen their arguments that the United States was "imperiled."

An amendment to limit the extension of terms for draftees to six months was defeated by a vote of 97 to 61. Another attempt to change the bill to extend only the terms of noncommissioned officers was shouted down by Democratic voices.

An administration amendment making mandatory the discharge of men whose retention would result in an undue hardship on their dependents or business interests was passed by a voice vote. The bill originally merely stated that the secretary of war may release such men if their departure would not conflict with the interests of "national defense."

Steamroller Stalled.

Majority steamroller tactics late in the session almost resulted in a revolt from the Republican side. Representative Andrew J. May [D., Ky.], chairman of the military affairs committee, attempted to force a rule ending all discussion in less than two hours with several sections of the bill remaining to be read.

The G. O. P. leaders threatened to force a teller vote on every question coming before the house while it sat as a committee and a roll call on every amendment. It was estimated that the minority members thereby would be able to keep the chamber in session at least until dawn tomorrow. May quickly withdrew his motion to gag his opponents and peace was restored.

An amendment to strike out the section declaring the national interest is imperiled and rewriting it in the form of an amendment to the conscription act to permit draftees to volunteer for further service after completing their year of training was defeated 185 to 146.

"You talk a lot about the patriotism of our men and their willingness to serve the country if there is national peril," remarked Representative Charles Elston [R., O.] after this action, "but you won't trust them to volunteer. You want to shanghai them."

Another amendment which would have exempted draftees from the measure entirely while extending the terms of National Guardsmen, reservists, retired army men and regular enlisted men for another year was beaten down by a vote of 176 to 117.

SIX MIDWEST STATES VOTE 5 TO 1 AGAINST EXTENDING DRAFT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12.—The six centrally located states surrounding Chicago voted by better than a 5 to 1 majority tonight against the bill extending the service of conscripted men by an additional 18 months. Sixty-four representatives from Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Minnesota, Iowa, and Michigan voted against the proposal, while only 12 favored it. Seven were paired or not present.

The count in Illinois was 7 for extending the draft service, 18 against, 2 paired; in Wisconsin it was 1 for, 8 against; Indiana, 1 for, 11 against; Iowa, none for, 8 against, 1 not voting; Michigan, 2 for, 14 against, 1 paired; Minnesota, 1 for, 5 against, 3 not voting or paired. The lineup:

STORM SMASHES PERSHING STATUE IN FRENCH SHRINE

VERSAILLES, France, Aug. 11 [Delayed] (AP).—The statue of Gen. John J. Pershing in Lafayette park tumbled from its pedestal during a violent summer storm today and was smashed. A statue of Lafayette, facing Pershing, remained standing. The two figures, forming one of the best known American memorials in France, commemorated the formation of the Lafayette Escadrille during the World war.

The memorial to the Lafayette Escadrille, in the resort town of Garches, was executed in 1928 by Alexandre Marcel, with sculptures by Renard and Dubois.

Gen. Pershing attended the ceremony dedicating the equestrian statue to himself on Oct. 6, 1937. Also present were President Albert Lebrun and Marshal Henri Phillippe Petain, now French chief of state. The Pershing statue was merely a plaster cast, placed on the pedestal preliminary to erection of a bronze figure.

Duff Cooper Arrives for Visit with Halifax.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12—Alfred Duff Cooper, one time chief of British propaganda, who was kicked upstairs in the recent cabinet shakeup, arrived in Washington this evening for a visit with his Britannic majesty's ambassador, Lord Halifax, to discuss ways of promoting Britain's war in the United States.

Duff Cooper is en route to Singapore, where he will seek to coördinate political control of the far eastern units of the British empire. This post was created for the crisp mustached Briton on his removal from the cabinet as minister of information.

In proceeding to his new post, Duff Cooper was sent to the far east by way of America. He will spend two weeks between New York and Washington before he starts a leisurely tour across the country to cross the Pacific by clipper plane.

Travels by Private Plane.

Duff Cooper arrived here in a private plane assigned to him by American Airlines. He was accompanied by Martin Russell, his secretary, and Maj. Lindsay Robertson.

The former British propaganda chief follows in the footsteps of other Britons sent to this country to sell the war. As did many of his predecessors, he held informal press conferences on his arrival in New York and again on his arrival in Washington.

After his press conference here, at which he hailed America's aid to Britain as playing an enormous part in winning the war, Duff Cooper took his leave of the press with Ambassador Halifax, whose chief task in this country is to enlist every American aid for Britain, from guns to men.

Report Halifax Sought Aid.

Halifax took his duties so seriously that he lobbied in the halls of congress in behalf of the lend-lease bill. In the face of the high tide of sentiment in the United States against entry into the war, he is reported to have asked for assistance in the drive to get an American expeditionary force abroad to coöperate with the British.

Duff Cooper's visit is believed by many in the capital to be an answer to that plea. Another visitor in this campaign is reported to be the Duke of Kent, younger brother of King George VI. of Great Britain, who is due here Aug. 25 after a week-end with President Roosevelt in the latter's home at Hyde Park, N. Y.

Lady Diana Stays Behind.

It was apparent that Duff Cooper's visit to Washington is to be official rather than social. He was not accompanied by his wife, the glamorous Lady Diana Manners, remembered in this country for her portrayal of the rôle of the Madonna in "The Miracle," stage extravaganza of 20 years ago. Lady Diana remained in New York in reunion with her 11 year old son, who has been attending school in Canada.

When it was believed that she would accompany her husband here, it was reported in official British circles to the distress of Washington society matrons that entertainment of the visiting pair would be informal in order to give the men a chance to discuss international affairs.

Embassy Censors Program.

The blanket of censorship over social functions at the British embassy balked efforts to learn what men have been picked for Duff Cooper to discuss world affairs with during his stay here.

The only scheduled function at which Duff Cooper will appear is a luncheon of the National Press club, where he will be a speaking guest Thursday noon. It is expected his speech will seek to strengthen press support of the British cause in America. He will leave the capital Thursday night.

HELD ON REPORT OF BOAST HE SAW LINDY KIDNAPING

Hans Krohn, 58 years old, a carpenter, was held by Englewood police last night to be turned over to federal authorities after he allegedly stated during a tavern argument at 60th street and Wentworth avenue that he had personal knowledge that Bruno Hauptman was not guilty of kidnaping the Lindbergh baby. Police were skeptical of the story, feeling that any statement that he was present when the kidnaping occurred was made to bolster his claim of Hauptman's innocence. But they said he seemed reluctant to give details of his entrance into this country and said he is not a citizen. Krohn lives at 5906 Wentworth avenue.

CAPITAL SWIRLS WITH LOBBYISTS IN ARMS TANGLE

Callers Run Into Maze of Confusion in OPM.

BY MARCIA WINN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12.—When the city of Washington originally was planned, one could stand on the steps of the capitol and look down the broad vista of Pennsylvania avenue to the White House. Now, by an irony that has become timely, that vista ends in the Treasury building.

This fits in well with the theory of government expressed some time ago by Henry F. Ashurst, former Democratic senator from Arizona. To get an appropriation bill passed, he advised his confederates: "Just add a nought. If you don't, nobody pays any attention to it."

The add-a-nought school of congress now goes merrily along its way. With 27,000 million dollars in armaments contracts already let, the capital still foams with lobbyists, contractors, and visiting representatives of chambers of commerce, who hang their hats on the lowest pegs at home so they can reach up, clap them on, and hurry back to Washington to nail down an armaments plant.

Congressmen Are Besieged.

Congressmen are besieged by home town lobbyists, who thought, until they reached Washington, that congressmen were omnipotent. One harassed Democratic congressman said he spoke for all with: "Wouldn't it be wonderful to be back in the days when all the party in power had to dispense was postmasterships?"

This particular gentleman was currently upset because he had just obtained a 33 million dollar armaments industry for his state. He wired the news home, expecting all to be jubilant, but the mayor of the town where it would be centered telephoned him in immediate dismay. "Surely," he asked, "this doesn't mean we'll have to give up our CCC camp?"

The preparedness muddle is a vertiginous one. It centers in the new Social Security building, where the Office of Production Management holds forth.

Press Agents Serve OPM.

The lobby of this building is of green marble. It contains shining escalators. It also has a large but neat sign: "OPM Bureau of Information—Room 5525."

This sign is necessary, for most of the brief cased gentlemen who enter the building end up in room 5525 after a futile, wearing safari thru the rest of the place. Room 5525 includes a wide array of offices, those of most of the OPM's 70 press agents. One needs an appointment to see the head press agent. He is a busy man.

Persons of varying degrees of consequence throng the corridors. Almost any one may bump into Leon Henderson, the inevitable black cigar cocked in his mouth, a wrinkled seersucker suit on his short, heavy frame. He is a long way from his official home, the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply, the price fixing agency, which is across town.

Room Full of Assistants.

The reception room to room 5525 is full of assistant dispensers of information. An enormous banner proclaiming "Time is short," the official OPM work slogan, hangs on one wall, just as it ornaments many portals in the building. "Keep 'em rolling," another slogan, hangs on another wall. The 18 new insignia for civilian defense buttons, geometrically red, white, and blue, hang on another.

The assistant dispensers also are busy people. They will tell you why. "We call a whole industry in here every day," they say.

A business man approaches the information desk to ask where he could find some new agency.

"Um," said the giver of information, a girl, "I think that was Nelson Rockefeller's outfit."

"Do you know where it is now?" he asked her.

Another Question Arises.

She then began to discuss the civilian defense insignia with another questioner. A committee of women had been set up to decide on uniforms, she said. Who is on the committee? "Well, Mrs. Roosevelt, and . . ."

Here she reached for the telephone to ask some one else. That person didn't know. She asked another. Neither did he. She hailed a passerby. He suggested she send for the minutes of the meeting, but added he thought Daisy Harriman [former minister to Norway] and Anna Rosenberg [regional director of the Social Security board for New York] also were on it. She sent for the minutes and riffled thru them.

"I can't find it," she said at last. "But I know Mrs. Roosevelt is one of them. It's in here some where, but I haven't time to look."

List All Wrong, She Says.

She then was asked for the number of dollar a year men with the OPM. She didn't know. Did she have a list? Yes, but it was already out of date. Many had resigned. Many more had been acquired.

"It won't help you a bit," she said, producing the list. "It's all wrong."

A neat, young man in a gray suit then came in with his briefcase. He approached in humility.

"I'd like an organization chart," he said.

"We haven't any," she replied. "Where did you see one?"

"I've seen them all over the United States," he told her promptly.

"Sure," spoke up a heavy set man behind him. "I cut one out of the American Machinist myself."

"O, but they've all been changed," she assured him. "Everybody has different jobs. So they are going to get out a new chart."

"Isn't it revised yet?" the first man asked her.

"No."

She'll Mail Him One.

"Well, can you mail me one?"

She could, in time, and would. She took his name and address. He was a brass and iron foundry man from Montana.

"What do you want it for?" she concluded conversationally.

"So I'll know whom to write a letter to," he told her glumly. "I haven't been able to find any one around here."

This parallels the experience of the Floridan who came here to see about priorities for small instruments needed in motors for the Florida Power company. He sought in vain. His clew to a solution came when he was in an office with five men supposed to be OPM officials. One said: "I'll tell you what to do. Go back to Florida and write us a letter. The messenger in the mailroom will know where to send it."

British Bomb Cologne in Big Raid; Berlin Again Attacked

Strafe France, Too

LONDON, Aug. 12 (AP).—British bombers and fighters hammered Germany and the occupied coast by the hundreds today in the greatest RAF daylight raid of the war, penetrating 150 miles of the Nazi defense district to blast and set afire two Cologne power stations at Knapsack and Quadrath. It was acknowledged that 12 British bombers and eight fighters were missing. Destruction of four German fighters was claimed.

Tonight Nazis were retaliating by bombing many British towns.

Mass formations of Blenheims and high-flying American-built "fortress" planes struck at Cologne. The bombers were escorted as far as Antwerp and back from there by swarms of fighting planes.

"Fortress" planes also attacked Emden, Germany, and an airdrome at De Kooy, the Netherlands. A power station near Bethune and rail communications near St. Omer were the targets on the French coast.

Rush to Shelters

BERLIN, Aug. 13 [Wednesday] (AP).—For the third consecutive night more than 4,000,000 Berliners rushed to air raid shelters last night as sirens announced the approach of enemy planes.

A half dozen flares dropped by the unidentified attackers threw a yellow light over the capital as searchlights crisscrossed the heavens and anti-aircraft fire was heard.

Officials said "a limited number" of explosive bombs fell on residential sections, killing and wounding an unspecified number of persons.

The communique failed to identify the attackers, but acknowledged that British air raiders had bombed several places in western, central, and northern Germany.

Ten of the British planes were said to have been shot down—bringing to 51 the total claimed to have been destroyed since dawn Saturday.

In the Atlantic, west of Cadiz, Spain, the Nazis said, a tanker of 8,000 tons was destroyed by a bomber, and speeding boats sank a 6,000 ton British freighter in the English channel.

HEAR JAPAN WILL PUT 180,000 MEN NEAR SIAM LINE

U. S. Warned Against Pressure on Tokio.

Tokio Fleet at Saigon

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—A Tokio broadcast heard here tonight reported the entire Japanese fleet had entered the harbor of Saigon, Indo-China, and that authorities of the Japanese occupying forces and French military and civil establishments went aboard to greet the admiral in command. The broadcast was based on dispatches from Saigon, the Japanese radio said.

MANILA, P. I., Aug. 12 (AP).—The Japanese high command is planning to place 180,000 troops in French Indo-China, the majority of them in West Cambodia adjoining the border of Thailand [Siam], it was learned authoritatively tonight.

Foreign observers agree that the Japanese will enter Thailand when they are organized and prepared to meet British troops now stationed in Burma and British Malaya along the west and northwestern Thai border.

The number of troops the Japanese are reported planning to move in Indo-China is far greater than has previously been mentioned.

United States Warned on "Pressure."

TOKIO, Aug. 12 (AP).—Britain and the United States have been warned that further pressure on Japan would "bring nothing but the worst situation," the militarist newspaper Kokumin reported today in declaring Japanese determination to proceed in the creation of a broader sphere in East Asia.

This warning, the paper observed, had been especially pointed to Washington, D. C.

Japan's attention was turned toward United States shipments of war supplies to the Russian Pacific port of Vladivostok.

"Japan wishes that the United States would not send munitions," said Koh Ishii, spokesman for the cabinet information bureau.

His statement was based upon the declared Japanese fear that materials arriving at Vladivostok might remain in the east for possible use against Japan.

No Concessions, Says Siamese.

SAIGON, Indo-China, Aug. 12 (AP).—Col. Sarablaga, leader of the Thai boundary commission which has been engaged in fixing the new frontier between Thailand [Siam] and Indo-China, said today that Thailand could not consider demands for military or naval bases or the right to transport foreign troops across her territory.

War Closer, Australia Told.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Aug. 12 (AP).—Australia's parliament was summoned today to meet on Aug. 20 to discuss the far eastern situation.

The war cabinet met again. Opposition Leader J. H. Curtin, who attended yesterday's meeting said the war was moving closer to Australia.

"I put it as plainly as I can to every Australian," he added, "that the safety of this country is at stake."

REDS ASK TOKIO TO CLARIFY PACT, SHANGHAI HEARS

SHANGHAI, China, Aug. 12.—Russian representatives in Tokio are demanding that Japan conclude a nonaggression pact with Russia without reservations that might be interpreted for either's benefit, depending on circumstances, it was reported here today. Any such pact, as viewed here, would divorce Japan from the axis pact with Germany and Italy.

[Japan has a pact with the axis and with Russia, and its obligations under them have been a subject of debate in Tokio ever since Germany attacked Russia.]

Ontario Premier Considers Aircraft Post in Britain

ST. CATHERINES, Ont., Aug. 11.—Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn of Ontario said in an interview here last night that he had offered to resign his office and leadership of the provincial Liberal party in order to go to England as an assistant to J. P. Bickell, executive of the ministry of aircraft production.

NEW TYPE SUBMARINE CHASER IS LAUNCHED AT DETROIT FACTORY

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 12 (AP).—A new type of submarine chaser, described as an "epic in small naval ships," was commissioned here today and turned over to the United States navy. Known as the PC-453, the 110 foot vessel, equipped with two 1,200 horse power Diesel motors, is the first of a fleet being built by the Fisher Boat works.

General Motors corporation developed the motors, which Charles F. Kettering, corporation vice president, said contained radical changes.

La Guardia Is Assured Competition in Primary

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Mayor Fiorello La Guardia was assured a primary fight for the Republican mayoralty nomination with the filing tonight of board of election petitions. He is uncontested for the powerful American Labor party nomination. Filing against La Guardia for the September primary was John R. Davies, a former president of the National Republican club, whose petition contained nearly three times the required 5,000 signatures.

ITALIAN AIRMEN SINK BRITISH AUXILIARY SHIP

ROME, Aug. 12 (AP).—Italian planes were credited today by the high command with torpedoing and sinking a 2,800 ton British auxiliary ship in the eastern Mediterranean.

[Berlin officials said German and anti-aircraft battries Monday. Two freight ships in the Suez canal roadstead, barracks at Ismailia, and the airport at Port Said, Egypt, also were bombed.]

British warplanes bombed the towns of Crotone and Catanzaro in the "toe" of the Italian boot yesterday. Two raiders were shot down.

Eight Killed in Suez Raid.

CAIRO, Aug. 12 (AP).—The Suez canal area and the port of Alexandria, site of Britain's big Mediterranean naval base, were raided from the air last night, an Egyptian communique said today. Eight persons were killed and 13 injured in the canal zone and 4 persons were injured at Alexandria. "Some damage" was done in the canal area.

Torpedo-carrying Swordfish planes of the British fleet attacked ships in the harbor of Sicily, and are believed to have scored two hits on a vessel of 1,300 tons, the RAF reported. Gerbini airdrome in Sicily, a power station at Tripoli, Libya, and Bengazi, Bardia, and Ain el Gazala were bombed.

Indo-China Will Permit Exports to Japan Only

SHANGHAI, China, Aug. 13 [Wednesday] (AP).—A dispatch by Domei, Japanese news agency, from Hanoi said today that the French Indo-China government has prohibited the export of all merchandise except that going to Japan.

OPERA'S GRAND OLD MAN TO SING FESTIVAL NIGHT

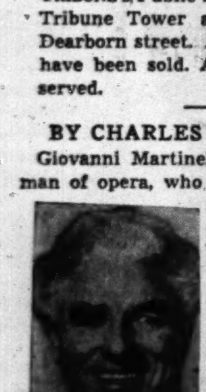
Martinelli Lays Success to Laughter, Food.

Festival Tickets!

Tickets for the 12th Chicagoland Music Festival, to be held next Saturday night in Soldiers' field, are on sale at $1 at THE TRIBUNE's Public Service offices in Tribune Tower and at 1 South Dearborn street. All 50 cent seats have been sold. All seats are reserved.

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

Giovanni Martinelli, the grand old man of opera, who will be the great singing star of the 12th Chicagoland Music Festival, has had probably the longest and most brilliant career of the American operatic stage.



Giovanni Martinelli.

As he looks out upon more than 85,000 people next Saturday night in Soldiers' field, he will be seeing one of the largest audiences of his career. And as the audience looks at the robust, white haired artist it will be seeing a man who has captivated music lovers here and abroad for 31 years.

Made Debut in Milan.

Tho his followers speak of him as the grand old man, Giovanni Martinelli is only 56 years old. But he made his debut in Milan, Italy, in 1910 and appeared first in America in 1913 at the Metropolitan in New York.

The thrilling quality that has made his audiences burst into spontaneous, wild applause is still there. And to what does Martinelli attribute his long and brilliant career? To two things:

Plenty of hearty laughter and plenty of wholesome food. Of the first he says:

"When things do not go as they should, one must keep trying and keep cheerful. It makes the prize so much the sweeter. But when one does not get the prize, he must say, 'It is destiny,'—and laugh."

Gives Credit to Chef.

As to his food, Martinelli gives all the credit to his chef, Noemio Guido, who sees to it that he is well fed with vegetables and fresh fruit.

So much for Martinelli's beliefs about the reasons for his success. Musical authorities and his own associates of the operatic stage attribute his greatness to other things.

To begin with, he is blessed with one of the finest tenor voices in musical history. And he exercises a rigid self-discipline that has kept his voice good. He never strains his voice, and he never goes to excess in anything—food, liquor, exercise, or temperament.

Almost Missed Career.

Yet, despite his great voice, Martinelli narrowly missed spending his life as a cabinet maker in Montagnana, the little town in the Italian province of Padua, where he was born. His parents failed to recognize his talent, and Martinelli had to satisfy his craving for music by playing the clarinet and singing in the church choir.

When he was 20 years old, he was drafted into the army for three years' compulsory service. His ability as a clarinet player got him into the regimental band, and soon afterward his bandmaster-captain heard Martinelli singing in the barracks. He told the youth he had a great voice and advised him to cultivate it. Out of the army, he finally persuaded his father to let him take voice lessons in Milan.

Heard by Toscanini.

Two years later Martinelli made his debut in Rossini's "Stabat Mater" at Milan, and after a few months he was heard by Toscanini and Puccini, who chose him to sing in Rome at the première of "The Girl of the Golden West."

After this his rise was meteoric. Engagements followed in Monte Carlo and London. It was during this period that Gatti-Casazza heard Martinelli and engaged him for the Metropolitan. The rest of his career has made musical history.

And there will be musical history made by the program of which Martinelli will be a part Saturday night. The largest plectrophonic band ever assembled—3,000 players—will make music for the vast audience. There will be a massed brass band of 3,000, an accordion band of 1,500, a great chorus of 4,400 voices, and many individual events of pageantry and color.

27 SING TONIGHT IN COOK COUNTY VOCAL FINALS

Winners to Vie Saturday for Festival Roles.

Twenty-seven young men and women will compete tonight in the grand ballroom of the Drake hotel in the Cook county finals of the Chicagoland Music Festival.

Nine singers from each of the three sides of Chicago will be pitted against one another in one of the most exciting of all the festival contests.

Choose the Two Best.

From the 27 the best man singer and the best woman singer will be chosen.

These will sing again on Saturday afternoon at the Drake against the best singers from outside Cook county. Out of this group two men and two women will be selected.

That night, before the great festival crowd in Soldiers' field these four will sing for top honors. The judges for that night are Rosa Raisa and Edith Mason, famous stars of the Metropolitan and Chicago Opera companies, and Hans Lange, associate conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

ORGANIZE GROUP TO CO-ORDINATE FIGHT ON HITLER

Seventy-five persons representing organizations opposed to Hitler and supporting the President's foreign policy met in the LaSalle hotel last night to form a coördinating body for their anti-Nazi activities. Cortland Eyer, associate professor of Romance languages at Northwestern university, presided. Many of those present also are members of the Committee to Defend America or the Fight for Freedom committee. A steering committee is to be appointed by Prof. Eyer, and will visit Mayor Kelly to request that he proclaim an Anti-Hitler day on which a rally may be held in Soldiers' field.

FORT DEARBORN MASSACRE TO BE MARKED FRIDAY

The 129th anniversary of the Fort Dearborn massacre will be observed at 10:30 a. m. Friday at the southwest pylon of the Michigan avenue bridge, Col. Harry A. Musham, chairman of the Fort Dearborn Memorial Commission, announced yesterday. A wreath will be placed upon the memorial plaque on the bridge and a volley will be fired by an army squad. Mayor Kelly has asked that flags be flown thruout the city on Friday.

Seized in $25,000 Threat to Blow Up Rail Property

Houston, Tex., Aug. 12 (AP).—An extortion charge was filed against a man who, federal bureau of investigation agents said, threatened to blow up Southern Pacific railroad property if he wasn't paid $25,000. Officers said they arrested Richard Edward Hudson, 64 years old, of Austin, Saturday as he arrived at the spot where J. T. Munroe, Southern Pacific passenger traffic manager, had left a dummy package.

50 CENT SEATS FOR FESTIVAL SOLD OUT; $1 TICKETS REMAIN

All 50 cent seats for the 12th Chicagoland Music Festival have been sold, it was announced yesterday by the festival ticket manager. There still are some choice $1 seats available, but the greatest ticket sale in the festival's history is reducing the supply swiftly.

It also was requested yesterday that no more mail orders for tickets be sent in because of the shortness of time until the festival and the possibility that the buyers might not receive them.

The sellout of the 50 cent seats never before has happened so early. The less expensive tickets usually are not all sold before Thursday night or Friday morning.

14 WIN PLACES IN THE FINALS OF MUSIC FETE

Boy, 14, Wins First in Trombone Contest.

Fourteen of the 32 young men and women who participated in the preliminary contest for the Cook county instrumentalists in the Chicagoland Music festival last night at the Drake hotel will play in the finals Saturday. This is the first year there has been a contest for fretted instruments or the trombone.

All the instrumentalists, including the accordionists, may play with the festival band Saturday night.

Clay Harvey Jr., 6844 Wildwood avenue, 14 years old, won first place among the trombonists. He is a sophomore at Schurz High school, where his father is band instructor, and he hopes to follow in his father's footsteps. Clay already has played in national high school competitions.

Believes in Trying Again.

Mort Abrams, 3436 Grenshaw street, 15, believes in trying again. He placed second in the accordion finals last year and after winning first last night he's on his way to the finals again. A junior at Marshall High school, he has been studying the accordion for six years and practices three hours a day.

The next four winners were recommended for the finals also. They are, in order, Evelyn Kratky, 3041 South Trumbull avenue; Frances Brandt, 5824 South California avenue; Phil Diorio, 730 Central Park boulevard, and Florence Mattick, 5741 North Rockwell street.

Miss Catherine Back, 1956 Summerdale avenue, a 26 year old secretary, has been playing a double neck electric Hawaiian guitar only since January, but she won first place last night. She first saw some one play this instrument in a movie and now wants to make a profession of it, "if there's enough money in it," she added. Calvin Weiss, 3714 Roosevelt road, also was chosen for the finals.

Spanish Guitar Contest.

In the Spanish guitar contest, Joe De Piano, 830 South Winchester avenue, placed first and Harlan C. Grove Jr., Villa Park, second. De Piano, 26, an interior decorator, played his electric guitar with the festival band last year and this year hopes to present a solo.

Leonard E. Fay, Cicero, a 15 year old junior at Morton High school, won the tenor banjo contest. He has studied the banjo for four years and plays with the Chicago Plectrophonic orchestra.

Judges were Marcel Ackermann and Alford Creitz, both former members of the Chicago Civic orchestra, and Mace Wolf, a fretted instrument soloist and dance band player. Miss Mildred Larsen was chairman of the contest. Finals for the fretted instruments will be held at 9 a. m. Saturday in the Stevens hotel and for the trombone and accordion players at the same time in the Chicago Towers club.

U. S. PUTS CEILING ON SUGAR'S PRICE TO HALT UPSWING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12.—The government tonight put a ceiling on the price of sugar, making it the first foodstuff to come under the purview of the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply.

Price Control Administrator Leon Henderson set the ceiling price of raw sugar at 3½ cents a pound, three-tenths of a cent under the price prevailing yesterday. Officials said the order, which becomes effective Thursday, would mean a retail price of about 5.8 cents a pound.

The step was taken to freeze the price of sugar to the consumer so that it would not skyrocket as it did in the world war.

OPACS officials declared that as a result of the order there will be no further increases in the price of sugar.

Henderson said prices set today are those which prevailed in mid-July, "prior to the recent excessive speculative advance."

"Speculators have been endeavoring all thru the year to reap a profit at expense of consumers thruout the country by frightening them with scare reports of one kind or another, altho the actual situation is one of unusual abundance, not a scarcity," Henderson said.

During the World war, the government was late in fixing a ceiling on prices of various commodities, with the result that the prices of some articles soared to enormous heights, it was said at Henderson's office.

Sugar rose to almost 30 cents a pound at retail then.

SURPRISE TO CUBA

[Copyright: 1941: By the New York Times.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 12.—Establishment of a maximum price of 3½ cents per pound on raw sugar by the United States government fell like a bombshell here tonight. The National Association of Producers and the Association of Sugar Growers issued a joint statement declaring that the OPAC's price ceiling was "entirely unfair to Cuba and will have grave repercussions on the Cuban standard of living and every sector of national economy."

José Manuel Casanova, president of the Cuban Sugar Stabilization institute and one of Cuba's leading industrialists, said the move came as a "disagreeable surprise to the Cuban people."

Lake Forest Woman Faces Charge in Safety Court

Maurice Begner of the park district police for driving erratically in Beach drive in Lincoln park. With her was her husband, who denied his wife had been drinking. Mrs. Griffis was scheduled to appear in Safety court this morning.

CAPT. E. A. EVERS RAISED TO RANK OF REAR ADMIRAL

Capt. Edward A. Evers, commander of the Chicago Naval Reserve unit, was promoted to the rank of rear admiral yesterday in a ceremony conducted at the Great Lakes Naval Training station by Rear Admiral John Downes, station commandant.

Adm. E. A. Evers.

Admiral Evers has the longest continuous service record in the United States Naval Reserve. He enlisted in the naval militia in 1897 and was called to active duty the next year. He was active in the militia until its conversion into the Naval Reserve in 1925, and has been a leader in the latter organization since.

During the World war Admiral Evers was commanding officer of the Grant Park Training camp and also of the Officers' Materiel school at Navy pier.

BELIEVE JOINT NOTE GIVEN JAPS BY BRITAIN, U. S.

LONDON, Aug. 13, Wednesday (AP).—The Daily Mail carried a dispatch from Melbourne, Australia, today to the effect that Britain and the United States have put to Japan the question of whether she "agrees to forego her policy of expansion southward" and that they insisted on a reply within a stated time.

The Daily Mail said it was believed the American-British representations also asked specifically whether Japanese armed forces are to be given orders to march into Thailand [Siam].

"Britain," it added, "is understood to have asked for Australia's immediate support to the demarche. The request led to an emergency meeting of the Australian cabinet Tuesday."

Reports of the American and British action, the newspaper said, explained the grave warnings given in Australia on the increasing danger in the far eastern situation.

It's a revolutionary method of brewing

Delicate Hop Flavor added by Percolating

Two Varieties of Fine Hops Blended—one for fragrance, one for lightness

BICYCLES and a lot of other things have been streamlined and speeded up during the 50 years we've been brewing. But we've found that short-cuts don't make real old-time beer. Take equipment like that for bottling, we put in the fastest we can find. But new-fangled, short-cut brewing methods—no!

We still make an all-grain beer as always. We've never made a beer with added sugars or syrups in it. But one of the secrets of our old-time methods is the way we give Delicate Hop Flavor to the brew by percolating. This way avoids the bitterness that comes from steeping the hops the usual way.

Another of our secrets is bottling with only Natural Draft Beer Carbonation created right in the beer itself. And our brewing water has been pronounced the finest known to brewing science. It's utterly free from minerals that might affect the taste of the finished beer.

NYE PREDICTS QUIZ MAY PROVE FILM WAR PLOT

Says New Deal May Have Ordered Campaign.

Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.] said in Chicago last night that a senatorial investigation now in progress might prove the existence of a "highly controled, subtle movie propaganda" designed to push the United States further toward war.

"And I shall not be surprised," the senator said, "if it is revealed that our own government encouraged if not ordered this controled propaganda."

Senator Nye was a co-author with Senator Bennett Champ Clark [D., Mo.] of the resolution to investigate the movies. He said the committee already had done a great deal of work.

Tells Public Attitude.

The secrecy being maintained in Washington as to President Roosevelt's movements at sea, according to Senator Nye, is "not of great public concern."

"Perhaps the President is discussing who is to be president of Union Now," he said, "and if Joe Stalin is present the four freedoms might be talked about. 'What of it?' is the public's query."

The senator commented briefly on the French government's decision to go along with Germany.

"What else could France do?" he asked. "The country that was going to stand by them washed out on the continent more quickly than any one expected. Ever since that the United States and Great Britain have engaged in the nice game of starving France. They are doing everything but inviting the friendship of the French.

Says It's Not Our War.

"This may prove unfortunate for the people of Martinique. But it should convince the United States it is not our war."

He said that the vote in the house on extending the draftees' service by 18 months [203 to 202] proved that no one could find any unity in favor of "the idea of getting further involved in Europe's war."

NAVAL STATION WILL BE HOST TO GOVERNORS

The governors of the 13 central western states in the 9th naval district will receive invitations delivered by navy airplanes within the next few days to attend Governors' Navy day at the Great Lakes Naval Training station next Wednesday. The invitations are being sent by Rear Admiral John Downes, commandant of the district.

Gov. Dwight H. Green has accepted the invitation taken to him yesterday by Commander Richard Whitehead, aviation aide to Admiral Downes. Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox also will be present.

Admiral Downes said the governors and other dignitaries will meet at the midshipmen's school in Abbott hall, on the downtown campus of Northwestern university, early next Wednesday. After inspecting the school, they will go to the training station, where the governors will lunch with navy recruits from their respective states. In the afternoon they will inspect the station and watch a regimental review.

120,000 TROOPS REACH ARKANSAS FOR MANEUVERS

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hot Springs, Ark., Aug. 12.—All roads in this part of Arkansas were congested with army vehicles today as 120,000 men from Illinois, Missouri, Nebraska, Kansas and New York converged on Prescott, Ark., for maneuvers that will last for two weeks.

The 33d division men from Chicagoland were in high spirits over being relieved from 15 weeks intensive training at Camp Forrest, Tenn., but they were harried by incessant dust and heat that ranged up to 110 degrees.

Most of the troops to participate in the war games will be in the maneuver area by tomorrow night. The actual exercise field has not been designated, this information being withheld to create an element of surprise for the participants.

3 Army Flyers Believed Lost in Crash Into Sea

MORIARITY GETS LIFE FOR SLAYING IN ABORTION CASE

Policeman Daniel Moriarity was formally sentenced yesterday to the life imprisonment term decreed by a jury which on July 23 found him guilty of the murder of Miss Ada Jane Martin. He was taken immediately to the penitentiary at Joliet.

Judge John Sbarbaro, who presided at the trial in Criminal court, pronounced the sentence after overruling Moriarity's plea for a new trial. Moriarity's victim, who was 24 years old, was the daughter of Mrs. Ada Martin, accused by the state as head of a million dollar abortion ring.

Moriarity, a policeman who was attached to the state's attorney's office, confessed that he planned to kill Mrs. Martin in the fear that she would expose him as a paid employé of the ring. He went to the Martin home at 4367 Lake Park avenue on April 29 and shot Mrs. Martin's daughter in bed, thinking she was Mrs. Martin.

TWO POLICEMEN SUSPENDED ON A BRIBERY CHARGE

Lieut. Arthur F. Patton and Patrolman John T. McDermott of the South Chicago police station were suspended last Saturday in a special order issued by Commissioner Allman, it was learned last night. According to John Prendergast, chief of the uniformed force, the two policemen are involved in the payment of $40 by a truck owner to avoid arrest for failure to have city vehicle tags. Both Patton and McDermott denied the charge.

HAITI REJECTS NAZI PROTEST ON U. S. BLACKLIST

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Aug. 12 (AP).—Haiti disclosed today it had rejected a German protest against the United States blacklist of Latin American firms trading with the axis. Walter Kaempfe, German charge d'affaires, had said in a note that the blacklist had stricken German commerce and encroached on the sovereignty of Haiti. Haitian Foreign Minister Charles Fombrun replied that "the government of the United States has acted, under the circumstances, fully within its rights" and asserted that Haiti was the sole judge of its sovereignty.

BRITISH OFFER U. S. ITS STEEL BACK—FOR CASH

A stenographer in a small manufacturing firm on the north side has watched sadly in recent weeks as her friends have lost their jobs because the company could get no steel for the cutting machines it makes.

Steel bookend.

Last week she happened to see a letter that her employer had thrown away. Signed by C. L. Kerr, general manager of B. Kerr's Stores, Greenwich, London, the letter began:

"This is not written to tell you that the front of my office has been blown away, but I thought it might interest you to know what I did when it happened. . . ."

Shields Sell "by Thousands."

Kerr explained that he had devised a steel shield to afford protection for fire watchers against incendiary bombs, and has "been busy making these steel protection shields, which are selling by the thousands over here."

"I am making for my friends in the United States a miniature set of these protection shields to put on their desks as book ends," the letter continued. An advertisment clipped to the letter describes the actual shield, a seven pound screen of 20 gauge steel, priced at $5 in American money.

"I do not suppose you would want the heavy original shield itself," a footnote says, "steel being needed over here. So I suggest that you have instead two exact miniature reproductions, size 9 by 9 inches, suitable to stand on your desk. The price for these is also $5—freight paid."

Calls Situation Ironic.

The stenographer to whose attention this letter and advertisment came, wrote to THE TRIBUNE as follows:

"I am working for a small manufacturing company. Many of the employés have been laid off because the company cannot get enough steel.

"Here is some real irony. While we here in America have to shut our factories in order to conserve steel so we can send it to England, we receive letters from England offering to sell us souvenir book ends made of steel at $5 a pair. Our office received the attached letter today asking us to buy these book ends.

"I thought you might be interested in reading this letter. My boss threw it in the waste basket.

"A Steno."

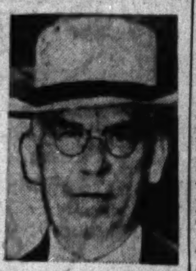
GOV. EDISON ASKS U.S. REJECTION OF SHIPYARD OFFER

Sees 'End of Liberty We're Arming to Preserve.'

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12 (AP).—Gov. Charles Edison of New Jersey appealed to the federal government today to refrain from taking over the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company pending an effort by the state to settle a CIO strike at the huge Kearny, N. J., plant.



L. H. Korndorff.

He addressed his plea to Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, whom he preceded in that cabinet post, while Knox was conferring in Washington with the company president, L. H. Korndorff, on the latter's offer to turn the plant over to the navy for operation. No decision was reached, Knox said.

Sees End of Freedom.

From Sea Girt, N. J., Edison telegraphed Knox, Korndorff, and others:

"When labor and capital complacently encourage the government to take over industrial plants, they are contributing to the creation of a system which will destroy the very freedom that we are arming ourselves to preserve. There must be some answer.

"As governor of New Jersey I request those concerned to grant opportunity for the state of New Jersey to see if that answer can be found."

Korndorff's offer was made after the company and the CIO union of marine and shipbuilding workers had reached a stalemate over the issue of a closed shop. John Green, president of the union, also suggested that the government take over the plant, which employs 17,000 and holds almost 500 million dollars of armament orders.

Ends Right to Strike.

Knox and Korndorff conferred twice during the day but adjourned their discussions until tomorrow without announcing any results.

In his statement at Sea Girt, Edison said there was an "apparent eagerness" on the part of labor and management to have the navy take over the property. He commented that labor would lose "a measure of its freedom if the shipyard became a branch of our armed forces. Collective bargaining can exist in military ranks only by suffrance rather than by right. The right to strike necessarily would be outlawed."

COURTNEY ACTS TO SPEED PROBE OF UNION CZAR

In order to speed up the prosecution of Max Caldwell, ousted czar of local 1248 of the Retail Clerks International Protective association, State's Attorney Courtney yesterday assigned an assistant, Geordon Nash, to help Assistant State's Attorney William B. Crawford in the investigation.

A list of the known records of the union was filed with the clerk of the Circuit court by Attorney Harold Marovitz. It stated that certain books were in the hands of the state's attorney and the officers of the Clerks' international—and that there weren't any more.

Crawford and Attorney Daniel D. Carmell, representing the international, asserted that there was nothing resembling a set of books in the local offices when the international took over.

Members of a group of clerks who took the lead in demanding the removal of Caldwell announced yesterday that they were tired of "stalling tactics" on the part of the international association and had asked a charter from the CIO.

Allman Asks Report on Quiz Into Tavern Permit for Girl

Police Commissioner James P. Allman yesterday asked for a report on the police investigation which preceded the issuance of a tavern license to an 18 year old girl, Jennie Sawadski, of 3171 Elston avenue. Issuance of the license was disclosed Monday before Judge Charles Dougherty in Boys' court. The girl's mother, Mrs. Violet M. Sawadski, 48 years old, was named the actual owner of the tavern and was fined $100 and costs for selling liquor to minors.

Sued for Divorce

MRS. HELEN PENNINGTON.

ONCE DEPORTED GERMAN BOMBER SEIZED IN DETROIT

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 12 (AP).—Carl Julius Schmidt, once deported to Germany as a member of the Kaltenschmidt dynamiting ring that furnished Detroit's most exciting sabotage trial during the World war, was arrested here yesterday on an immigration warrant, and again faces deportation.

Carl Julius Schmidt.

John L. Zurbrick, immigration inspector, said that Schmidt was arrested at the plant of the Nash-Kelvinator corporation, where he was employed. Federal agents also arrested August Baecker, a tool and diemaker. He was charged with failing to register as a "foreign agent in the employ of the German government."

Schmidt, who was convicted of plotting to dynamite an industrial plant in Detroit, was deported in 1922 after serving two years in Leavenworth penitentiary. He reëntered the United States in 1923 when he deserted a ship in New York harbor.

GREEN SAYS AFL IS POWERLESS TO REMOVE BROWNE

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said yesterday that any alteration in the union status of George E. Browne, indicted president of the International Association of Theatrical and Stage Employés and Moving Picture Operators' union, would have to be made by his own union or law officials.

"Browne was elected by the membership of his union and is subject to its laws," Green said. "There is not the slightest authority in the AFL to interfere. Browne is under indictment and I presume he will be tried by a jury of his peers. If he is found guilty he should be removed."

Browne and William Bioff, one time pander and now in charge of IATSE affairs on the Pacific coast, were indicted in the federal court in New York for attempting to extort money by threats of strikes in the moving picture industry. Green said that Browne had not attended the meeting of the AFL executive council, of which he is a member. The meeting is being held in the Drake hotel.

3 GAINSBOROUGH OILS STOLEN IN N. Y. HOTEL SUITE

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Theft of three Gainsborough paintings, insured for $44,000, from his suite at the Savoy Plaza hotel in Fifth avenue, was reported to police today by Capt. Daniel S. Sickles, a financier and official of the Bendix corporation.

The paintings were "Black Boy," "Charles the Bold," and a landscape. "Black Boy" had been cut from its gold frame and the two others were carried away in their frames.

HURT IN FALL, DIES.

RAID INSURANCE AVAILABLE, BUT ONLY FEW BUY IT

Policies Also Cover Civil War and Invasion.

Americans who have been made jittery by Mayor Fiorello [Little Flower] La Guardia's training of air raid wardens and similar tactics can take out insurance covering the alleged risk of aerial bombardment. And it's cheap, too.

Rates are 5 cents per $100 [2,000 to 1] on class A fireproof structures, and 8 cents per $100 [1,250 to 1] on class B, or the ordinary type of residential structures. These rates cover not only air raids by enemy planes but damage caused by this nation's planes in time of war. They also cover "invasion, civil war, insurrection, rebellion, naval or military bombardment."

People Slow to Respond.

Despite the low cost, no one in Chicago yet has insured a home, so far as could be learned from a survey of underwriters. One firm has insured two homes in Detroit.

Several factories making war supplies have taken out the war risk and bombardment insurance at 15 cents per $100—the rate being higher because they are considered military objectives.

Efforts were made to ascertain what portion of the rate is for air raids alone, altho no policy would be written this way.

"The possibility of air raids in the 22 interior states is so remote that it is difficult to answer the question," said Emil Hepp of the Springfield Fire and Marine Insurance company. "I would estimate that less than 10 per cent of the total risk is for air raids."

Higher Rates Near Oceans.

On this basis the realistic insurance men figure that the odds are as high as 20,000 to 1 against your home or store being struck by air bombs.

In coastal states the rates are slightly higher: 10 cents per $100 on homes, apartments, hotels, banks, and such buildings; 15 cents on nonmanufacturing commercial risks, and 20 cents on armament works.

The American Legion national headquarters has just issued two manuals of 31 and 52 pages containing detailed instructions on what to do during and after air raids.

Gold Snuff Box, Reputed Gift of Czar, Is Stolen

The theft of a gold snuff box studded with diamonds was reported to police yesterday by Morris Shatkin, owner of a jewelry store at 675 North Michigan avenue. Shatkin said the snuff box reputedly was the gift of Czar Peter III. of Russia to one of his noblemen. Shatkin valued it at $250.

DIES IN PAINT SHOP.

How to Conquer Fear by Dale Carnegie

This is the 26th in a series of weekly columns written by Dale Carnegie for the makers of Old Gold, the cigarette which gives you more pleasure since something new has been added . . . flavorful Latakia tobacco!

I once interviewed a world-famous skater. I asked her if she was ever troubled with fear when giving exhibitions before large audiences. "Yes," she replied. "When I am standing in the wings, waiting for the signal to begin, I tremble. But the moment the band starts to play and I flash out onto the ice and under the spotlights, all fear vanishes."

One of the surest and quickest ways to conquer fear is by action. Inaction breeds timidity. Action breeds courage and self-confidence.

Theory? No! I have personally trained thousands of men and women to conquer their fears of facing audiences. Just before they started, their hearts pounded and their knees literally trembled; but after they plunged into their talks, fears soon vanished.

Few things except military defeat will do more to undermine an army's morale than inaction. The fighting army is usually the confident army.

Do you fear to do something you ought to do? Then stop taking counsel of your fears. Stop hesitating. A great poet said:

"Are you in earnest? Seize this very minute.
Boldness has genius, power and magic in it.
Only engage and then the mind grows heated.
Begin and then the work will be completed."

A READER SAYS: "Like many of my friends, I find genuine inspiration in Dale Carnegie's columns written for the New Old Golds. I'd like to thank you people for printing them. And I'd also like to thank you for the New Old Golds themselves. That 'new and modern' taste they get from that added Latakia is a cigarette flavor you don't get tired of. Those New Old Golds wear well with me!"

With the skill of a fine chef seasoning a dish, the makers of New Old Golds have "seasoned" this modern cigarette blend with a rare, Eastern Mediterranean tobacco—flavorful Latakia. Try New Old Golds, blended with Latakia. They come in the same familiar package—but just taste the difference!

Something NEW has been added!

APPEAL TO CONSCIENCE.

The speech delivered on Sunday evening by former Ambassador Cudahy was addressed to the American people, but it was directed to the President of the United States. In the campaign of 1940, Mr. Cudahy recalled, the parties were united in proclaiming a policy of nonintervention in the war. Mr. Roosevelt promised the mothers and fathers of America that he would not send their sons to fight on foreign soil. He gave his pledge without reservation or equivocation. He said he was for the maintenance of peace.

Mr. Cudahy believed him then and is disposed to think that today Mr. Roosevelt means to keep his word, tho he has surrounded himself with men eager for war. Mr. Cudahy thinks that if the American people will make their wishes known clearly in Washington the President will stand by his pledge. It was given after Poland had fallen, after Norway and the Low Countries had been overrun, after France had been defeated, and at a moment when England was in far greater danger of invasion than she is today.

Obviously, as Mr. Cudahy said, those who are telling Mr. Roosevelt that he can honorably dishonor his word because circumstances have changed greatly since he gave it are engaging in a deliberate deceit. Last autumn Hitler had no enemy on land; now he has Russia as an enemy. Then he was dominant in the air; now England's relative position is improved. He threatened then to be winning the so-called battle of the Atlantic; now the rate of sinkings is lower than it has been for many months. Circumstances may have changed, but, if so, the change is not in a direction which justifies a breach of faith in the White House. On the contrary, rather.

Mr. Cudahy is no admirer of Hitler and his works. Our former ambassador is one of the few men in this country to have seen Hitler and talked to him and the experience only confirmed the resentment which Mr. Cudahy felt when he saw Poland laid waste and experienced the bombing in Brussels. Mr. Cudahy's dislike of the Nazis is intense, but it has not unbalanced his thinking. He knows that if we go to war we cannot limit our liability. If we go in it will be to the finish and to the limit. We must expect to lose several million of our young men killed, to mention but one item in the bill.

Mr. Cudahy believes from his own observation that peace today is not out of the question. He is confident that the German people are not eager for war. He believes that Mr. Roosevelt can promote peace if he will make the effort.

The strength of Mr. Cudahy's appeal lies primarily in its moral force. Mr. Cudahy cannot be suspected of being an unfriendly critic. He has been a steadfast supporter of the New Deal from its first days. He has held high office under Mr. Roosevelt. Last year he campaigned over the whole country, pleading with the voters to reelect the President. Now when he reminds Mr. Roosevelt of his pledged word he speaks as Mr. Roosevelt's friend and admirer. The judgments which Mr. Cudahy expresses are those of a man in whose judgment Mr. Roosevelt had confidence. If any man can succeed in overcoming the influence of the war mongers in the Presidential circle it should be Mr. Cudahy.

HOW DO YOU WANT YOUR BILLIONS?

There was an office discussion the other day of how to present sums of money to the reader's eye in the most intelligible form, as, for instance, would the reader find more meaning in 7 billion dollars or in 7,000 million dollars? Seven billion dollars used to be quite a sum of money. From one point of view, the numeral 7 followed by the word "billion" has ceased to have any particular meaning, whereas it was thought that 7,000 million might seem to be nearer the idea. Altho, when you have spent it, it's the same thing.

We think of good automobiles at $990 or a little less or a little more, of rents from $60 to $100 for modest people. We think of milk at 14 cents a quart, of butter as ranging between, say 27 and 34 cents. When 2 cents is added to the price of cigarets some people go to rolling their own. Entertainment runs from 30 cents to $3 a seat. A meal at a restaurant may tax the consumer from 60 cents to $1.15. Cotton at 20 cents a pound and hogs at $15 are desirable to the producer. Gasoline at 21 cents a gallon causes some people to take shorter trips, as Mr. Ickes desires.

An income of $3,000 or $4,000 a year is regarded as not wholly unsatisfactory. When Gary Cooper earns nearly $500,000 a year he, along with other children of the gods, becomes first page stuff. [Gary's split with the government leaves him on the small end of the receipts, but nevertheless he got it.]

So most of us are thinking of the price of bus fare, taxi cab rates, the price of potatoes, what the school books cost, and are dealing with items measured by dollars and cents. When we deal in distances we pass out when we get to such as need be measured by light years. To know that the sun is about 94 million miles away is taxing our imagination and when we are led into a contemplation of the great nebulae we simply fade.

But governments have no such parochial limitations. Their calculations in expenditures are astronomical. A million dollars is such small change that it can be added to an expenditure with the same aplomb that you might, if a smoker, blow yourself occasionally to a three for $1 cigar. Whenever governments find means of raising money they find means of spending it. A government's discovery of new pay dirt will always result in the expenditure of three times the amount of the revenue thus brought in.

When kings had to go personally to the bankers they fought stingy and to them unsatisfactory wars. When rulers discovered ingenious means of borrowing from the people who were going to fight the wars and of taxing them to support the borrowing, they really went out in a large way and have been expanding ever since. The numerals can't keep up with them.

RIDING OFF IN ALL DIRECTIONS.

Within the last few days the American people have read in their newspapers that:

1. The President has asked congress to authorize the completion of a canal across Florida, to cost 200 million dollars.
2. Secretary Ickes has ordered the construction of 1,820 miles of pipe lines at a cost of 80 million dollars, to carry oil from Texas and Louisiana to refineries on the Atlantic coast.
3. The national administration has imposed priorities on all steel production in the country in recognition of a shortage which is said to exist.
4. Secretary Morgenthau, worried about a 14,000 million dollar deficit this year, is crying for huge increases in taxes.

The citizens are left to wonder what goes on at cabinet meetings. Don't the boys ever talk things over? Here are four declarations of policy which make little sense when read separately and no sense at all when read together.

The traffic between the gulf ports and the Atlantic ports consists in large part of oil. In 1938, according to the report of Mr. A. H. Redfield of Mr. Ickes' department, 367 million barrels of petroleum and petroleum products were carried over this route. As every one knows who has looked out to sea along the Florida east coast, most of the ships passing are tankers engaged in this trade. The owners of these ships and of most of the others in the Atlantic-gulf trade have said they don't want the Florida canal and won't use it if it is built. Mr. Roosevelt has paid no attention to their statements, but he might be expected to pay a little attention to Mr. Ickes' plans. After Mr. Ickes' pipe line is built there will be little traffic left to circumnavigate Florida. The pipe line will destroy whatever excuse there was for the canal.

The pipe line will require something like 850,000 tons of steel, according to rough estimates. That is a lot of steel at any time and a stupendous drain upon the nation's blast furnaces, mills, and scrap piles at this time when the demands are so great that priorities have been instituted. Mr. Ickes says he is going to lay his pipe right away, which means that all 850,000 tons will have a high priority rating.

This administration has no economic policy. Any department head who gets an idea, however inconsistent it may be with the ideas of other officials, is allowed to proceed with his scheme. Instead of insisting that there be an end to the wasteful uses of gasoline in the east, Mr. Ickes decides to waste steel. Mr. Roosevelt calls for sacrifices, but won't sacrifice his Florida canal to ease Mr. Morgenthau's budgetary problem. It is these men who have proved their inability to plan and to coöperate in carrying out a plan who will have the lives of millions of Americans in their keeping if we get into the war. The prospect is an appalling one.

MORE ALARMED THAN THE BRITISH.

Prices have been rising slowly but steadily on the London Stock exchange. The average of leading stocks as calculated by the London Financial Time at the close of last week was the highest since May 3, 1940, just before the sitzkrieg was changed into a blitzkrieg. Prices of New York stocks, however, closed last week 20 points or nearly 16 per cent lower than on May 3, 1940.

London stocks have gone up 8 per cent since the beginning of the present year, and New York stocks have gone down 4 per cent in the same interval. British securities are 3½ per cent lower than they were at the beginning of 1939, when it was still believed that the war could be averted. But New York stocks are down 18 per cent from the outset of 1939.

London is close to the war. What its market seems to be saying is don't you worry, there'll always be an England. The weakness and stagnation of our share market in the face of strength in the London market suggests that the state of jitters in this country is not due to war developments but to the alarmist talk in official circles, and repression of business enterprise by the national administration.

Editorial of the Day

IT IS ALWAYS TIME TO SPEAK OF ECONOMY.

[Baltimore Sun.]

When is the time for members of congress to talk economy? Answering Republicans who have been enlivening the debate on the pending tax bill with criticisms of the administration's failure to cut nondefense expenditures, Representative Cooper, a Democratic spokesman, argues that such talk comes too late.

> I favor economy as much as anybody could [Mr. Cooper asserted], but the important thing to bear in mind is that this is not the time to be talking about economy or saving money. The time to do that is when . . . authorization bills and appropriation bills come before the house for consideration.

This may be a good talking point for a Democratic representative who undertakes to deal with a stubborn and pertinacious Republican opposition, but it is just a talking point. Mr. Cooper, who is one of the shrewdest members on the Democratic side of the ways and means committee and who in most matters can be depended on to call a spade a spade, is simply making the best of a bad case when he says that the time to talk good sense about government expenditures has expired.

There is no time limit on such talk. On the contrary, arguments for good sense and good management in the public finances are never more appropriate than when offered in debate on a bill levying $3,500,000,000 in new taxes. To say that expenditures cannot be considered in connection with taxes is to ignore the fundamental fact that, like private firms and individuals, the federal government, to ascertain where it stands financially, must balance expenditures against revenues.

The federal finances, especially in a period of emergency like the present, ought to be considered as a whole, and one step toward this desirable end is to debate economy and new taxes at one and the same time. Appropriation bills and tax bills should be considered at one and the same time so as to give the federal government a real, comprehensive budget policy. Steps to this end would be much more in keeping with the needs of the time as well as with professions on the score of economy than pleas such as Mr. Cooper made for the severance of the two parts of an indivisible whole.

THE SUBURBAN SYMPHONY.

Now is the time when the suburban householder, taking the cool of the evening on the screened terrace of his villa at the dead end of Blueberry lane [a fictitious address on the north shore], can do something more than listen to the hardening of his arteries. The voice of the jungle is calling to him; the Little People of the woods and thickets into which he has thrust his bit of Georgian or New England architecture are in full orchestra assembled, playing their own setting to "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

On warm, still nights there is a pulsing flow of sound, blended of buzzing, rasping, twittering, chirping notes. It seems to come from everywhere or nowhere, and a gust of wind or a sudden flurry of rain will cause it to die out. The suburban householder is fascinated but incurious; he accepts the mysterious chorale of the night as one of the blessings that are the just reward of a virtuous home builder. His only comment, as he yawns and prepares to go to bed, will probably be, "This is the life, and Lord a' mercy on the poor folks in town." If pressed for an explanation, he will dismiss the whole show with the one word, "Katydids." But it is entirely possible that he will spend the rest of his life without seeing a katydid.

The Little People of the north shore's wooded areas between the lake and the Skokie marshes are katydids, tree crickets, and tree frogs, the latter commonly called "tree toads." Scientists can identify several kinds of each, but we'll skip their Latin names. Their arboreal life has given them leafy colorings; their nocturnal habits make them hard to find, even when you know the trick of handling a flashlight to catch reflections from the tree frog's eyes of swelling throat. These frogs, incidentally, are diminutive, only an inch or two long, with rounded pads on their toes for climbing and clinging.

So it goes on, night after night, until the chill of autumn calls a halt to the mysterious music of the Little People of the woods. It has more enchantment for the imagination than the human symphonies at Ravinia.

MOUNTIES OF STATE STREET.

Clatter of hooves, and rise and fall of thigh;
Jingle of bit and spur, proud nostril's snort;
Hard, bronze-brown chins on chargers stepping high,
The "Mounties" pass, a lean and clean cohort.
No fanfares of acclaim are theirs; no blast
Of trampling bands proclaims their come-and-go;
No banners dip salute as they ride past—
"Familiarity breeds contempt," you know.
But give these heroes one year's furlough, say,
In Timbuctoo, or Nome, or Samarcand,
And tell me what dark fate, while they're away,
Might swift befall this city, gang-ster-planned!
Then tell me, too, what triumphs would await
These selfsame riders, riding again on State?

So You Don't Like Rabbits!

Lydie and Pinkie, mothers of 15, sit benign and unperturbed, stolidly munching carrot tops while the young fry clamber up, over, and under them. They're getting too old for the maternal fount, and occasionally one of the matrons will shake off an impertinent youngster. The babies, half of them white with candy-pink ears and the other half soft gray with blue eyes, are gay and adventurous.

They sit up to wash their impudent noses like fluffy kittens, and they tear madly around the hutch in an endless, silly race. Their little round stomachs are their biggest concern, and when the Boss appears with a bouquet of purple clover they sit on their haunches in the attitude of 15 penitent petitioners.

Lydie and Pinkie sit with half-closed eyes, scarcely seeming aware of the commotion around them. But let danger appear, in the shape of a strange dog or unknown man, and thump, thump, thump—the danger signal pounded out with the mother's powerful back leg sends every small bunny scurrying into a protected corner.

Acoustics of Auditorium.

The famous acoustics of the Auditorium theater were not accidental. They were deliberately planned upon the principles laid down by Vitruvius, the first great Roman architect, and illustrated by "Die Altona Tonhall" [the Altona Sound Hall], a medieval frame structure in the German city of Altona. This structure was studied by my father, Theodor Andresen, architect and engineer associated with the firm of Adler & Sullivan, in preparation for the designing of the acoustical and stage details of the Auditorium.

THE HEALTHY HIPPOPOTAMUS.

(A Brookfield Ballad.)

And now, my children, let's discuss
The carefree hippopotamus;
He's awkward, and he weighs a ton,
And isn't built to fight or run,
But when alarmed he leaves the scene
And hides, just like a submarine,
On river bottoms with his snout
And cautious nostrils peeping out
Until the coast is clear once more
And peace reigns tranquil on the shore.
So if you're not prepared to fight,
You'll live much longer out of sight.

"Independent as a Hog on Ice": Why?

Down Oklahoma way we learned the answer, as well as the expression, along with our A B C's. The next time you see a hog struggling along on ice, try giving it a helping hand. You will find that it resents any offer of assistance, however well intended. After all, it got itself into this mess, didn't it? And it will get itself out as best it can. ARE YOUR TISSUES WATERLOGGED?

WE ARE all familiar with what has happened when a blow is followed by a raised, puffy area which we call a bump. Tiny blood vessels have been broken and vital fluid has escaped into the surrounding tissues. If a black and blue spot results, this is positive proof that hemorrhage has occurred beneath the skin. Likewise, when bacteria disport themselves and give rise to inflammation the parts swell as liquid fills the spaces between the cells.

Many of us observe that toward the end of the day our feet have become too large for our shoes. "On standing for a time, my legs will increase in size," is a common remark. The explanation lies in the fact that the power of the heart has failed slightly, that the kidneys are not performing their allotted tasks, or that there is some form of obstruction to the back flow of blood and lymph.

In certain diseases of the liver the abdomen may fill because the portal veins have become narrowed. This means that these channels cannot deliver the normal volume of fluid to the largest organ of the body [the liver]. In consequence, back pressure may bring on edema [swelling].

Then we must think of the lymph spaces because these are almost as important as the veins when it comes to removing water from in and about the muscles. An operation for the removal of a breast tumor may include the glands beneath the arm. In consequence, the procedure destroys the lymph conduits in this vicinity. As a result, the part may remain swollen and the skin tense for months. This is what happens in Milroy's disease — a family trait, wherein the natural return flow to the body becomes impossible.

Curiously enough, a dropsical condition may come on because the diet is poor in protein. It may be observed when too much of this type of nutriment [albumin] is lost via the urine. Occasionally undernourished persons who eat too little meat will exhibit this same tendency.

Then, of course, we can upset quickly our balance of minerals thru the use of too much common salt or other chemicals. As we know, certain compounds are able to hold liquid within the body as firmly as tho it were fastened in a vise. Anything that increases the total amount of sodium favors the retention of water and the production of swelling. Anything that decreases this element helps to get rid of the excess. While this chemical is necessary in diseases of the adrenals, most of us take too much. In Addison's disorder, for example, in which the glands at the upper poles of the kidneys become damaged, potassium rises as sodium departs. Taking more salt, therefore, restores this balance. Then, too, we may look to heart failure as an inability on the part of the circulation to properly distribute blood.

But you ask—how can I get rid of excess water? First, we can make certain that no organic disease is present. Medical science can relieve a failing heart and the kidneys can be placed upon a satisfactory functioning basis. Having accomplished this, we can then be sure that there is no excess sodium filling the tissues with serum. There are several drugs [diuretics] which will accelerate elimination. Certain compounds of mercury are valuable and injections of strong glucose solutions likewise are effective. As a rule, there is no advantage whatsoever in employing cathartics because the water will return as soon as thirst has been satisfied.

SLEEPING SICKNESS.

E. R. writes: What is epidemic encephalitis?

REPLY.

A disease which is catching—probably of virus origin. It is characterized by increasing languor and drowsiness, even unconsciousness. Commonly called "sleeping sickness," it has appeared in waves. This same type may follow a severe attack of influenza.

WATER RETENTION.

Mrs. S. writes: What is meant by "water retained by the kidneys?"

REPLY.

When the renal organs are not functioning properly, certain salts are left in the tissues. They demand water for solution, hence an accumulation of fluid will be detected—in the lower legs, for example.

SILK COCOONS IN PRISON.

Joliet, Ill., Aug. 9.—As to the potential shortage of silk in this country: This situation could be relieved by turning to our great prison populace for whom a great problem exists to find work, not in competition with legitimate industry and labor.

No climatic or other problems exist to prevent the culture of the silk cocoon in this country, particularly the warmer parts. The enormous number of man hours devoted to obtaining the raw silk makes the industry in this country economically prohibitive.

If our southern prisons specialized in the culture of the cocoon, they could supply the whole country's prison population with work preparing the raw silk for market. Why shouldn't our penal officers investigate the possibilities?

SQUELCH RADIO RACKET!

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Let's not let the deserved agitation for less radio racket at night rest. K. R.'s suggestion that at 10 p. m. announcers ask the people to reduce their sound volume doesn't take care of the fact that every one isn't listening in at 10 o'clock. Why not go to the source and stop Chicago outlets at midnight. Isn't it nearly all unsponsored dance music after that hour?

And why do the radio makers have to install such volume that a radio can be heard a block away? This is a serious matter and of major consequence to a large part of our sleepless population.

MYRIADS OF "EXPERTS."

La Grange, Ill., Aug. 11.—The interesting letters from Washington, by Marcia Winn, bring out clearly how government workers are literally swamping the city by the Potomac.

Those who were acquainted with the United States department of agriculture in bygone years, would be amazed at its present setup of experts. Where once the department staff was hundreds there are now thousands. Perhaps the present situation can be best explained by a statement of my friend who is farming in Virginia. He had two relatives on the agriculture staff at the time and was not antagonistic to it. My friend said:

"Went up to the department of agriculture the other day. Hard to find the folks you want. There are literally corridors of offices. Office after office manned by specialists of every conceivable kind—all believing they are indispensable. Specialists in agriculture everywhere and the farmers not able to make both ends meet."

There were never so many department of agriculture publicity experts. They turn out hundreds of columns of "news" daily. Yet the hard working men and women of the farms are not getting along today as well as they used to. Could it be that high taxes caused by increased governmental activities are a big reason?

METERS FOR ALL OR NONE.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—I noticed a letter from a reader who objects to the city's plan to put water meters in homes on the south side. I object, too, but we have a meter now. Our water bill isn't large, but still, one look at the parched brown lawn in front of our house and the fresh green grass in front of the houses of our neighbors without meters, and you would agree with me that all should have meters or none.

PASSES A PART OF THE PAY.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—For the information of your reader, "L. B. F.," there is no free transportation on any railroad. When the writer secured a "job" with one of the class A-1 railroads 25 years ago he was informed that pass privileges were taken into consideration in computing the basis for wages paid; therefore the railroad worker is paying for his transportation just as other travelers do.

All railroads in order to conduct their business properly have many traveling representatives who naturally use passes, but if passes were eliminated the railroads would be put to an additional expense in paying for their transportation.

DOUGLAS TALKS OF GARBAGE AND HEWITT REPLIES

Alderman Cites Profit of One Company.

BY EDWARD WILSON.

Ald. Paul H. Douglas [5th] and Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, clashed yesterday on the matter of city garbage dump contracts. Ald. Douglas declared the $57,000 profit acknowledged for last year by the owners of one dump was too much for filling in a hole in the ground.

Commissioner Hewitt declared he will immediately ask the owners of the dump, the Dolese & Shepard company, for a reduction from the 22 cents per cubic yard the city now pays. The dump is at 31st street and Cicero avenue. The company, it was disclosed, last year did a business of $90,000.

Clash at Committee Hearing.

The clash occurred during a hearing of a special aldermanic committee named to solve the refuse disposal problem. Douglas, chairman of the committee, smiled at Hewitt and said:

"You haven't given me anything," snapped Hewitt. "You've publicized the fact we pay 22 cents a cubic yard or 25 cents less than Cicero pays at the same dump.

"What do private contractors pay?" Douglas asked George D. Smith, attorney who represented the company.

"About $1.50 a truck load. The load ranges from four to six cubic yards, usually six," was the answer.

Garbage Packs Down.

"Then we should pay less," said Hewitt. "Private contractors are paying for more solid refuse than we do. We dump garbage and it packs down and actually takes up less space than we pay for."

Hewitt and Douglas faced a slight problem again when the committee discussed costs of shipping garbage out of the city thru loading stations. Loading stations are owned by contractors and are located at railroad sidings. The city dumps refuse at the stations and the contractor loads it in gondola railroad cars and ships it to dumps outside the city.

At previous committee hearings Hewitt and loading station contractors have explained to the aldermen that the city pays for the refuse by the cubic yard in accordance with the yard content of the trucks which dump it at the tracks.

Brings Up Subject Again.

Yesterday Douglas brought up the subject again. Hewitt's own figures showed 8,130 cars were loaded last year with 1,505,000 cubic yards of refuse.

"That would be about 185 cubic yards to a car," he said. "What is the size of a car?"

"I'm not a freight handler. I don't know," said Hewitt.

James Creed, head of the city dumps, said the cars were 9 feet wide. Douglas just had said he never had seen one wider than 8 feet.

"Ho," said Hewitt, "You were wrong there."

"That is 10 per cent error for the eye," said Douglas.

"More like 12 per cent," returned Hewitt.

"Let's allow 2 per cent for Douglas stupidity," Ald. Douglas answered.

Douglas said he will ask state officials today for permission to dump garbage in the unused portion of the old Illinois and Michigan canal. When Hewitt ordered city trucks to dump there in 1934, Gov. Horner obtained an injunction stopping the operation on the grounds the canal was a navigable stream.

Senator Brooks.

Patriotic ceremonies before the fair grounds grandstand will start at 11 a. m. [central standard time]. An hour later Senator Wayland Brooks will make a 15 minute speech that may have special significance in view of the fight he is making in Washington, D. C., to keep America out of the European war. He will be followed to the speaker's stand by Gov. Dwight H. Green.

In addition to the political rally, visitors will see a million dollars' worth of farm animals contending for ribbons, cups, and cash prizes.

Harness races will be run in the afternoon.

Tomorrow has been designated homecoming day, dedicated to former residents of Illinois.

MR. YATES, ONCE PUSHED AROUND, GETS LED INSTEAD

Chicago Speeds Up Law, Just a Day Late.

Everybody chipped in to set things right yesterday, so J. W. Yates, a Philadelphia business man, wouldn't go back home thinking bad things about Chicago's drivers and its system of law and order.

Larry Stelzer.

Everybody gave him the run-around Monday and made the day a deep blue. But yesterday, after THE TRIBUNE printed his story, everybody did his best to straighten things out—including the man he was looking for.

It all started last Saturday night when Mr. Yates got the fenders of his automobile smashed at 57th street and the Outer drive. The driver of the other car drove on, but not before Mr. Yates took down the car's license number.

Troubles Continue.

Mr. Yates' troubles continued Monday when he tried to bring the driver to justice. The city police sent him to the park police. The park police said they couldn't arrest the driver without a warrant. At the Safety court he was told he would have to come in before 9 a. m. or wait until court was over.

Then yesterday the whole city seemed to rush to Mr. Yates' aid. Everybody was nice as pie. Everybody told Mr. Yates how sorry they were. Judge Francis Borrelli even let him sit beside him on the bench.

Then late yesterday afternoon the driver of the offending car gave himself up and said he couldn't wait to tell Mr. Yates how sorry he was, too. Judge Borrelli set the time for his apology as 11 a. m. today in the Safety court.

It's All a Mistake.

It was all a mistake, Larry Stelzer, 52 years old, of 2435 West 64th street, told the judge. All he heard was a slight scraping sound and he didn't think much damage was done.

"This is awful," Stelzer, an accordionist in a loop hotel bar, pleaded. "It seemed like such a little thing at the time. I was driving my friend's automobile. Her name is Mrs. Eleanor McCann. She lives at 3026 North Halsted street.

"I was waiting for the go ahead signal at 57th and the Outer drive when another car pulled out of the Museum driveway and scraped my fenders. Just a little scrape, it seemed like.

"Then I read THE TRIBUNE yesterday morning. I want to see Mr. Yates right away. I'm terribly sorry."

Mr. Yates, meantime, had decided to stay over another day.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Boy Who Made Good

CONDUCTOR HURT AS TRUCK RUNS INTO STREET CAR

Thomas Forkin, 52 years old, of 5528 Carpenter street, conductor on a southbound Western avenue street car, was seriously injured yesterday when a truck sidewiped the street car, knocking him from the platform to the street. The accident occurred as the car was halted in front of 4856 South Western avenue. Forkin was taken to Southtown hospital, where it was said he had suffered a fractured right arm and wrist and possible fracture of the skull. The truck driver, Paul Vlietstra, 20, of South Holland, was held by New City police and charged with reckless driving, driving without a license and passing a standing street car.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 566 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 400 were killed in Chicago, where 15,012 were injured in the same period.

FINES FAIL; JUDGE TO OPEN SCHOOL FOR MOTORISTS

Judge George Quilici of the Traffic court announced the establishment of a court school for motorists yesterday. Convinced that he can't teach them to obey the traffic regulations by fining them, he said, he is going to educate them in motoring. Judge Quilici said he will hold his first class the night of Aug. 27, with Chief Howard A. Becker of the Des Plaines police to help him teach. Motorists who would find the payment of a fine a hardship will be given the opportunity to attend the night school instead. School will be in session one night a month.

Maid Follows Husband, a Butler, in Death by Day

Mrs. Effie Diesch, 55 years old, died in Alice Home hospital, Lake Forest, yesterday. She and her husband, Peter, 70, were found unconscious in their home at 611 Sheridan road, Lake Bluff, on Monday, a bottle containing a sleeping potion nearby. Diesch, a butler, died shortly thereafter. Both he and his wife, a personal maid, had been in poor health, police said.

SHERIFF TELLS HOW HARD HE'S LOOKING FOR 3 LABOR GOONS

Sheriff Joseph J. O'Neill of Will county said yesterday that he still is looking for three business agents of the Teamsters' union in Joliet who face bail requirements of $5,000 each on charges of assaulting Fred Twietmeyer, Homewood dairy operator, last Friday. They are Howard and Elrie [Husky] Floyd and Jerry Dodge.

"We're still working," said the sheriff. "I want to catch those fellows."

Then he put his chief deputy, Gilbert Knater on the phone, to describe his efforts.

"I went to every place in town where they might be," Knater said. "Mostly taverns. Also to the homes of Howard Floyd and Dodge. Also to the munitions plant construction projects where Howard works, at Wilmington. Not a sign of them. They'll have to show up soon."

Meanwhile Twietmeyer continued delivery of milk in gallon and half gallon bottles to Joliet and Lockport stores without further molestation. At the Joliet union office it was said no new business agents had been hired.

THOMAS E. WELLS' WIDOW LEAVES 2 MILLION ESTATE

The estimated $2,000,000 estate of Mrs. Mary Wells, widow of Thomas E. Wells, pioneer Chicago packer, will be divided among 13 grandchildren under terms of her will, which was filed yesterday with Frank Lyman, clerk of the Probate court. Mrs. Wells, who died Aug. 6 at the age of 87 in her home at 835 Hill road, Winnetka, also made bequests of $10,000 each to the Presbyterian hospital and the Church Home for Aged Persons, and $5,000 to the Bethlehem Crèche Day nursery. The grandchildren are the children of Mrs. May Wells Noyes, Mrs. Albert H. Noyes, and Mrs. George D. Smith, and of John E. and Preston A. Wells, and of Thomas E. Wells, real estate dealer, who died last year.

2 EX-COUNCILMEN SENT TO PRISON IN BRIBERY CASE

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 12 (AP).—John Hamilton and Harry I. Dingeman, former Detroit city council members, who pleaded guilty of accepting bribes in the Herman Gardens housing project contracts, today were sentenced to three to ten years in prison.

Recorder's Judge Christopher E. Stein, in imposing sentence, told the two he was taking into consideration their confessions and was aware that "the shame of this has punished you far beyond my power to punish you."

Both confessed accepting money in return for voting to construct the housing project of concrete.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 12 [Special].—Don Dixon, a logger, fell 60 feet while climbing a guy wire to a spar pole at a Seaside, Ore., loggers exhibition but Dixon in a few minutes said it was all in a day's work and swaggered under his own power from a hospital where he had been taken against his protests. Hand over hand he climbed a guy wire nearly to the top of a spar pole but something went wrong. Suddenly several thousand spectators saw a hurtling body midway between ground and guy wire. He bounced off the top of a parked car. Mrs. Dixon thought he should be sent to a hospital which was done, but Dixon remonstrated violently a few minutes later, dashed from the hospital and in the morning went to work on his old job.

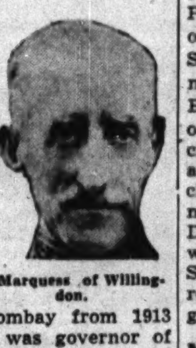
WILLINGDON, 74, 1ST VICTOR OVER GANDHI, IS DEAD

LONDON, Aug. 12 (AP).—The marquess of Willingdon, 74 years old, former governor-general of Canada and ex-viceroy of India, died today. He was credited with checkmating Gandhi's first moves in the direction of civil disobedience in India.



Marquess of Willingdon.

Lord Willingdon's first government job was as governor of Bombay from 1913 to 1919. Then he was governor of Madras until 1922 and in 1926 he went to Canada as governor-general. In 1931 he returned to India as viceroy.

Willingdon is survived by one son, Viscount Ratendone, 42, who succeeds to the title of his father. [Lord Willingdon was one of the few commoners ever created a marquess.]

SLEEP SICKNESS HITS 5 MIDWEST STATES; 84 DEAD

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 12 (AP).—Encephalitis, or sleeping sickness, has taken at least 84 lives and attacked more than 800 persons in five midwest states in the last two months, official reports showed today.

The North Dakota health department has listed 46 deaths and estimated 400 cases since outbreak of the disease. Minnesota has had 24 deaths and officially listed 366 cases today. South Dakota reported 10 deaths and 70 cases, Nebraska 4 deaths since July 28, and Iowa 10 cases.

Report Bubonic Death.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 12 (AP).—Bubonic plague, transmitted by fleas from squirrels, was advanced today as the cause of a second death. Dr. Albert Newton, county health officer, said the death of Lee Bostmyer, 5, probably was due to the plague, but that laboratory tests would not be complete for some time.

Employés of the club, which is said to be owned by Ed Vogel, former slot machine operator, were fined on gaming charges recently after a raid by county highway police.

PROF PROFFERS NEW SPECS AND A PEACE TREATY

Smiling lawyers hinted yesterday that Prof. Elton J. Moulton and Robert Sellery are about to light the pipe of peace, bury the hatchet and forget the shiner that Sellery is said to have worn after a dispute with the professor.

The lawyers didn't say their clients are going to exchange gifts. But they did say that Prof. Moulton is going to give Sellery a new pair of glasses.

Walter Hobbs is attorney for the professor, but he gave the honor of announcing the present to Allan Wolff Jr., attorney for Sellery. The attorneys were in the Evanston Municipal court for the hearing on Sellery's charge of assault and battery against Prof. Moulton.

The complaint mentioned that Prof. Moulton, a nationally known mathematician living at 1114 Colfax street, Evanston had, on or about June 5, then and there committed assault and battery upon Sellery, a resident of 1113 Grant street, Evanston.

Judge James M. Corcoran granted the request of Wolff and Hobbs for a continuance until next Tuesday.

Legends of Fireflies.

Aug. 12, 1941.

WITH fireflies still making their appearance after sundown and lighting up the darkness around the flower gardens, along hedgerows, and among shrubs on the Wheaton farm, it was only natural that some of the workers got into a discussion of the old will-o'-the-wisp story which involves the common firefly, or "beetle with a lantern." One of the men was telling us this week that he heard about the will-o'-the-wisp legend when he was a child and began to notice how the little night flying beetles with lights sparkled in the darkness.

The firefly, a common altho somewhat mysterious little insect, is found in many countries [they have some big ones in South America]. It always has intrigued people, so it isn't surprising that there are many different legends and stories about it in different parts of the world.

Leads Travelers Astray.

One of the stories [from a European country] is that "benighted" travelers lose their way because the will-o'-the-wisp [the winking little light of the firefly] bewitches them and leads them thru bogs, hedges, and ditches. The idea is that this twinkling little light of the firefly is so inviting and intriguing that people couldn't resist it once they followed it, and thus mothers advised their children never to run very far after the fireflies.

Sometimes the beetle "with the lantern" is called will-o'-the-wisp and in some countries the legend ascribed all those gleaming lights in the moors and bogs to a witchlike person called Jack o' Lantern. According to one story, "He will come up dancing and blinking his light, and running ahead he will lead people astray into quagmires or lose them on a lonely moor." Thus children were admonished by their parents never to wander near boggy moors after dark. The flashing light of this fearful creature of the night will surely bring them trouble if they do.

Indians Have Legends.

Altho no one can tell the origin of all the will-o'-the-wisp stories, or determine how long some of them have been told down thru the years, there isn't much doubt that the firefly and will-o'-the-wisp theme has held the interest of people for centuries, because even the Indians have an old story to account for the little lights which the firefly displays after dark. One old Indian legend relates that an Indian brave refused to marry the Indian girl chosen by his father. Instead he ran away with the girl of his choice. But the cruel father, possessing power even greater than a medicine man, turned his son into a frog and the daughter into a will-o'-the-wisp with a tiny light.

So the Indians believe that the little light of the firefly is really the broken hearted Indian maiden holding a little white light in front of her as she searches for her husband. She never finds him because the frog, frightened by her approach, always springs into the water when the light approaches. So [according to the Indians] night after night the faint glow from the Indian girl's lantern can be seen gleaming in the reeds and on the marshes. Some people call it will-o'-the-wisp or the firefly. But the Indians are sure it's the Indian girl seeking her husband.

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

PEEK INTO BRYCE CANYON THRILLS, AWES TRAVELER

One of Three Wonders in That Vicinity.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bryce Canyon National Park, Utah, Aug. 8 [By Mail].—After winding upward thru a tile red canyon, motorists and rail passengers on a bus sidetrip cross a forested plateau, with an altitude of 8,000 feet, that affords views of distant peaks and ranges. They arrive at a parking lot within a few steps of a brink.

A peak over the edge, prolonged into a stare of wonderment, discloses irregular spires rising almost to the rim from the floor of the canyon 3,000 feet below. To those who have read the park service pamphlet it's a dramatic picture of 200 million years of unusual geology. Without this information it's a thing of awe inspiring beauty, thickly clustered thin crags with strata of reds, pinks, and creams covering an amphitheater three miles long and two miles wide.

Parking Spaces Provided.

The visitors follow 20 miles of automobile road on this brim. There are parking spaces near lookouts. The main views are downward, altho from one lookout may be seen the tops of Navajo mountain, 80 miles to the east, and Trumbull mountain, 99 miles to the south. A few hardy visitors with more time to spend descend the canyon on horse and foot trails.

Bryce is one of three natural wonders in this vicinity which are receiving many first time visitors in this record season of travel to western parks. Zion National park is 70 miles southeast, and the north rim of the Grand canyon of the Colorado is 170 miles south. All are on bus tours that may be bought when the traveler buys his railroad excursion ticket.

In Zion the automobile road, a man made wonder, penetrates a canyon similar to Bryce. There are 11.5 miles of this remarkable highway, in places niched in almost vertical stone walls and for 1.6 miles tunneled thru a rock mountain with ventilation portals that also serve as window lookouts into a canyon. There are 20 miles of improved roads, exposing a different panorama with each turn of their winding courses.

Bryce a Young Canyon.

Bryce geologically is youthful. Zion is middle aged, its canyon deeper and broader from an erosion still continuing at a rate of 3 million tons of rock annually. Temperature changes, precipitation, and seepage cut into wrinkled walls of vermillion and white limestone, and the gushing Virgin river flushes the débris now as it did millions of years ago—a process that has carved a rough, very rough, "V" about 4,000 feet deep.

Lodge and cabin accommodations are available at both Bryce and Zion parks. Rates are somewhat higher than in other parts of the country. Sleeping cabins with private shower are $3.50 a day for one person and $4 for two. Table d'hote meals in the lodge dining room are 85 cents for breakfast, 90 cents for lunch, and $1.50 for dinner. Cafeterias are cheaper. A season auto entrance fee to both parks is $1.

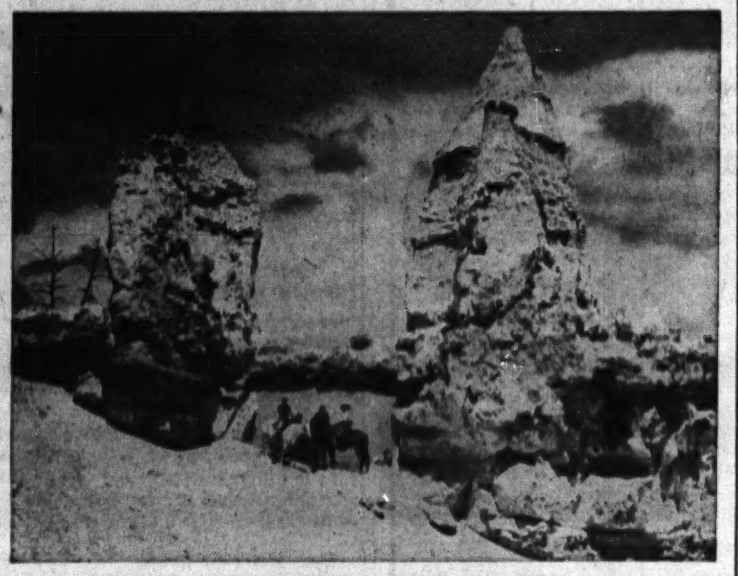
United Air Lines Places New Trip on Daily Basis

Increased business has caused the United Air Lines to place its new Daylight Flyer trip, from Chicago to the Pacific coast, on a daily basis. The service was started July 1 on the basis of five flights weekly. It permits travelers to leave this city at breakfast time and have dinner on the coast the same day.

Michigan Resort to Hold Water Frolic Next Sunday

Crystal Falls, Mich., Aug. 12 [Special].—This resort, in the center of an area of 300 lakes and a thousand miles of fishing streams, will hold its first annual water frolic next Sunday. The program is to include swimming and boat races, diving exhibitions, a baby parade, and the inevitable bathing beauty contest.

One Result of Erosion



It took nature many centuries to produce the strange effects in Bryce Canyon national park, southern Utah. Here the elements have carved a fantastic frieze in varying shades.

What can you tell me about the so-called head hunters of Papua?—E. H. T.

Tho still generally regarded as "savages," the natives of Papua, in southeastern New Guinea, have been brought under the control of the Australian government and have forsaken most of their head-hunting and other barbaric ways. Today they are chiefly interested in the arrival of tourists and the consequent profitable trade in curios. Port Moresby, capital of Papua, is a week's journey from Sydney, Australia. In the territory's hinterland the life remains primitive, but along the coastal areas the people are fairly well modernized. Their industries include pottery making, gardening, and fishing. But they still regard with wonder the strange customs of the white men who visit them.

BLAME TOURISTS FOR BANISHMENT OF BEAR FAMILY

Belton, Mont., Aug. 12 [Special].—Old Susie and her three cubs no longer roam the Going-to-the-Sun highway and endanger visitors to Glacier National park. They have been trapped by rangers and sent to a remote section of the park, where they will have to root for themselves instead of begging from autoists.

Susie first made the headlines when she and her triplets showed up this spring along the highway west of Logan pass. She broke into the news again when she turned mean and injured several bystanders after tourists had insisted on fondling the cubs. She will have a long walk before she gets her name into the papers a third time. Park officials don't believe she will take her offspring on such a trek.

Supt. D. S. Libbey says the banishment of Susie and her attractive cubs is just another instance of how tourists tend to damage Glacier's display of wild life by refusing to heed the warning against feeding or approaching the bears.

Waukegan Angler Wins Trout Trolling Derby

Calumet, Mich., Aug. 12 [Special].—Paul Harvey of 518 North Sheridan road, Waukegan, Ill., won the $500 first prize in the three weeks' Lake Superior trout trolling Derby which closed off Copper harbor, on the Keweenaw peninsula, Sunday. Harvey's fish weighed 22 pounds 4 ounces.

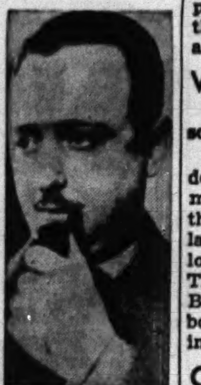
Among Current Mysteries

Crimes in Blackout

"The Case of the Constant Suicides," by John Dickson Carr. [Harpers, $2.]

"The Case of the Constant Suicides" takes the reader to Scotland during blackout nights where seemingly impossible crimes take place in the double locked top room of a stone castle tower. To relieve the background of terror, Mr. Carr introduces one of the hardest drinkers in mystery fiction—Colin Campbell — and "The Doom of the Campbells," one of the hardest hitting of Scottish beverages. Together they create some hilarious episodes.



John Dickson Carr.

Plenty of Violence

"Twelve Chinks and a Woman," by James Hadley Chase. [Howell-Soskin, $2.]

Readers who like mystery tales with terrific punch, violence, and gore will relish this drama of Key West, where two ruthless gangs fight it out. Dave Fenner, as tough as the worst hoodlum, clears up the weird smuggling of Chinese from Cuba by pretending to join one of the gangs. Mixed up in the mêlée is a beautiful blonde, the incarnation of evil. As swiftly paced as a sputtering machine gun, this book will hold the reader fascinated to the end.

Well Told Mystery

"I'll Eat You Last," by H. C. Branson. [Simon & Schuster, $2.]

In this well told mystery of the death of a former senator and his mistress-wife, the murderer makes the mistake of postponing until the last an intended victim who should logically have been done in earlier. That single slip is enough for John Bent, who makes his bow in this book. The tale is logical and satisfyingly alarming.

Clever Sleuthing Here

"While the Bells Rang," by Charles L. Clifford. [Crime Club, $2.]

A Texas ranch and a nearby army post on the Mexican border provide the setting for some clever sleuthing by Capt. Joe Wister and Rita Howell, both convinced of the innocence of Capt. Pete Hallam, sentenced to life imprisonment for a murder he did not commit. This is a first and very good mystery with a neat accompanying love story.

INSTALMENT XXVII.

SUSPECT.

Kathleen heard Toby early up and about. She was like a taut spring now. The moment she waked she had to get out of bed. No lying luxuriously staring out at the mountain leaning against the sky—no dreamy hour listening to the morning concert of the birds. She must be active or go crazy.

She put on sun suit and wrap and went downstairs. Tobey was staring at the radio in the big living room.

"Now what, Toby? Do you know it's only half past six?"

"Sure. But I've a lot of things to take care of before I go out."

"What, for instance?"

"Bill wants me to get him things with Hugo's finger prints. But it seems like the whole house is cleaned and polished."

She was a little sharp with him. It hurt her somehow to think of them examining Hugo's finger prints behind her back. Not that she had anything to fear from it. No, no, no.

"Naturally it is. You'd save your time if you came straight to me. I have Hugo's belongings taken from his cabin. His portable typewriter. It's black. Would that be any good?"

"Sure. Bill has white powder for dark things." Toby raced on as if aware of her feelings. "I wonder how I could get some of Jeanie's, too."

"Not so easy. You'll have to think of some trick."

Toby postponed this problem.

"I need notepaper without the Lakes End address on. I have to write a fan letter to Victor Higby. Bill wants it done in my writing, but I'll use his name and his address in New York. He'll send it there to be mailed. He thinks a local address wouldn't bring an answer. Help me, Kathleen. What shall I say?"

She produced a cheap 10 cent store pad used for memos, from her desk.

"Admire his work, of course, but if you want a reply inclose a stamped envelope and ask for some advice. Have you got one of the magazines?"

"Bill has them."

"Well, I'm no ace detective, but I'd make a guess writers are human, too, with human feelings. I'd read a story first."

"Yes, you're right. Shall I make some coffee? Susan isn't down."

They went into the pink and yellow kitchen together. It was the first thing that Kathleen had modernized when she moved into the house. Its gleaming efficiency and artistic beauty had been a joy to her when she had still been able to feel joy. Toby filled the percolator while she sat down in the yellow breakfast nook.

"What are Bill's plans for today? I suppose he'll want you and also the car?"

"Yes, Kathleen. He was going to develop his films last night. Today we have a lot of work on the prints. He has an appointment this afternoon to see Mrs. Thornley's house. I can be back then if you want me."

"I'd like the car this evening. I've got a date for dinner."

"O good, Kathleen. I call that sensible."

"You do? I'm glad. I'm going for a tête-à-tête with Wilkie Stokes, amateur expert on the art of murder."

"That man!" Toby came to the little table and looked at her earnestly. "Kathleen, I wouldn't. There's something funny about him. I've heard him laugh like he wasn't right in the head. No, you're wrong. He can't help you."

"Better turn the gas down. It's bubbling too furiously. I don't want his help. I think he's the murderer."

Toby leaped to the gas ring and came back to her.

"I don't. But I think you're sticking your neck out for trouble. Don't go, Kathleen. I don't like it."

"I must go," she said somberly. "I've no faith in this Boy Scout stuff on the mountain. I can't endure the doubt—delay. I must get moving."

"Don't go alone there. He's queer. He didn't do it, but I wouldn't trust him not to be difficult. Anything might happen.'"

"Why are you so sure he didn't do it?"

"I thought of him myself at first and I did some snooping. He was home all that evening nursing his spaniel that was having puppies. I got that from his housekeeper."

"She might be shielding him."

"Not her. You wouldn't see her for dust getting away if she thought she was living with a murderer."

"Just the same, Toby, I'm going. You could pour out the coffee now."

He got the big harlequin cups and saucers, the yellow jug of cream from the refrigerator and brought the percolator to the table. He dropped three lumps in his cup with three little splashes, but Kathleen took no sugar.

"If you're so sure, Kathleen, it might be a hunch. But let Bill handle him."

Kathleen sipped the fragrant coffee from the fragile china. She thought of Hugo drinking from a tin cup. Hugo who never harmed anybody. And Wilkie Stokes secretly smiling, raptly attentive to every word of evidence, every sign of emotion at the trial.

"Don't talk about it any more. My mind's made up."

"I suppose he has a telephone?"

"Of course."

"Then let me do this. I'll drop you there in the car. I'll call you on the phone at half past nine. If you come and answer that'll be all right. If he makes any excuse you've gone or you can't or won't speak I'll come and get you. How's that, Kathleen?"

She considered it. It might spoil something for Toby to break in. But it could be possible for her to be in a difficulty.

"All right. I think he's a murderer, but I think I know his motive. He wouldn't be interested in murdering me—nor anybody else in his own house under the eye of his housekeeper. But if it makes you feel better you can check up on the telephone."

"It would make me feel better——"

"Land sakes!" remarked Susan from the kitchen doorway. "Looks like some folks is getting awful independent."

Kathleen got up. "Come on, Toby. Out of this."

While Susan mixed the batter for the hot cakes, Kathleen walked barefoot over the dew drenched grass in the garden. Toby left her to take a quick dip in the lake. Kathleen's mind returned instantly to the task she had set herself. The words she would use to probe into Wilkie Stokes' secret. Belt would certainly be a critical word. Jeanie had been strangled with her belt. Storm might be another. What about forest? That could be critical or indifferent.

Toby departed immediately after breakfast and Kathleen settled with paper and pencil on the veranda. She began to write lists of words. She dug deep into her memory to bring up scraps of evidence recounted at the trial about the finding of the body. There was really pitifully little. She noted down pink as a critical word. Pink was the color of shirt Jeanie was wearing. Neck might be another, or was that too obvious? Stokes was unpleasantly intelligent.

When Susan came to tell her she had a caller, the interruption was almost painful.

"I can't see anybody this morning, Susan. Who is it?"

"That's what I told her. But she won't go. It's Mrs. Payson."

Jeanie's mother! Kathleen's heart lurched with apprehension. She wasn't afraid of anything or any one. But this could only mean a disagreeable interview. Becaue she shrank from it she forced herself to go thru it.

"If she really wants to see me, she'll insist on it sooner or later. Might as well get it over."

"As you say, Miss Kathleen."

Walpole's Skill Is Apparent in His Last Novel

"The Blind Man's House," by Hugh Walpole. [Doubleday-Doran, $2.50.] Published last Friday.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

Hugh Walpole, who died at the age of 57 last June 1, was one of England's most prolific as well as best novelists. He began an almost unbrokenly successful career at the age of 25 with "The Wooden Horse," and every year since 1909, with the exception of 1917, he had published at least one book.

When the pattern of his long literary career [tho too short life] is drawn, it is evident that like his fellow countryman, Arnold Bennett, he published lesser novels almost periodically between the more important ones by which his memory will be kept green in the literary histories—the Cathedral series and the Herries series. The in-betweens were never negligible novels, nor bad ones, for Hugh Walpole, from the first moment his pen was put to paper, had never told a story badly nor ineptly. They were merely impermanent, shall we say, serving their destiny as excellent novels of the moment, superseded without regret.

"The Blind Man's House" is one of those lesser works of a great novelist—infinitely better than the best work of a poor novelist. It is faintly reminiscent of the author's horror period, when terror lurked skilfully behind each page and the reader's suspense was almost a dynamo to turn the page. There is an ominousness about the tale from the very beginning. But it is a gentle shadow rather than a really tragic one which falls upon the blind man's house and the quiet little English village.

Mr. Walpole gives his readers a real sense of the extraperceptional quality of blindness, and auras his hero with it. The plot is not sensational. A man, blind from the last war, married for the second time and to a much younger woman, brings his household to the village where he visited as a child, and in that household love and misgivings mingle. All's well that ends well, but for most of the book all is definitely not well.

In the little English village, with its gossip and its intrigue, and in the characters, sensed and drawn with superb skill, Hugh Walpole proves that he was one of today's masters of the novel technique.

Incidentally, "The Blind Man's House" is highly beguiling—just the thing to keep your mind insulated against the world and the weather.

WPA in Mississippi

"Men Working," by John Faulkner. [Harcourt-Brace, $2.50.] Published last Thursday.

John Faulkner, younger brother of Novelist William Faulkner, has gone his older brother one better in the business of satirically picturing the poor whites of Mississippi. In his first novel he has written the funniest and the saddest tale of shiftlessness and insecurity yet to be done. At the same time he has kidded the shovels out from under the WPA, or the "W P and A" as they call it in Mississippi. John Faulkner, himself a supervisor on various work projects, gathered his material first hand, and his publishers swore to him that he would never have to go back on WPA once his book was published. For one reason, he wouldn't dare to do so.

The Taylor family is share cropping, and the crop is the best since 1920, when news comes of the bonanza of the "W P and A" in town, with its mirages of "raddios," "cyars," and $26 a month cash money. So the Taylors get up and git.

Their landlord speaks of their departure thus: "This makes seven families I've lost in a week. This WPA is ruining the whole country. You can't get a man to stay with you long enough to make a crop, and when you do get one he's been leaning on one of those WPA shovels so long all he's good for is to stand in a watermelon patch for a scarecrow."

The Taylors consist of Paw and Maw and their "seven-eight-nine children" that nobody can rightly keep track of. Their eldest is Rinno, 21, weighing less than 50 pounds, with a beard but without either speech or sense, lying strapped to a pallet so he won't bruise his bones. He shook Paw's faith in doctors because, he says: "The only time we ever had a doctor was with Rinno when he was born, and I've allus been kind of disappointed in Rinno." There is Virginia, who, Paw says, "ain't what you'd call a godly girl." Also there is crippled Buddy, who loves to draw pictures and adores Hub [the only two appealing characters in the book], as well as assorted others.

Into the city they go and Paw onto WPA. Then there follows a series of almost comic strip adventures which break the reader's heart as they make him guffaw. The Taylors never seemed to mind, nor did the members of the seven other families which crowd themselves into the five and six rooms of a house they "rent" by the simple process of living there. Utterly improvident, asking little of the world except a good radio and a car and credit at the grocery, these "Men Working" provide John Faulkner with material for heroic swashbuckling satire. The WPA is here fictionally kidded by an expert.

Short Stories of Reno

"Temporary Address, Reno," by Faith Baldwin. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50.] Published Monday.

In seven short stories interlocking in time and casually in characters, Faith Baldwin pictures the divorce mill of Reno. These stories are Faith Baldwin at her best, popular, surepenned teller of tales of people who have an honest reality about them.

All types are here, from the woman who goes back to Reno as tho to a homestead—getting her fourth divorce—to the girl who kills herself because she can't face life without her husband. There are women who are glad, women who are sad to be there, women who are leaving to marry again, women who are sick of the word marriage, all of them lonely, most of them hectically trying some anodyne.

English Novelist

Amusing Little Book

"I Had a Dog and a Cat," by Karel Capek. [Macmillan, $1.50.]

Karel Capek, the famous Czecho-Slovakian playwright, has done an amusing little book about dogs and cats. It is a combination of essays for grownups and little stories for children, but the moods of both are the same, and altho children might not be able to manage most of the essays, grownups can take and will enjoy taking the juvenile portions.

Mr. Capek says the obvious things about disorderly puppies, growing—and gnawing—dogs, and dogs' mastery over their masters, but he says them in a new and personal manner. The parts of this little book are amusing and the sum of the parts is delightful.

Novels Portray England Under Shadow of War

"Shadow of Wings," by Stella Morton. [Harpers, $2.50.] Published last Friday.

"Ask Me No Questions," by Ursula Orange. [Morrow, $2.50.]

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

These two novels, quite different in mood, tempo, and style, are about two English families on the eve of the war. They present two views of the same problem; they show the domestic dilemmas that occur when the normal routine of the household is destroyed.

The Manners family, in "Shadow of Wings," is a delightful one any reader will enjoy meeting. Besides Caroline, the mother, and John, the detective-story-writing father, there are five children, each with his or her own little comedy or tragedy. They live simply in a rambling old house in the country.

Tony, the eldest son, marries the daughter of the high and mighty and hugely wealthy Batemans, who have been in the habit of literally lording it over the entire community. They have never impressed Tony's two spinster aunts, however, who declare he is too good for a mere Bateman, being a descendant, on their side, of the Irish kings! These impoverished but independent aunts provide some of the most entertaining bits in the story.

Then there are Virginia, the married daughter, and her baby, Sally; Jason, who slaves in the village bank, but longs to be a painter; Judy, who is in the midst of a sordid, unhappy love affair, and Tim, who wants to be a doctor some day. Over them all is the shadow of the war, which they face quietly and bravely.

"Shadow of Wings" is a warm hearted, wholesome novel, as pleasant as an English rose's fragrance.

In "Ask Me No Questions" Ursula Orange describes quite a different household. It is made up of a man and his wife, who are not on the best of terms, and of the evacuees who live with them, a sophisticated young London matron, her child, and nurse, and an ignorant, stupid woman of the slums and her baby.

Their daily predicaments are presented with humor and a light touch. With the exception of Constance, in whose house they all live, and who is the only genuine, sincere character in the book, one doesn't care overmuch what happens to them.

Writes of Europe

"The Skies of Europe," by Frederic Prokosch. [Harpers, $2.50.] Published last Friday.

In this novel of prewar Europe [pre-this war, that is], Frederic Prokosch writes so successfully in the first person that the reader feels as if he were reading not a novel but a volume of very intimate reminiscences.

The hero idly wanders about Europe—Paris, Munich, Florence, a little town in Austria, and Spain during the civil war there—writing occasional articles but mostly just watching the world go by. He has one soul-shaking love affair with a Russian girl, which started as a "water-color friendship," the author says. That phrase "water-color" almost perfectly describes "The Skies of Europe." It reproduces life, in its inferences it interprets life, and it is written in a beautiful, often memorable, prose. But there is something insubstantial, like a very fine water color which, however beautiful, never gives one a sense of power.

Hundreds of wandering Americans must have seen Europe during the late 1930s as the hero of "The Skies of Europe" saw it, restless, disturbed, vaguely unhappy, but unconscious of its impending fate. Mr. Prokosch fictionally synthesizes the vague unrest of the '30s. F. B.

Gershwin Song Book.

Eighteen of George Gershwin's most famous songs, with his own special arrangements for the piano, are included in "George Gershwin's Song Book" [Simon & Schuster, $2.50].

California Vividly Depicted in This Pair of Volumes

"A Mirror for Californians," by Oliver Carlson. [Bobbs-Merrill, $2.50.]

It would be hard to find two better pictures of California in its chameleonlike chromatic changes than in these two entertaining books.

Prof. LaPiere's story of a Chinese boy's quest for the holy grail of modernism is at once a wise and almost profound sociological study, a heartwarming historical novel, and an entrancing adventure story. Lew Gan comes to San Francisco seeking a new path from old ways. His ventures fail but he starts afresh. He matures, he has children. He understands the motives behind tong wars, but never can quite fathom the occidental mind. And in the end he goes home with his dying thought a wish for the old ways of his youth. Beautifully restrained, and bearing the inescapable mark of authority, this book reaches no conclusion, points no moral. The reader does that because he has had an intimate view of an interesting life.

Mr. Carlson's vigorous, amusing style makes "Mirror for Californians" a treasure chest of good reading and thoughtful investigation. He attacks the question of whether it is "necessary to be crazy to be a Californian," and comes up with a revealing analysis of the economic, political, geographical, and psychological causes of the state's amazing array of strange phenomena. It's a clear and brilliant mirror. W. D.

Holland-Castle Park Horse Show Announced for Aug. 27

BY JUDITH CASS.

GOOD news to the summer colonies across the lake is the announcement that the 19th annual horse show of the Holland-Castle Park Horse Show association will be held on Wednesday, Aug. 27. This oldest of Michigan's amateur horse shows will be held on the lawn of the castle at Castle Park, and over the golf course.

The outside course over the golf links is about a half mile test, using growing hedges. Stone walls, natural rail fences, farm gates, farm draw bars, and an interesting drop jump over the road are included in the course. No wings have been used for more than 10 years, making conditions similar to those met in the hunting field.

Carter P. Brown of Tryon, N. C., and Castle Park is chairman of the senior committee of the show. Included on the junior committee are Miss Mary Goletz of Oak Park, as secretary; Philip Frye of Glencoe, as treasurer, and Carter Wilkie Brown. W. Brock Fuller of Milwaukee and Dr. E. P. Hutton of Michigan State college will be the judges.

Top Flight Hunters from Four States to Exhibit.

The informal show draws top flight hunters from Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin. Mrs. Louis F. Swift Jr. and Miss Maxine Cooper of Wheaton and Hinsdale will be exhibiting, and so will members of the families of Ernst Mahler and Jack Kimberly of Neenah, Wis. The latter is M. F. H. of the Tryon hounds.

To take care of the sudden influx of horses big tents are put up around the Castle Park stables and grounds, giving the setting a circus atmosphere. The show will start at 10 o'clock in the morning with children's classes. There will be a buffet luncheon at noon and a dance afterward on the outdoor lake front platform. The proceeds will go, as usual, to the Crippled Children's fund of Holland.

Mrs. Fred W. Fairman is going to Castle Park this week to visit her daughter, Mrs. Edward F. Hamm Jr., at her summer home there. Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Cooper III. have taken the cottage that belongs to Mr. and Mrs. James P. Gillies, formerly of Winnetka, but now of Rye, N. Y. The Luther and the Albert H. Barbers, the junior Rush C. Butlers, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Greeley, and the Maurice H. Needhams are other cottage owners.

Mr. and Mrs. Needham are not up at Castle Park now as they waited for the arrival of their newest grandchild, the baby daughter born yesterday to their daughter, Mrs. James R. Getz, and Mr. Getz. The former Betsy Needham and the baby, who has a little sister, Susan, are at St. Luke's hospital.

The George Sunderlands to Visit New Granddaughter.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sunderland of Hubbard Woods will be leaving the last of the month for Oakland, Cal., to see their new granddaughter, born on Aug. 8 in Oakland. The baby is the daughter of Lieutenant Commander William Onahan Gallery and Mrs. Gallery [Elizabeth Sunderland]. Lieutenant Commander Gallery is stationed at the Alameda naval air station in Alameda, Cal.

There seems to be no lull this season for the debutante crowd as midsummer travels fill up the chinks between parties. Miss Frances Clow is entertaining a trio of her fellow debutantes and several beaux from the east at the Island club in Wisconsin. Miss Mary Cornelia Aldis, Miss Shirley Hopkins, and Miss Joan Peabody are guests of Miss Clow and her parents, the Kent S. Clows, all this week, returning home on Saturday or Sunday.

The Clow family departed for the Island club the first of this month. Miss Frances plans to return to Lake Forest about Aug. 23, and her parents will follow her several days later with Kent Jr. and Billy.

Nearby Summer Theaters Now at Height of Season.

Summer theater, beloved alike by the vacationers who attend its performances and the actors appearing in them, is at the height of its season at several summer colonies near Chicago. At Michiana Shores Mrs. Vallance Austin Cooper, who helped to found the summer theater there last season, has organized a Children's theater to give Saturday afternoon performances.

The opening play was "The Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe," and later this month the young actors will present "Comrades Courageous" and "Blah Blah Black Sheep." Among the youngsters appearing in the cast are Joanne Haven, Sally Cole, Eve Bartlett, Sissy Glass, Bobby Hirsch, Martin Alderman, and Paul Urnes. A Chicago boy, 15-year-old Bob Boswell, is stage manager.

Alice Gerstenberg's new play, "Inside Out," is having such a success at the Village summer theater in Hinsdale that its run will be extended thru Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Miss Emily Goehst, Mrs. Paul Steinbrecher, Frank O'Hara,

Looking at Hollywood
By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 12.—"Ball of Fire," Samuel Goldwyn's new picture for Barbara Stanwyck and Gary Cooper, is supposed to be—as practically everybody knows by now—about a professor and a burlesque queen. Actually, the way it is turning out it is "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," and how it got that way is an interesting example of how a director works. The business of being a good director goes far deeper than just telling handsome stiffs what to do in front of a camera; for the director, even more than actors or writers, must brood hardest and longest over the characters in the plot.

The idea for "Ball of Fire" was the notion of having Cooper, a professor, assigned to write an encyclopedia article on show slang, and having him encounter a handsome stripper during his research. Then it was batted around between Charles Brackett and Billy Wilder, the scenarists, and Howard Hawks, the director. Pretty soon there was a whole encyclopedia staff of eight professors—and one day Hawks realized that Stanwyck was Snow White and the other profs, outside Cooper, were taking on the character of the dwarfs. So they've been written and cast that way. Oscar Homolka is Doc; S. Z. Sakall, Dopey; Richard Haydn, Bashful; Tully Marshall, Grumpy; Albrey Mather, Happy; Henry Travers, Sleepy; and Leonid Kinsky, Sneezy. Can't you visualize 'em?

Howard Hawks has moved to the Goldwyn lot after a triumph at Warner's. He directed "Sergeant York," which is on the way to becoming the biggest moneymaker since "Gone with the Wind." Movie business men are talking soberly of a $10,000,000 gross for the picture, and maybe $15,000,000.

Hawks, 6 feet 1, age 46, an athlete, gray haired, has an air of scholarly distinction and good manners that is unmatched in Hollywood. He and Norman McLeod, another scholarly looking guy, are the two quietest directors in the movies. When Howard was discussing "York" scenes with the taciturn Gary Cooper you couldn't hear anything five feet away. Yet, despite his soft manner, Hawks has a whim of iron. Like most old line director-producers, he insists upon independence, picks his spots, takes no interference. He disagreed with Howard Hughes over the filming of "The Outlaw," Hughes' story of Billy the Kid, and broke his partnership. Hughes finished the picture alone—and Hawks moved over to the memorable "Sergeant York."

There were three Hawks brothers in the movies—Howard, Bill, and Kenneth. Bill, now 40, is another top-line producer-director; Kenneth was killed several years ago in an airplane crash while directing a picture. Howard was born in Goshen, Ind., where his father was a well-off paper mill owner. He went to Phillips-Exeter and Cornell [Bill went to Yale]. During one vacation from Cornell, Howard came to Hollywood, got a job as a prop boy at Famous Players-Lasky. When World war I. came, he enlisted, became an aviator.

After the war, Hawks ducked the paper business and returned to Hollywood—with a $150,000 inheritance. This he invested in pictures with Marshall Neilan directing, and the bank

ROOSEVELT SAID:

In a speech to the nations of the western hemisphere on Oct. 12, 1940, President Roosevelt said:

"The clear facts have been stated over and over again. This country wants no war with any nation. This hemisphere wants no war with any nation. The American republics are determined to work in unity for peace just as we work in unity to defend ourselves from attack.

"We arm to defend ourselves. The strongest reason for this is that it is the strongest guarantee for peace."

Ravinia Gives String Quartet Real Ovation

BY EDWARD BARRY.

At Ravinia park last night the Budapest String quartet began the final week of the 1941 Ravinia festival under conditions and amid surroundings that strongly emphasized the note of sadness and farewell.

There was an autumnal sharpness in the air, the surrounding woods were black and empty in the early dark, and the katydids were going like mad. As if this were not enough, the otherwise bare stage was piled with Christmas trees.

Chamber music is a notoriously hard thing to do a volume business on. All the more remarkable, then, was the crowd of 1,200 or more that came last night.

These people found quickly that their faith in the judgment of the festival association was justified. The opening work Haydn's quartet in G, Op. 77, No. 1] was performed with amazing technical skill. Such are the unity and mutuality of the Budapest String quartet that the most subtle progressions from soft to loud and the most delicate effects of shading can be achieved without harm to the texture of the tone. And this tone itself is austerely lovely.

Of course, one could ascribe much of this excellence to the long association of the four musicians. Yet in the work which followed—the Mozart quintet for two violins, two violas and cello—the quartet assimilated Violist Milton Preves of the Chicago Symphony orchestra for the extra part, and still there was no lessening of the quality of the performance.

The concert closed with the quartet in D Minor of Schubert. An ovation of the kind virtually never heard at chamber music concerts followed. There was actually stamping mixed in with the applause.

The Budapest String quartet consists of Josef Roismann, Alexander Schneider, Boris Kroyt, and Mischa Schneider, playing first and second violin, viola, and cello, respectively. It will be heard again tomorrow and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoon.

AT GRANT PARK

The Chicago Symphony orchestra played a unique concert in Grant park last night, for the program was limited to overtures. It was arranged and conducted by Hans Lange, associate conductor of the orchestra.

Shrewdly planned, the sequence of overtures managed to be steadily engrossing by alternating pieces that are dramatic, sparkling, splashy, or ethereal. Such are the scores written to precede five operas and one play: "Iphigenia in Aulis," "The Magic Flute," "Benvenuto Cellini," "Fidelio," "Lohengrin," and "A Midsumer Night's Dream."

The orchestra was in fine fettle, preserving with few lapses the excellent form it maintained during last week's Ravinia concerts. Mr. Lange's sound, conservative tempos for the 18th century music were satisfying. Berlioz' overture to "Benvenuto Cellini" was given a particularly expert and musical reading.—R. E.

This Is Last Day to Write for Bid to Sally's Next Party

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

If you boys and girls don't get busy today, you'll be too late to win invitations to see the White Sox in action on Aug. 21!

Tomorrow morning I'm going to decide upon the fifty boys and fifty girls who will attend the Sox-Boston game with me next week, so if your letter isn't on my desk you'll be out of luck. Any boy or girl is eligible to write in for an invitation, but I'm looking for honest-to-goodness White Sox fans.

I'm interested in having as my guests those youngsters who'd have the best time at this sort of treat. If you can write a letter which will convince me that this party would be more fun for you than anything else you can think of maybe you'll be a winner.

When writing, you must be sure to tell me your full name, your address, and your age. Please write your address carefully, because sometimes we find good letters which would be winners, except for the fact that we can't make out the addresses.

Each child must write his or her own letter—those written by parents or friends cannot be accepted. You don't have to worry about your spelling or grammar, because all I want to know is whether you'd like to come to this party.

The address is Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago, and tomorrow is the deadline, so if your letter hasn't been mailed, don't wait another minute to start it on its way to me.

Smith College Club Plans Day in the Country.

A children's carnival, a box luncheon, and all manner of outdoor games will be among the rustic charms of a day in the country planned by the Evanston-North Shore Smith College club. To make further plans for the outing on Sept. 13 at Blythefield on Melody road in Lake Forest, the club's scholarship benefit committee met yesterday in the home of Mrs. E. Randolph Harrington of Winnetka.

Mrs. Francis G. Fabian Jr. will supervise the children's carnival. Among the wares to be sold are assorted treasures, which will be collected by Miss Barbara Hobart. Miss Margot Webbe will be in charge of the bridge party, and luncheon plans are under Mrs. Ansel M. Kinney's direction. A group of former Smith college "grass cops," captained by Miss Jean Delaney, will be on duty to see that everything runs smoothly. Co-chairmen of the benefit are Mrs. Clarence Boyd Jones, whose mother, Mrs. E. V. L. Brown, will give a play-reading, and Mrs. Norman McClave. Blythefield is the home of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Baggot Jr.

Mrs. Barton R. Gebhart Home After Holiday.

Mrs. Barton R. Gebhart and her two daughters, Gloria and Ann Ridgway, have returned from Long Lake Lodge, Phelps, Wis., where they spent most of July. Mr. Gebhart joined them for two week-ends. Mrs. Gebhart's mother, Mrs. Helen Jenkins Masters, and sister, Mrs. Marcia Masters Jennings, have taken a house this summer in Bannockburn. In the fall they may go to California with Mrs. Jennings' little daughter, Marcia.

Mrs. Warren W. Shoemaker, president of the Garden Club of Illinois, has gone to Springfield to attend the state fair today, tomorrow, and Friday. With her went Miss Elizabeth Howland, Mrs. J. Wilson McAllister, Mrs. Henry W. Shedd, and Mrs. Raymond Knotts, to represent the club. They and Mrs. T. J. Knudson of Springfield, resident chairman of the Lincoln Memorial Garden at Springfield, will be found in the Garden club headquarters at the fair each day.

★ THRU THE LOOKING GLASS ★

There are several good reasons why frothy dusting power is one of the most popular of all beauty aids in summer. It's cooling against the skin, it cloaks its user delicately in a scent, and it makes the necessary evil of snug foundation garment feel less binding.

One of the minor sensations of the season is dusting powder in a mitt. That idea isn't exactly new, but this one is refillable—and women take to that notion because it's so economical.

The mitt is pretty. One side is silk in a floral pattern, the other white toweling. It's thru the toweling that the powder sifts as you pat yourself after your bath, and the whole thing is washable. Colors are yellow with a tiny rose pattern, white with blue, pink with rose, and blue with pink.

The powder is filmy fine and very fragant, in two scents, one the ever popular apple blossom, the other a gay bouquet. It comes in a little packet, the contents of which you dump into the mitt.

WEDDINGS

Lieut. J. Rockefeller Prentice, a grandson of the late John D. Rockefeller, and Miss Abbie Cantrill of Chicago, were married in Tennessee Monday, according to word received yesterday by Mrs. Charles A. Chapman of Western Springs, a sister of the bride. Miss Cantrill, a receptionist in the law firm where Prentice was an attorney before entering the army, is the daughter of William O. Cantrill of Freeport. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Parmalee Prentice, his mother, Alta, being a daughter of the late John D. Rockefeller. Lieut. Prentice is stationed at Camp Forrest, near Tullahoma, Tenn., as an officer of the 124th field artillery.

Announcement has been made of the marriage last Thursday of Miss Edna Louise Colbert of San Francisco and Dr. Truman W. Brophy III., son of Mrs. Raymond Wilson of Palm Springs, Cal., and grandson of Mrs. Bernard A. Eckhart of Lake Forest. The wedding took place in the chapel of the Fourth Presbyterian church. Dr. Brophy and his bride have gone east on a wedding trip. Dr. Brophy's first wife was the former Jane Condon.

[ADVERTISMENT]

Your Daughter Has a Right to Know

It is every mother's duty to tell her daughter physical facts. How much better that she learn them from you, rather than from girls her own age. In feminine hygiene, facts may be distorted, or wholly untrue. Result, many brides use over-strong solutions of acids which can actually burn or scar delicate tissues. Today, there is no need to use such deadly solutions. Science has given us Zonite. Non-poisonous, non-caustic, yet kills germs, bacteria on contact. Actually destroys undesirable odors. Protects personal daintiness. Most important, safe for delicate tissues. Over 20,000,000 bottles already bought. Free Book Tells Intimate Facts. Give your daughter this frankly written booklet, "Feminine Hygiene Today," which you can get FREE, sent to you postpaid in plain wrapper. Looking at Hollywood By John Chapman roll soon was half a million. And almost just as soon afterward the bank roll was zero, so Howard talked Jesse Lasky into making him story editor on the Lasky lot. Later he was story editor at Metro, then went to Fox, where he became a director one day when another director fell ill.

Hawks movies: "Dawn Patrol," pioneer air picture; "Scarface," first gangster flicker; "The Criminal Code," "Come and Get It," "His Girl Friday," and many more.

It's up to a director, even more than to writers and actors, to make people and events believable. I asked Hawks what was his toughest problem in "Sergeant York," and he said it was making the roistering York get religion in a believable manner. And this brings up a notion of his about movie making: "You don't make a scene. Let the public make it. The public knows more about movies than you do. The average customer sees three times as many films as I do, for instance." York's getting religion was, finally, a simple event—a bolt of lightning which neatly avoided any troublesome discussion of religious philosophy and which allowed the public to discover for itself that Alvin York had become a God-fearing man.

I said I liked the performance of Margaret Wycherly and Joan Leslie as York's mother and sweetheart, and Hawks told me a bit about them. Miss Leslie, he reasoned, was a newcomer and a youngster and, in Gary Cooper, she was playing against one of the most vivid personalities of the screen. Her one chance, he told her, would be to take the offensive in all scenes with Coop—to attack and keep on attacking. She did this and the result shows on the screen.

Hawks particularly admires Miss Wycherly's performance—tight, laconic, slow. He felt sure she had devised a fine character, but as the rushes were viewed others begged him to make her speed up. "She talks so slowly," they said, "that people will become bored." Hawks refused to interfere with Miss Wycherly. "People," he predicted, "won't be bored. They'll be hanging on her every word and waiting for the next one." He was right.

500 Automobiles, $1,000 Cash Needed for Orphans' Outing

Five hundred automobiles and 12 buses still are needed to transport 5,000 orphans, crippled children and old people to Riverview park next Wednesday for their 37th annual outing, Charles J. Retterer, president of the Orphans' Automobile Day association, said yesterday.

Private car owners who volunteer to drive a carload of orphans of old people to and from the picnic grove will be assigned to the institutions nearest their residences, promised John P. Keating, chairman of the transportation committee. Headquarters are at 5637 North Ashland avenue, Longbeach 2247 and 2248.

L. C. Smith, former president of the association, who is in charge of arrangements for the crippled children, said the Dorothy Kahn club will transport nearly 500 crippled youngsters. Nearly $1,000 also is needed to defray the cost of refreshments, favors, and entertainment, Mr. Retterer added. Those who wish to contribute are asked to mail checks or dollar bills to the association's treasurer, Nate Jacobs, 209 Jackson boulevard.

Book List Is One Teen Age Will 'Take To'

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.

Certain current adult novels, biography, adventure, murder mystery, and poetry are suitable reading for some teen age children. To try to make a selection here would be almost too much of an undertaking. That is a task I shall have to turn over to you. Judge from those you have yourself been reading, the books your friends may tell you of, the reviews you read, and the advice of your librarian.

But as a background for such books are others that have proved themselves thru the years. Some are classics, some old, some modern, and practically all obtainable in libraries.

Kim, by Rudyard Kipling.

Falmouth for Orders, by Alan J. Villiers.

Voyage of the Martin Connor, by Oswald Kendall.

Captain Blood, by Rafael Sabatini.

Greenmouth, by John Buchan.

Treasure Island, by Robert Louis Stevenson.

Porto Bello Gold, by A. D. Howden-Smith.

The Native's Return, by Louis Adamic.

North to the Orient, by Anne Morrow Lindbergh.

Wilderness, by Rockwell Kent.

Life With Father, by Clarence Day.

Novels and so forth, current and modern and "classic":

Owen Johnson's Stories of Lawrenceville.

Jeeves Stories, by P. G. Wodehouse.

And:

Numerology

By Evelyn Holmes

Aug. 13, 1941.

Universal Day—Get all those last minute things cleared up so your "must do" list is blank for tomorrow

Keywords—Diplomacy and coöperation are two of the best keywords for number 2. If you remember these you can't go far wrong. It means using tact in your relationships, and using the most agreeable means of working in partnership. You can see that this covers your relationships in the office and home. Remember that 2 is two 1s, and that there must be a balance of power and an agreement in order to have harmony. Number 2 is domestic, it is the number of loyalty and faithfulness, but on the negative side is restlessness, anxiety, discontent, and duality. If you let the dual nature of the number rule you, then you will be vacillating and find it hard to make up your mind. Keep the undecisiveness of the number under control. Play up the sympathy and patience for which the number stands.

A team-of-four contest offers an excellent opportunity to compare players, this, of course, applying specifically to those cases in which a hand has been bid identically at both tables. Note the following deal:

West, dealer.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 heart
1 spade	3 hearts	Pass	4 hearts
Pass	Pass	Pass

At both tables the play went as follows:

West opened the king of spades and, when East played the seven and declarer false-carded the six, the spade ace was cashed. On East's failure to echo, West shifted to the diamond ten. Declarer won and drew three rounds of hearts, then cashed the two remaining diamonds and the queen of spades, discarding a club from dummy. Now, with spades and diamonds stripped from the North-South hands, both declarers led a club and went right up with the ace.

At one table, East made the "normal" follow-suit play with the nine spot, and by so doing sealed his own doom. A low club from dummy threw him on lead with the king and left him without a safe exit card. His forced diamond return was ruffed in dummy, while declarer discarded his own losing club.

At the other table, East refused to be trapped. When declarer played dummy's ace of clubs, East nonchalantly threw his king on the trick! He realized that if South had the club ten this would do no good but, by the same token, if South had that card no defense could be successful.

The one thing that East could guard against was being thrown on lead and forced to make a ruinous return. This East did by unblocking his club king.

Declarer now was helpless. He could not return to his own hand without using his last trump. Since West still had a spade, it would do no good to do this in order to lead a club toward the jack. As his only hope, declarer led a low club from dummy, praying that East had had the K-Q blank. But West overtook East's nine spot with the ten and cashed the queen for the setting trick.

Tomorrow's Hand.

A beef heart is naturally a tough piece of meat, because it's the most exercised muscle of the animal, and tenderness in meat is largely governed by the amount of exercise the part received while "on the hoof."

But a beef heart can be cooked to delicious tenderness by the braising method. A stuffed beef heart will serve four.

STUFFED BEEF HEART.

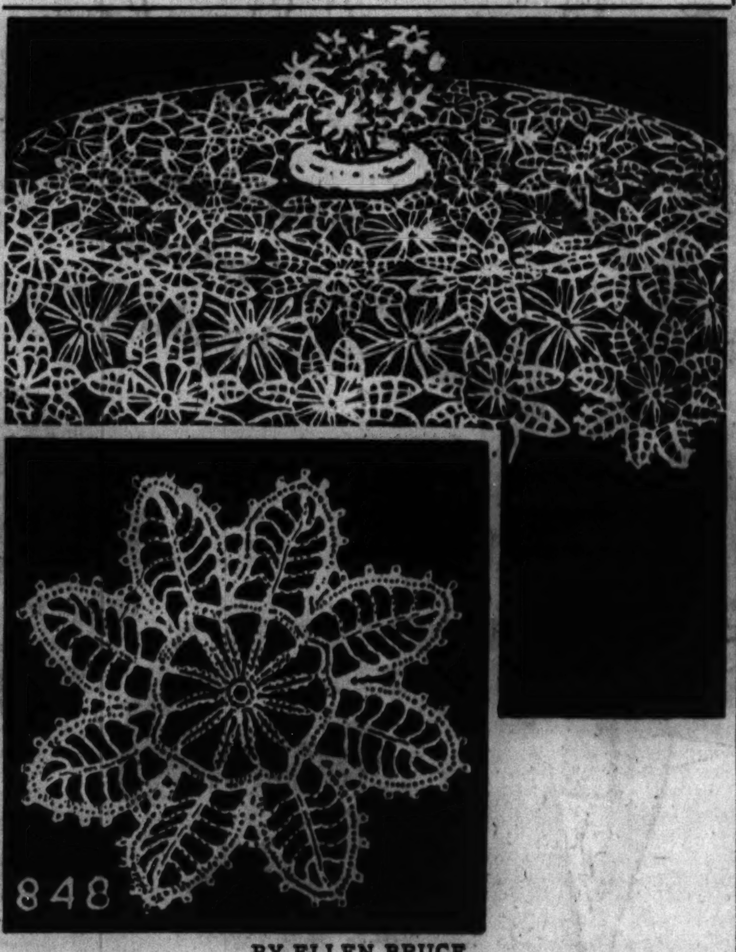
Wash the heart in warm water and cut away arteries and veins. Soak the heart in sour milk for an hour, if you have sour milk. This step isn't necessary, but increases the tenderness of the cooked heart. Fill with bread stuffing seasoned with celery leaves and chopped onion. Dredge heart in flour and brown all around in a little hot fat. Add a small amount of water or meat stock, cover the pan, and cook very gently, at simmering temperature, adding more liquid from time to time as it cooks off. Cook for 3 to 3½ hours, or until heart is tender. Thicken the stock with flour mixed with cold water, and flavor it with prepared mustard. Place heart in serving dish and pour sauce around it, or serve sauce separately if it is going to cause any difficulty in carving.

Baked "French fries" aren't French fries at all, but they have the same appearance. To serve four, cut four peeled potatoes into strips and put them into a buttered baking pan which has a cover. Sprinkle with salt and paprika and dot with butter. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 50 minutes, or until potatoes are tender.

FRESH PEACH AND GINGER SALAD.

Use half a peeled, large, fresh peach for each salad. Brush with lemon juice to prevent discoloration. Place on chicory, lettuce, or watercress and pour a little honey French dressing over each serving. Sprinkle finely chopped candied ginger over the peaches.

Oak Leaf Medallion



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

The oak leaf pattern which creates this exceptionally popular tablecloth is fun to make and ranks among the most unusual of all crochet patterns. After the first medallion is completed, the rest are "easy" and work up like the proverbial "house afire." A lustrous, mercerized, crochet cotton is an ideal medium for the tablecloth.

For instructions in crocheting the oak leaf medallion, No. 848, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Money Asked by Charities for Algonquin

He reported that so far this summer the agency has sent 1,267 to camps and farm homes, but that 625 remain on the waiting list.

"The circumstances of each person on the waiting list have been carefully investigated," Mr. Hunter said, "and we know each one needs an outing, but cannot afford to pay for it."

Interest in Men Key to Their Regard

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.

Some women are able to marry at any age. They are never without masculine society. They are not necessarily the sirens or coquettes, or even ravishingly beautiful. Very often they don't have marvelous clothes or money.

But, and this is what the lonely maidens should notice, they are genuinely interested in men. We don't mean they are man-crazy or foolish, but they have a real and sincere sympathy for the man in mankind.

The woman who brought this to our attention was no longer young. Her technique was worth observing. When she bought meat, she made friends with the butcher boy. When a 19 year old school boy gave her a lift in his car, she soon had him confiding his ideas about girls. With the man who kept bachelor quarters and prided himself on his cooking, she talked recipes. If a masculine guest looked lonely at a party, she went over and spoke to him.

She wasn't trying to make these men fall in love with her, but if she ever wanted to, I'm sure she could. She has been happily married twice. If she is alone at 90, she probably will find some nice old man to marry and make comfortable. She likes to make men happy. She finds zest in drawing them out on their pet subjects. Their society is a great pleasure to her.

Consequently, bachelors and schoolboys, tradesmen and professors, and men of the world enjoy her society, too. No matter how old she grows, she'll never have to worry about being a wallflower.

Fancy Is Name for Separate Skirt Designs

BY REA SEEGER.

Prize winning assortments of separate skirts just about stagger the imagination of the young shoppers. There are dozens and dozens of plain wool, of small precise checks, of horse-blanket plaids, and of monotone tweeds. All of them are brand new and ready for the early fall and winter rush. Plaited all the way round models, together with the models with plaits fore and aft and the four gore affairs flaring snappily around the lower hem, offer every imaginable style that could be needed to complete any sort of a wardrobe.

The colors are apparently unlimited, from pale pastels, against bold bright plaids, red, yellow, parma violet, russet, greens, browns, coppers, beige, black, navy, and dark brown, there's not a tone, tint or shade missing. All of them are fitted smartly with attached belts, some have pockets, some have the plaits stitched down, others feature folded plaits. Price tags are easy on the most curtailed budget, and this is the time to select a separate skirt. It will be days before there is another large new collection from which to choose. Career and college girls, please note!

In the same store, and just a few steps away from the skirts, are the racks holding the eye blinding beauty of new convertible coats . . . those indispensables without which a wardrobe isn't complete. This fall you can wear the biggest, breeziest plaids you ever dreamed about, in bold flashing color clash and contrast. The water repellent linings are the good looking beige twill or whipcord material used in the coats of the last few seasons. There are all kinds of unusual sized plaids and checks, and a few very different light colored combines . . . the gayest, smartest convertibles yet unpacked.

Head Man Points to Foes' Manpower.

Musicians!

COLLEGE musicians and former members of the All-Star band residing in the Chicago district are invited to participate in the ceremony between halves of the College All-Americans-Chicago Bears game in Soldiers' field on Aug. 28. Musicians should write to G. Cliffe Bainum, band director, Fisk hall, Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill.

BY EDWARD PRELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Delafield, Wis., Aug. 12.—So the College All-Stars want to play a game. That's what every move made by the champion Chicago Bears suggested today as they went thru their third straight double workout, soothed by cooling breezes.

They really stepped up the tempo of previous drills and filled the air with encouraging yells to each other. Even the coaches were caught in the new wave of enthusiasm. The professors of the linemen—Heartly [Hunk] Anderson and Luke Johnsos—chided the back field coaches, George Halas and Paddy Driscoll, because the backs are not as far advanced as the linemen after four days of preparation for the team's Aug. 28 date with the collegians in Soldiers' field.

Halas, co-author of football's best seller, "The Modern T Formation with Man in Motion," had a rebuttal for this charge.

Just Wait Until Sunday.

"On one particular play even with variations," he reminded his hecklers, "the linemen, except the ends, have only one thing to do. But the backs have at least 14 different things to remember. Your linemen won't have it so easy when the scrimmaging starts Sunday. It takes more time and practice for the linemen to reach efficiency than the backs. We'll see how smart they are when we really start bearing down."

The Bears had hoped to put four units on the field against the All-Stars, but this idea was abandoned today when Halas divided his athletes into three squads called the Reds, Whites, and Blues. The odd nine left over were distributed among the three squads as replacements.

That Annual Dirge Is Started.

Halas, at the rate gloom is encompassing him, probably will be referring to his Bears as "Pore little boys" in a few more days, in the manner of Indiana's Bo McMillin.

"The All-Stars will have six full teams," he said today in his daily pessimistic bulletin, "and we'll have only three. This gives them 100 per cent more man power."

Any expressions of sympathy may reach Halas at Smythe hall, St. John's Military academy, Delafield, Wis. No doubt he would appreciate some cheering messages, such as "Don't give up the ship, George," or "All is not lost, pal."

During signal drills today Joe Maniaci was driving thru the line on quick opening plays as tho the outcome of a game depended on each run. Bill Osmanski was bolting thru with his old time power, too. And Ray Nolting, who is called "Locomotive" by his teammates because of his rhythmic, high strides, put on a show.

Tonight, as tho two hard workouts weren't enough, 12 members of the Bears played against the summer camp counselors in the annual basketball game and for the first time since 1934 the Chicagoans were defeated, 25 to 13. On top of that Ray Bray, 225 pound guard, took a spill and his right knee was hurt. He will practice tomorrow aided by an elastic brace.

Bears' Man in Motion Can Be Stopped; He Was in '34!

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Washington Redskins, who were beaten, 73 to 0, by the Chicago Bears for the professional championship last December, may have been the worst team of tacklers in pro history that afternoon. This excuse will do as well as any.

In checking back to the first All-Star game, however, when the collegians held another great Bear team to a scoreless tie, the crisp, accurate tackling of the All-Stars and the magnificent support the line received from Mike Mikulak and Chuck Bernard are easily remembered reasons for the surprising result.

It's Too Early to Tell.

It is too early in the training period at Northwestern university to say whether this year's All-Star squad has the ends, tackles, guards, and centers who can match the performance of the first college team in Soldiers' field Aug. 28. Perhaps, the record crowd of 93,000 will discover that the Osmanskis, Luckmans, Fortmanns, and Stydahars of the present Bears are far superior to the Nagurskis, Brumbaughs, Kopchas, and Lymans of 1934.

The opportunity for comparison is one reason why nearly all tickets already have been sold for Aug. 28.

The Bears' attack now is based on the same principle as it was in 1934, however.

Watch that Man in Motion.

"The key to the Bears' attack," one of the coaches who was intimately associated with the first All-Star game said recently, "is the momentary distraction of the defensive men by the man in motion."

"That man in motion," another agreed, "constitutes a shift without the necessity of waiting one second before the ball is put in play."

The further observation that the "ball disappears quickly and to better advantage to conceal the point

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 12.—Our Cubs really put up quite a fight today but, as they say in the classics, the Cardinals would not be denied. The sixth place Chicagoans had their foes spanked in the eighth as the result of a two run rally but the local rough housers simply bore down in the same inning, wrecked Rescuer Bill Lee and proceeded to victory as well as into first place in the National league race. The score was 8 to 7, and the trimming was the Chicagoans' fourth in a row.

It's Sad Tale.

It can't be said that the Cubs, with another new lineup didn't hit, at least most of them outside of Bill Nicholson who fanned three times. They overcame a three run handicap by giving the K. O. to Max [Lefty] Lanier. After dropping behind when Vern Olsen succumbed to the Gas House bats in the seventh they came back with that important eighth in which Bill Crouch was forced to retire, making room for Clyde Shoun who was credited with the decision altho he pitched to only one batter. Altogether there were 16 Cub hits off 4 pitchers and 15 of them were singles.

The home eighth, a sad development after Bob Scheffing's pinch hit had put the Cubs in front, began with a single by Jim Brown off Lee. Martin Marion bunted but nobody was retired because Brown beat Babe Dahlgren's throw to second. Gus Mancuso also bunted and McCullough threw out Brown at third, Stan Hack losing a shoe in the play. Don Padgett, batting for Shoun, did nothing but Frank Crespi singled for his fourth hit, scoring Marion and W. Cooper, who had run for Mancuso.

Johnny Blasts One.

The two pairs of runs scored in the first inning weren't exactly clean. In the Cubs' half Cavarretta singled and went to third on Hack's double. Nicholson popped to Marion. Leiber followed with a bounder to Crespi but the ball took a trick hop for a single, the two runners going home. In the Cards' portion Crespi opened with a single and Moore flied to right but Cavarretta misjudged the thing and it dropped behind him for a double, Crespi scoring. Hopp singled Moore

A DAY with the College All-Americans in training at Northwestern university for the eighth annual All-Star game against the champion Chicago Bears in Soldiers' field on Aug. 28—Bob Suffridge, Tennessee guard, and Marshall Shires, Tennessee tackle, climaxed each of their three years of intercollegiate competition by participating in bowl contests. . . . They faced Oklahoma in Miami's Orange bowl on Jan. 1, 1939; Southern California in Pasadena's Rose bowl on Jan. 1, 1940, and Boston college in New Orleans' Sugar bowl on Jan. 1, 1941. . . . The favorite athlete of Tommy Harmon is Jay Berwanger, University of Chicago's last All-American player. . . . Ollie Hahnenstein, Northwestern half back, reaches for a matchbook as soon as he arrives in a restaurant or hotel dining room. . . . His favorite hobby is collecting match cases. . . .

Ernest Pannell, Texas A. & M. tackle, spent the summer working in the east Texas oil fields. . . . Bobby Saggau, Notre Dame half back, never encountered difficulty attending movies in his home town of Denison, Ia. . . . His father is manager of a Denison theater. . . . Don Vosberg, Marquette end, and Johnny McGee, Regis college end, worked in Milwaukee breweries during the summer months. . . . Paul Christman, Missouri quarter back, likes to play the mouth harp, but says he is a bit "rusty." . . . Joe Lokanc, Northwestern guard, will meet his favorite athlete, Danny Fortmann, Bears' guard, in the All-Star game. . . . Bob Nelson, Baylor center, is arranging a trip to Comiskey park to meet a noted Baylor alumnus, Ted Lyons of the White Sox.

Tommy O'Boyle will serve as assistant line coach at Tulane, his alma mater, this fall. . . . Harmon is the favorite athlete of two Minnesota players, Half Back George Franck and Quarter Back Bob Paffrath. . . . The greatest thrill Ken Pettit, Iowa end, received in his college career was recovering a Notre Dame fumble on the Irish 4 yard line which later resulted in the Hawkeyes' winning touchdown, 7 to 6, in 1939. . . . As a freshman at Texas A. & M., Quarter Back Marion Pugh won numerals in football, track, baseball, and missed basketball by two minutes' required playing time. . . . Jackie Robinson, UCLA half back, broke 100 the first time he played golf.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The St. Louis Browns led the White Sox, 6 to 0, at the end of four and one-third innings in Comiskey park yesterday afternoon, but things happened and didn't happen thereafter and at 6:30 o'clock the umpires and everybody else gave up. The contest was called a 6 to 6, 14 inning draw, thanks to four runs the Sox made in their fifth and two they added in the sixth.

Bill Dietrich was the starting pitcher and all the Brownie runs were charged to his account. Inept fielding, in which Bill had a part, contributed to his withdrawal after one was out in the fifth, but mostly it was Bill's failure to cast the ball where he wanted it. He was wild and without deceit, too.

Hallett Loses Control.

The Brownies didn't make a hit for seven and one-third innings after they knocked out Dietrich. At one point in the game Jack Hallett, second Sox pitcher, had a chance to achieve his third victory in four days, but he lost control and after walking the first two men in the eighth was replaced by Pete Appleton, who went the rest of the way. Appleton had three tough innings, the one he inherited from Hallett, one in which he issued two walks in the ninth, and another in the 13th when the Browns loaded the bases on the Sox's fourth error, a double by Roy Cullenbine, and an intentional pass. The game was saved when Myril Hoag hopped high against the left field wall to pull down Johnny Berardino's drive for the third out.

Going into their fifth the Chicagoans had a total of one single, and Mike Kreevich, who singled and stole second in the first inning was the only gent who had been able to get to base on Bob Harris, St. Louis starting pitcher.

The Sox Even It Up.

At the start of the fifth the overtaking process started with the walking of Luke Appling on four pitches. Hoag singled and there was a pause while Bob Kennedy executed his second strike out. Tresh followed with a single which scored Appling and the bases were loaded after Hallett caromed a single off Harris' shins. Kolloway tapped to Harlond Clift and

CONTRADICTION WILL BE THREAT IN RICH FUTURITY

Shows Old Form in Victory at Washington Park.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Contradiction, the Woolford farm's highly regarded juvenile colt which had been temporarily forgotten because of bucked shins and slight illness, won yesterday at Washington Park in a manner which established him as one of Alsab's strongest rivals in next Saturday's $45,000 futurity.

After being forced to race wide all the way, he came up steadily in a powerful stretch drive and got to the front in the last few yards to beat a field which included two other candidates for Saturday's rich stakes—Putitthere and Cortege. These two finished third and fourth respectively, K. Dorko taking second place, a head short of the winner and a neck in advance of Putitthere.

He's a Great Prospect.

Contradiction had been considered one of the best prospects in the juvenile ranks this spring. On the day of the Kentucky Derby, in the second start of his career, he beat Calumet farm's Sun Again, which went on to win the Arlington futurity and the Belmont juvenile stakes.

Since that impressive effort, Contradiction has started only once, finishing fourth in a race at Arlington Park. It was in that event that he suffered the bucked shins and subsequently he incurred a mild illness. Trainer Ross Higdon has now brought him back to first class condition.

He was held at 5 to 2 in the betting yesterday, while Zig Zag was being made the 2 to 1 favorite. Putitthere, which had beaten some pretty fast horses several days previously, was at 11 to 1.

Then Comes Contradiction.

Immediately after the start Tomluta went out to make the pace in this 5½ furlong dash, but Cortege and Putitthere went up to run with him. As they made the turn Cortege took the lead with Putitthere forcing the pace and K. Dorko well up. Contradiction was striding along in sixth place, well out from the rail.

Putitthere and Cortege went head and head into the stretch, with K. Dorko in close pursuit. As the field straightened out Jockey Jack Richard shook up Contradiction and sent him after the leaders. Racing wide, he came on steadily and wore down his rivals in the late stages.

He ran the 5½ furlongs in 1:05 3-5 on a track which was good but not fast. This time was three-fifths of a second slower than the record which was set by Flying Streak last year and tied by Alsab last Saturday.

John Hunnicutt, favorite in the first race, was disqualified after beating Field Lark, the second choice, by a head. Jimmy Berger, Field Lark's rider, lodged a claim of foul, stating that John Hunnicutt interfered with his mount going into the turn and again in the stretch.

Can Shot Put Carry Load?

According to a statement by Al Snider, John Hunnicutt's jockey, the horse bore over so persistently that the boy was forced to switch his whip to his left hand in attempting to keep his mount straight in the stretch.

The series of distance stakes will be resumed today, the main question being how much weight can Shot Put concede to his rivals and still beat them. He will be toting 128 pounds over a route of two miles and a quarter and will be conceding from 17 to 30 to his seven rivals.

Al Au Feu, at 111 pounds, is the most heavily weighted of Shot Put's rivals. The others in the field, Valdina Leo, Bucking, Betty's Bob, Margo G., Gourmet, and Gen L., range down to 98 pounds. Al Au Feu finished second to Shot Put in the first race of the series last week.

SWEDES DEFEAT HAKOAHS, 5 TO 0, IN TITLE GAME

The Swedish American soccer team won the Carnegie Illinois summer league championship last night by beating the Hakoahs, 5 to 0, in the final game played before a crowd of 2,000 at Gary, Ind.

Johnny Kilgour opened the scoring and Tony Gallagher also tallied to give the Swedish-Americans a 2 to 0 lead at the half. Turo Holquist, Kilgour again, and Jim McCallum tallied in the second half.

LOUIS POSTS 88 AND DROPS OUT OF HIS OWN TOURNEY

Wearing Their $100 Smiles

Joe Kuhel (left), White Sox first baseman, and Elden Auker, St. Louis Browns' pitcher, who traded punches in Monday's game, shake hands and manage a grin. The smiles come a bit slowly for each was fined $100 yesterday for his part in the rumpus. Kuhel was on the bench yesterday with an ankle injury.

Kuhel, Auker Get $100 Fines for Fist Fight

Joe Kuhel of the White Sox and Elden Auker and Alan [Kibitzer] Strange both of the Browns, principals in Monday's brawl game, yesterday drew fines from Will Harridge, league president, for their fisticuffing. Kuhel and Auker were socked $100 each. Strange, who was in the battle on a rain check, got off with $50. Kuhel missed yesterday's game because he was suffering from a minor ankle injury.

The Detroit Tigers this afternoon will open a three game series with the White Sox in Comiskey park, which will include a double header tomorrow. Buck Newsom and Eddie Smith will be the opposing pitchers.

Kleig lights will be strung in the office of President Grace Comiskey in Comiskey park this morning. At 11 o'clock sharp Jimmy Dykes will enter with a cigar, unlighted, in deference to Mrs. Comiskey. When the picture boys get ready with their still new news reel cameras, Jim then will take pen in hand and sign his new contract, and Mrs. Comiskey will smile happily, after the fashion of all baseball executives on such epochal occasions.

The Dubuque council No. 510 of the Knights of Columbus is sponsoring a baseball trip to Chicago, which is planned for Sunday. More than 250 members of the council will be in the party to see the White Sox meet the Indians and to cheer for Jim Dykes, a brother knight.

Sox, Browns Play to Tie in 14 Innings, 6-6

Hoag was forced at the plate, but Jim Webb came thru with the first of his two hits, a single which scored Tresh and Hallett. Kreevich singled to right, scoring Kolloway, but Webb was out trying to reach third, Joe Grace to Clift.

The score reached its final status in the sixth. Taft Wright, who went hitless all afternoon, got his one look at first base when he walked. Luke Appling doubled to left, Wright stopping at third, whence he scored on Hoag's fly to Grace, Appling taking third. Appling got home with the tying and final run of the afternoon on Kennedy's single to right. Jack Kramer, replaced Harris. Tresh was called out on strikes, and Hallett bounced to Clift.

to third and he counted when Mize grounded into a double play.

Mize's 11th homer landed on the roof, after Crespi and Moore had hit safely in the third, giving the Cards a 5 to 2 edge. The Cubs whittled this down by two tallies in the fourth because of singles by Dahlgren and Stringer, who, after moving up on a passed ball, skipped home on Hudson's scratch single which Marion heaved wild to first base. The remainder of the Cards' lead vanished in the sixth when George walked, moved ahead on Stringer's hit, and scored on Olsen's second single.

Crespi's double and Hopp's single were the items that put the Cards ahead, 6 to 5, in the seventh, but not for long. Leiber opened the eighth with an infield hit, and Dahlgren looped a single over short. They advanced when Mancuso threw wild trying to nip McCullough, who ran for Leiber, off second. Neither Pinch Batters Dallessandro nor Galan could assist, but Scheffing, swinging for Pressnell, slapped his single into center, McCullough and Dahlgren scoring. When Hudson singled and Cavarretta walked, Crouch was yanked for Shoun, who quickly disposed of Hack.

PLAY PIRATES TONIGHT

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 12.—The Cubs went away from here at 6 o'clock this evening so with a 24 hour gap there wasn't much danger of them missing the next date, which will be the Pirates in Pittsburgh tomorrow night.

Mamakos and Johnny Colan Meet Tonight

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Johnny Colan, New York boxer, who has not been defeated in more than a year, will face the strongest test of a two year professional campaign in a 10 round bout tonight in Chicago Stadium outdoor arena, Wood and Madison streets, against Steve Mamakos, hard fighting Washington, D. C., middleweight.

The 19 year old Manhattan challenger's last defeat was suffered at the hands of Izzy Redman. Since that setback, which was his fourth, Colan has scored 26 straight victories.

Steve Is Favorite.

Because of a conquest of Milt Aron in the Coliseum last Nov. 25 and two fierce battles he had with Champion Tony Zale in the Stadium building in subsequent appearances in this city, Mamakos is expected to snap Johnny's string of triumphs.

The survivor will be rewarded with a match with Tony [Cianciola] Martin, Wisconsin state title holder, Sept. 10 or 24.

Lenny [Boom Boom] Mancini, lightweight fighter from Youngstown, O., will attempt to increase his popularity by defeating Pete Lello, 1936 Chicagoland Golden Gloves 135 pound champion, in a 10 round semi-windup this evening. Mancini, who is 22 years old, will be making his first Chicago start, but his fast growing reputation has preceded him.

Bennett Seeks 8th Straight.

Leonard Bennett, Detroit welterweight, will be in quest of his eighth consecutive decision in a 10 round preliminary match against Willie Joyce, also a former Golden Gloves title holder. Joyce, who conquered Harvey Dubs and Nick Castiglione in two previous fights this year, will be spotting Bennett about six pounds.

Four round encounters will bring together Jimmy Joyce, featherweight brother of Willie, and Vito Rizzo, and Chuck Grundies, light heavyweight, also of Detroit, and Vince Calzaretta.

Julius Glenn, Rockford heavyweight, and Harold Lang of Portage Park will be principals in a five round bout heading an amateur show tonight in Northwest stadium, 4043 North Cicero avenue. . . . Another amateur program this evening will be in West Suburban club, 61st court and Roosevelt road, topped by a five round event between William Jordan, Savoy Athletic club, and James Baratta, Madison Cicero Boxing club.

BEARS' OFFENSE CAN BE STOPPED; IT WAS IN 1934!

Aggressive Line Play Can Do the Trick.

of attack in the T formation than by use of spin plays" may be academic. Certainly it will be disputed. The fact remains that the All-Stars of 1934 held the Bears scoreless by a system of traps in the defensive line. The All-Stars of 1935 also kept their goal line inviolate altho they were beaten, 5 to 0.

Bears Don't Get Overconfident.

One important reason why the Bears should win is that they are not susceptible to overconfidence.

Nagurski Gained One Yard.

The result? Manske and Mikulak made frequent tackles behind the line of scrimmage. Nagurski's net gain for the Bears was only one yard.

The Ends Tell the Story.

On the basis of all previous games against the professional champions there is no more important All-Star defensive position than the end. In those years when the collegians had great ends such as Keith Topping, Chuck Sweeney, Wayne Millner, and Gaynell Tinsley the All-Stars have had two strikes on the pros' attack.

Ed Frutig, Michigan; Erwin Elrod, Mississippi State; John McGee, Regis; Ken Pettit, Iowa; Dave Rankin, Purdue; Ed Rucinski, Indiana; Don Vosberg, Marquette, and Paul Severin of North Carolina—the All-Star ends—may have more to say about the success of the Bears' T formation than any other group. Certainly they will have first opportunity to break up the pro champions' plays.

YOUNG BEATS DADO.

HONOLULU, Aug. 12 (AP).—Southpaw David Young, Honolulu bantamweight, rallied strongly to outpoint Little Dado of Manila in 10 rounds in Municipal stadium last night.

Mr. Gladchuk (Weight 250) Lives On—Yes, Tom Thumb St.

One of Bridgeport, Conn.'s, most celebrated citizens was Tom Thumb who gained world fame as a member of Barnum's collection of curios many years ago. Bridgeport was so proud of the little fellow that a street was named in his honor. All of which leads up to the fact that Chet Gladchuk, 250 pound, 6 foot 5 inch All-Star center from Boston college, comes from Bridgeport. Yes, you've guessed it, he lives on Tom Thumb street.

Eggs Manske and Johnny Kovatch, former Northwestern ends and members of former All-Star squads, attended yesterday's practice. Eggs played on last year's Bear squad which scored that amazing 73 to 0 victory over the Washington Redskins. He retired from a playing career to accept a position as assistant coach at Holy Cross this fall. Kovatch will join the staff at Illinois Wesleyan where he will serve under a former teammate, Don Heap.

The All-Star game will be in the nature of a homecoming for Hugh Gallarneau, Stanford half back, who hasn't played on a Chicago gridiron since his prep days at Morgan Park High school. Hugh played a major rôle in Stanford's drive to the Pacific coast title and victory over Nebraska in the Rose Bowl. He led the team in yards gained with 599 yards in 106 attempts. He lost but two yards in Stanford's nine game schedule.

Jimmy Conzelman, head coach of the Chicago Cardinals, and his assistants, Phil Handler and Chilly Walsh, viewed yesterday's workout, paying particular attention to those All-Stars who will perform for the south siders this fall. Among the players who will don Cardinal uniforms this fall are George Kracum, Pittsburgh; Ray Mallouf, Southern Methodist; Paul Christman, Missouri, backs; Joe Lokanc, Northwestern, and Nick Kerasiotis, St. Ambrose, guards, and Ray Apolskis, Marquette, center.

Art Jones, half back from the University of Richmond, obtained some first hand information on Evanston from his coach, Glenn Thistlethwaite, who was Northwestern coach from 1921 to 1926. Jones, who will play with the Pittsburgh Steelers this fall, led the Southern conference last year in punting, passing, and punt returns.

Coach Lynn Waldorf fell victim to an All-Star ruse yesterday and plans to be on his guard in the future. One of the players walked up and spoke admiringly of Waldorf's wristwatch. Lynn showed it to him with evident pride until the big fellow bellowed out, "Only 15 minutes till lunch time, fellows."

NATION'S FOOD BINS FILLED BY RECORD STOCKS

Butter, Egg, Meat Stores Pile Up.

Government estimates of food reserves held in warehouses as of Aug. 1, made public yesterday, revealed that America should be well fed next winter. The department of agriculture in its monthly report said that:

1. Private dealers in the dairy industry had 177,659,000 pounds of butter in storage, the largest supply on record.
2. Meat stocks were the largest for an Aug. 1 since 1934, totaling 761,289,000 pounds.
3. Lard stocks were at a new all-time high for the date of 334,499,000, altho below the July 1 total.
4. Reserve supplies of American cheese were at a new peak of 138,883,000 pounds.
5. Stocks of frozen eggs held in storage established a new record of 194,827,000 pounds.
6. Cold storage holdings of all varieties of frozen fruit totaled 172,666,000 pounds, compared with 150,965,000 a year ago and a five year average of 127,566,000.

22 Year Record in Wheat.

On Monday the department announced that farmers were harvesting the largest crop of wheat in 22 years, totaling 950,953,000 bushels. It said the country had the largest supplies of the bread grain in its warehouses in its history. It predicted bumper yields of other grains, fruits, and vegetables.

Administration farm leaders have been striving to build up food reserves which President Roosevelt said may be needed "to meet emergencies which can as yet be only dimly foreseen."

In a letter to Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard, dated July 25, and made public yesterday, the President declared that "food is a weapon against Hitlerism just as much as munitions, and food will continue to be a weapon in all efforts toward insuring a more orderly, prosperous, and peaceful world."

Shipping Eggs to Britain.

The letter acknowledged an agriculture department report on progress of programs designed to convert the large feed supplies into huge reserves of pork, dairy products, poultry products, and other foods. The report said agriculture was meeting the situation much more satisfactorily than during the World war.

The storage report disclosed that possibly 15 million dollars' worth of eggs had been shipped to Britain under the lend-lease bill during the last month, dealers said. They made this deduction when the government purchasing agency said that it had only slightly more than 1½ million pounds of frozen eggs in storage.

It was estimated to have purchased more than 42 million pounds of frozen eggs for Britain during July. It reported 14½ million pounds of frozen eggs in storage on July 1, which evidently were withdrawn during the month. Trade reports said the government had paid around 25 cents a pound for these frozen eggs.

Midwest Farmer Helps.

The extent to which the midwestern farmer is coöperating with the government to produce the foods needed by Britain is also disclosed in the department's report, food experts said. They said it was best evidenced by the fact that cheese and butter reserves were at record highs, in face of the vast supplies taken off the market for Britain, and despite the record rate of consumtion.

They said that large quantities of milk that normally would go to making cheese and butter are being diverted to factories turning out dried and condensed milk to ship abroad.

JULY WARPLANE DELIVERIES DIP 16 BELOW JUNE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12 (AP).—The Office of Production Management announced today that military aircraft manufacturers delivered 1,460 airplanes during July, a decrease of 16 from the preceding month.

Officials gave no explanation for the decrease. They did not disclose the types of planes completed nor the number which went to the army, the navy, or Great Britain.

At the same time OPM officials said that discussions at a meeting of government and iron and steel company executives indicated that capacity for finishing aircraft and other alloy steels probably would have to be doubled to meet American and lend-lease program requirements.

Public's Holdings of Large Denomination Money Rising

The August federal reserve bulletin, just published, reports substantially larger holdings by the public of large demonination currency. Circulation of currency in denominations of $50 and more expanded 236 million dollars in the first half of this year. At the same time, all money in circulation rose to an all-time peak [omitting the bank holiday period of 1933] of 9,612 million dollars.

The growing demand for large bills, which are awkward for business use, has been interpreted as an indication of hoarding.

Increases by Classes.

The public now holds 69 million dollars more of $50 bills, 132 million dollars more of $100 bills, 17 million dollars more of $500 bills, and 25 million dollars of $1,000 bills than at the end of 1940. Circulation of $5,000 and $10,000 bills declined in January, but has risen in recent months. Total circulation of large bills at the end of June amounted to 2,725 million dollars. The total of coin and small denomination bills was about 6,890 million dollars.

The holding of large currency in safekeeping is regarded by federal reserve experts as a symptom of the general tendency in this country in recent years toward the accumulation of large sums of idle funds. This has resulted from the scarcity of suitable channels for the investment of savings.

Foreigners also have contributed to the hoarding. In their effort to protect their fortunes against the war's inroads and, recently, the maze of financial tangles which envelop foreign assets in this country, many foreigners, it is said, have converted their holdings into cash.

Money in Circulation

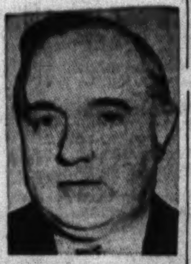
Firms Listing Owners Under New State Law

The owners of about 1,500 unincorporated businesses, operating in Cook county under firm names, by last night had registered their names and addresses with County Clerk Michael J. Flynn as required under a law passed by the state legislature last month. Incorporated businesses, trusts, and firms operated under the names of their owners are not required to register.



John G. Ryan.

About 150,000 firms not operated under the actual names of their owners are expected to be affected in Cook county alone. Thousands also will be affected in each of the other counties. State Representative John G. Ryan, Democrat of the 13th [Chicago] senatorial district, who sponsored the measure, said it was directed primarily against "fly by night" business men often difficult to find when business transactions lead to court action.

Affects Only Assumed Names.

Lawyers and representatives of business organizations said that confusion in the minds of business men concerned principally the use of names which might be construed as assumed names.

It was explained that a man named London, who operated under the business name of London Laundry, would not be required to pay the $2 registration fee for a county certificate. Neither would Smith and Jones' butcher shop, provided these were not assumed names, notwithstanding the fact these men would be difficult to find among the hundreds of Smiths and Joneses in the telephone directory.

Deadline Is Saturday.

"The law cannot injure any reputable business man, and will establish a degree of responsibility among unincorporated firms whose owners are not a matter of public record," said Ryan.

Flynn has assigned extra clerks to handle the registration, on which the deadline is Saturday. For wilful failure to disclose names and addresses of firms subject to registration the law provides a fine of $25 to $100, imprisonment for 10 to 30 days, or both.

Du Pont Allocates Rayon Yarn for Hosiery Makers

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 12 (AP).—E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. offered today 250,660 pounds of rayon yarn for August distribution to hosiery manufacturers in compliance with an Aug. 4 order by the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply. The allocation is subject to order by hosiery mills not later than Aug. 18, the company said.

FARM BLOC TO FIGHT FOR PRICE 'FLOORS' IF 'CEILINGS' ARE FIXED

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12 (AP).—Chairman Ellison D. Smith [D., S. C.] of the senate agricultural committee declared today that Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard and other administration officials were making an "organized effort to discredit the farm bloc in congress."

At a conference of a dozen senators from farm states, Smith objected to a speech at Athens, Ga., in which Wickard warned against letting prices get out of line, saying that it "busted the markets today." The group authorized Smith as chairman of the agriculture committee to appoint a subcommittee to draft amendments to any price fixing legislation. The chairman said these amendments would require the government to place a "floor" under farm prices if it obtains power to put a "ceiling" on them.

BRAZIL OFFERS HOPE AS FUTURE SOURCE OF SILK

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12.—Brazil may offer a new hope to American women who bemoan the interruption of silk shipments from Japan from which most of their stockings have been made, according to the department of commerce. Brazil is the one Latin American nation where the mulberry tree really thrives, and which has actually produced silk in commercial quantities. In 1940 Brazilian growers and experimenters produced about 1,500,000 pounds of cocoons, from which they derived 125,902 pounds of waste silk. Of this total only 14,500 pounds was sold to the United States.

Sericulture was first attempted in Brazil early in this century, but only recently has the infant industry been receiving encouragement and aid from the federal and state governments. The mulberry tree, the fresh leaves of which provide food for the silk worm, thrives the year thru in the tropical state of Sao Paulo, and experiments there have shown that it is possible to raise eight crops of cocoons a year.

WEEK'S IMPORTS OF GOLD CLIMB; SILVER REDUCED

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12 (AP).—Gold imports rose to $7,739,600 in the week ended Aug. 6, the commerce department said today. The figure was about $800,000 above that of the preceding week.

Principal shipments included $2,741,180 from Canada, $2,158,599 from the Philippine islands, and $1,995,042 from India. Foreign gold deposits under earmark in the federal reserve banks increased $19,211,453 to a total of $1,963,725,148.

CAPITAL PARLEY TO STUDY RULES ON TIME SALES

Chicagoans to Help Draft Regulations.

Chicago banking and credit representatives were preparing yesterday to attend national meetings later this week with federal reserve officials in Washington to confer on the drafting of regulations to control instalment credit ordered by President Roosevelt.

Clifford S. Young, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, and Paul C. Hodge, assistant to the general counsel of the bank, will attend a conference of reserve officials tomorrow. John D. Kemper, general credit manager of Mandel Brothers and chairman of the credit management division of the National Retail Dry Goods association, will attend the general meeting Friday.

Kenton R. Cravens, vice president of the Cleveland Trust company, will take a leave of absence to assist the reserve board in the preparation of regulations for consular credit. Cravens is known as an expert in that field.

Expect No Marked Effect.

The curb on instalment buying will discourage spendthrift purchases, but will not have any marked effect on retail sales in general, credit men asserted yesterday. They explained that mail order organizations, department stores, and electrical appliance distributors have in recent months placed restrictions on instalment credit. The term over which payments are extended generally has been shortened and higher down payments have been required.

"The retail trade has been alive to the dangers of overexpanded credit and credit men have taken steps to adjust instalment sales policies to the new situation," Kemper said. "Many stores have followed a conservative credit policy and do not have to worry about the federal regulations."

Suggests Minimum Terms.

Kemper said he favored a general requirement of a 10 per cent minimum first payment on department store instalment purchases, with the balance payable over a maximum of 12 months.

Young observed that in conversations with finance company officials he had heard few complaints against a federal reserve regulation restricting consumer credit. He said the trade expects a requirement of one-third down payment on automobiles, refrigerators, and other consumer durable goods, with a loan maturity of not more than 18 months.

Automobile financing companies said the average down payment is more than 40 per cent and the term usually not more than 18 months.

The instalment finance business, which amounted to 10,000 million dollars last year, is more perturbed over the government's slashing of automobile and washing machine production than over the forthcoming credit regulations, a bank executive said.

Pay Roll Rise May Aid.

"With pay rolls rising, many automobile buyers will be able to make a larger down payment and clean up their payments in a shorter period," he asserted. "However, the finance companies are concerned over the fact that there will not be as many cars and other hard goods available for sale."

Department store credit men explained that instalment sales by stores with quality lines have been on a conservative basis. Instalment selling to families with incomes below $5,000 a year will be affected to varying degrees, depending on the individual store's policies. Executives doubted that the stores would liberalize their charge account terms in order to offset restriction on time payment sales.

Personal finance companies do not expect to be subject to the credit restrictions. Several managers said personal loans may increase if the government requires burdensome down payments or severe repayment terms on instalment sales.

Number of Idle Placed 4 Million Below Year Ago

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12 (AP).—The Work Projects administration estimated today that 5,600,000 persons were unemployed in July, a decline of almost 4,000,000 under the same month a year ago and 300,000 below June.

2 Big Packing Houses Grant Wage Boosts

Wage increases of 5 cents an hour for employés of two of Chicago's big meat packing houses—Armour & Co. and Wilson & Co.—were announced yesterday.

The defense mediation board announced in Washington, D. C., that Armour has agreed to increase the wages of 20,000 employés represented by the Packinghouse Workers' Organizing Committee [CIO]. The board, making public details of an agreement reached Saturday for settlement of a dispute which had been certified by the department of labor, said the wage boost would amount to about 5 million dollars a year.

Announcement by Wilson.

Wilson company officials announced in Chicago that the increase had been granted to 15,000 workers in seven plants. Approximately 3½ million dollars annually is involved. Officials said the increase followed lengthy negotiations with the Employés' Representative committee, an independent union which defeated the CIO in an election contest about two years ago.

Armour officials confirmed details of the pact affecting their company, except as to the 5 million dollar estimate which they indicated was above the actual amount involved. They said that 10,000 Chicago plant employés represented by the CIO would be affected. The others work in 13 plants in other cities.

Under the agreement, the wages of all hourly paid plant workers are increased 10 cents an hour above levels prevailing prior to April 1, and in the computation of new rates, consideration is given the general wage boost of 8 per cent granted as of April 21. On this basis the boost for common labor is 5 cents an hour over the April 21 level.

Less for Skilled Labor.

The increase for skilled and semiskilled labor is correspondingly less, since these classifications received a larger boost on April 21. The hourly rate for common labor will be 72½ cents, against 67½ cents as of April 21 and 62½ cents prior to April 1.

The CIO union lost its demand for a union shop and check-off system under the board's announced terms, which provide for a master agreement covering 15 plants of the company. 'Grievance machinery is provided.

The agreement stipulates that there are to be no strikes, slow-downs, or lockouts during the negotiations.

RETURNING TO JOBS

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The Curtiss-Wright corporation's propeller division at Caldwell, N. J., said yesterday that for the first time since an AFL machinists' strike started on Friday there was an increase in the number of men passing thru picket lines to work on $100,000,000 of armament orders. An official said that 230 men in the vital factory departments reported for work on the day shift while 272 remained out.

The increase was attributed largely to "increased police protection around the plant and the highways resulting in less interference with those workers really wanting to return."

Position of Company.

The company asserts it cannot deal with any union until the National Labor Relations board certifies the winner of an election in which an independent union, Propeller-Craft, defeated the AFL machinists. The AFL charges the independent union was company-aided in the election, and in addition seeks wage increases asked by a group of welders who started the strike.

Two hundred fifty striking CIO employés of the Timken Roller Bearing company, Canton, O., agreed to go back to work with the understanding that union leaders would ask the Defense Mediation board to mediate the case.

The Jersey City and Dover, N. J., plants of L. O. Koven and Brother were struck, halting work on $1,000,000 of navy contracts for submarine manifolds and gasoline and water tanks. Employés Association, an independent union, called the strike, alleging antiunion discrimination and company refusal to sign a contract based on an oral agreement.

At Mahwah, N. J., Sheriff William A. Browne blamed sabotage for damages to the American Brake Shoe and Foundry company, which has been struck since July 28. The company's electric power plant was put out of order, a loading derrick and a freight locomotive damaged, and 100 windows broken.

The AFL International Moulders and Foundry Workers union, claiming 450 members on strike, seeks a 15 cent hourly increase in present wages.

The Defense Mediation board, meanwhile, postponed until next Monday a hearing on the strike affecting 17 plants of the United States Gypsum company of Chicago.

Reports on Earnings

The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad company yesterday reported a June net income of $598,524 compared with a net loss of $773,718 for the same month last year. Six months net income was $1,178,120 against a net loss of $5,338,450 for the corresponding 1940 period.

Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad company reported a net income for the first six months of $787,617 compared with a deficit of $994,747 in the same period last year. Earnings reported by railroads yesterday were:

HEAVY BUILDING AWARDS REACH ALL TIME RECORD

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Contracts awarded for heavy engineering construction in July exceeded all previous records for the construction industry, Engineering News-Record said today. The total was $958,663,000.

The average weekly volume was 30 per cent above the previous record, which was established in June and was 120 per cent larger than July, 1940. Comparison of awards by various classes follows, last three ciphers omitted:

Weigh Street Car, Bus Fare Pleas Today

The Illinois Commerce commission, meeting in Springfield today, will be faced with demands for immediate changes in rates of fare affecting Chicago's 2¼ million street car and bus riders.

The Chicago Surface Lines, which carry more than 2 million riders a day, on Monday petitioned the commission for an "emergency" increase at once in street car fares from 7 to 8 cents. Last week Attorney General George F. Barrett and Ald. Paul H. Douglas [5th] filed petitions demanding an immediate reduction in the 10 cent bus fare of the Chicago Motor Coach company. Barrett suggested a 7 cent fare, while Douglas asked a temporary rate of three rides for a quarter. The bus company carries more than 200,000 riders a day.

Hearings May Be Held.

According to information available last night, the commission, headed by John D. Biggs, will direct today that hearings be held in both cases, so the commission will have sufficient information on which to base a decision. No orders changing the rates of fare are expected to be entered today.

Frank Peska of Chicago, one of the five commissioners, declared that the charges contained in the fare petitions do not contain enough evidence on which to base a ruling in either the street car or bus case. He said he doubted the legality of ordering a change in fares, either up or down, without first giving all parties a chance to be heard.

A majority of the commissioners were understood to share Peska's views. At the commission's offices in Chicago it was reported that no special investigations into the street car or motor coach properties have been undertaken recently.

City to Oppose Plea.

Ald. James R. Quinn [50th], chairman of the city council transportation committee, announced that city attorneys will oppose the surface lines' requested fare boost and demand full hearings. Quinn said the boost would take more than 6½ million dollars a year from car riders' pockets. The company claims the increase is needed to maintain adequate service, because wages and material costs have increased at the rate of $2,900,000 a year since June 1.

In the motor coach case, Barrett and Ald. Douglas today will renew their demands for a rate slash on the ground that the company's own books show its profits are excessive. Douglas said last night that the bus company in the first seven months of this year reported a gain in traffic of 3.1 per cent over 1940. This gain, he argued, will produce enough revenue to offset wage increases of $187,000 a year granted in June by the bus system.

The bus company contends that rising labor costs and material prices this year have already reduced its return on a "fair value" to the "unreasonably low" rate of 5.23 per cent a year.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12 (AP).—A congressional investigation of the effect of the armament program on small business was sought in a resolution introduced in the house today by Representative Wright Patman [D., Tex.]

BUSINESS MEN URGE SALES TAX REPLACE EXCISE

Oppose Inequalities of New Levies.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12 (AP).—The senate finance committee heard proposals from several business spokesmen today for imposition of a general manufacturers' sales tax in place of the excise taxes on so-called luxury items contained in the pending $3,236,700,000 revenue bill.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg [R., Mich.] expressed agreement with one witness that such a tax would simplify the work of the internal revenue bureau and eliminate many objections presented to the committee by representatives of industries affected by the proposed excise taxes.

Asserts Approval Is Unlikely.

Chairman Walter F. George [D., Ga.] of the committee told reporters later that he believed there was substantial support for a manufacturers' sales tax within the committee, but that opposition by the administration would make it unlikely that congress or the committee would approve it.

The manufacturers' sales tax was advocated by Hugh Satterlee, chairman of the committee on taxation of the New York Lawyers' association; Jay Iglauer, chairman of the taxation committee of the National Retail Dry Goods association, and N. W. Hart, president of the Commercial Refrigerator Manufacturers' association.

"A great many of the inequities of the income tax and many objections to the sales tax," Satterlee contended, "would offset each other if the two taxes were combined."

Protests Some Provisions.

Iglauer protested provisions which would levy excise taxes on retail sales of jewelry, furs, and toilet preparations while taxing various other commodities at the point of manufacture.

"In our opinion," he said, "the proposed taxes on retail sales will be almost impossible of administration."

The committee heard more than a dozen witnesses protest against specific excise levies or ask modifications of the pending bill or existing law to remove "inequities."

Besides Iglauer and Hart, witnesses seeking reduction or elimination of house approved excise levies appeared on behalf of the rubber, safety deposit box, and burglar and fire alarm industries.

TREASURY FREES FROZEN ASSETS OF PORTUGUESE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12 (AP).—The treasury freed Portuguese assets in the United States today from a sweeping order which had frozen continental European assets in this country.

A general license was issued exempting the Portuguese government, its central bank, and Portuguese nationals under certain conditions from President Roosevelt's June 14 order. Portuguese assets in the United States were estimated at about $160,000,000.

The license was issued, the treasury said, after "Portugal gave appropriate assurances to this government." The June 14 order was accompanied by a Presidential statement promising Portugal and five other countries exemptions whenever they promised not to use the exemptions to help the axis.

STOCKS WEAKEN ON WAR NEWS, FEDERAL RULES

Trade Volume Is Lowest Since July 18.

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Foreign news and doubts and fears aroused by Washington steps to tighten the nation's economic belt kept the stock market in a pessimistic mood today. A few leaders mustered enough support to register fractional gains at the close, but the general leaning was toward lower levels.

The Associated Press 60 stock composite price ended 0.1 point lower. It was the seventh decline since July 28 and in this interval there has been no advance. Dealings totaled 427,300 shares against yesterday's 447,330. It was the quietest session since July 18.

Loan Firm Shares Dip.

Shares of various companies in the small loan and merchandise financing fields were directly hit by the move to restrict time payment purchasing. The recovery impulse was strongest in selected rails which were benefited by some encouraging first-half earnings reports, rubbers, and specialties. Motors also made a fairly creditable showing at the end.

Yielding fractions to around 2 points were Household Finance, Beneficial Industrial Loan, Commercial Investment Trust, and Commercial Credit. The first two reached 1941 lows. Also on the soft side were Bethlehem Steel, American Can, du Pont, and Air Reduction. Moderately ahead were United States Steel, Boeing, Southern Pacific, New York Central, and Texas corporation.

CHICAGO PRICES LOWER.

Prices continued their downward drift in limited trading on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. Of the 78 individual issues traded, 18 advanced, 42 declined, and 18 closed unchanged.

Libby, McNeill and Libby, which has become one of the most active issues since the recent distribution of Swift & Co. holdings, led the list in volume, closing down ⅛ point to 5¾ on a turnover of 1,850 shares. Katz Drug eased an equal fraction to 5, and Commonwealth Edison declined ⅛ to 25⅝.

New York Central, traded on an unlisted basis, was the only one of the more active issues to close above Monday's levels, moving up ¼ to 12¾. Hamilton Manufacturing advanced ¼ to a new 1941 peak at 9¾.

JONES, LAUGHLIN VOTES DIVIDEND ON NEW COMMON

Directors of the Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation, Pittsburgh, Pa., yesterday declared a dividend of 60 cents a share on the 1,310,240 shares of new common stock created last month in a consolidation with two subsidiary companies. The payment is the first on the corporation's common stock since 1931, when dividends totaling $1.50 a share were distributed.

Large accumulations of unpaid dividends on the preferred stocks were cleared up in the exchange of stocks which accompanied the merger. The common dividend exceeded shareholders' expectations, since H. E. Lewis, chairman of the corporation, said at the time of the meeting last month that a quarterly dividend of 50 cents was indicated on the basis of earnings for the first six months of 1941.

The corporation, which is working virtually at capacity in filling orders largely for armament needs, earned $8,098,227 in the first half of the year, against $3,276,256 in the first six months of 1940.

COTTON FUTURES LEAD BREAK IN COMMODITY LIST

Prices Fall $1.80 to $2.05 a Bale in New York.

Led by cotton futures which broke $1.80 to $2.05 a bale in their sharpest decline since July 30, most commodity prices slumped yesterday under a wave of active selling. Factors in the decline were said to be Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard's warning that farmers should not seek unreasonable prices for their products and reports of improved weather conditions in the cotton belt.

Cotton Use Sets Record.

Orders by cotton mills helped stem the drop in futures to some extent. The New York Cotton exchange placed consumption of cotton in July at 940,000 bales, which would surpass the record of 920,142 bales in April of this year.

Cottonseed oil futures were down 0.12 to 0.22 cent a pound on liquidation that found little trade support. Coffee was irregularly lower and wool dipped 0.2 to 0.8 cent a pound.

Asks Rubber Trade Halt.

After the close, Leon Henderson asked the New York Commodity exchange to liquidate all open positions in rubber at yesterday's final prices. Since June 24 trading has been restricted to settling contracts that were open on that date.

STATES RETAIN CONTROL OVER FIDELITY FUNDS

Federal Judge Ben Moore of Charleston, W. Va., has heeded the protests of Illinois, Wisconsin, and other states and has rescinded his original order directing the states to surrender deposited securities of the bankrupt Fidelity Assurance association to a federal trustee, it was learned yesterday. Hearings were recessed to Sept. 15.

Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes, who held 3¾ million dollars of securities for the protection of Fidelity investors in Illinois, and the Wisconsin banking commission, which had about 2½ million dollars in deposited assets, refused to turn over the securities to the Central Trust Company of Charleston, the trustee.

The state contended that they should retain the securities for the benefit of Fidelity contract holders in their jurisdictions. Fidelity was a 25 million dollar firm which sold instalment savings in the east, south, and middle west. It was placed in receivership last April and then entered federal bankruptcy proceedings last June 6 on its own petition.

HENDERSON GIVES STAND ON WAGES AND PRICE RULE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12 (AP).—Price Administrator Leon Henderson testified today he would oppose wage increases if they forced a manufacturer too close to the point of earning no profit.

Appearing before the house banking committee on the administration's price control bill, Henderson said, however, he would never recommend wage decreases merely to lower a price ceiling.

"If a proposed wage increase appears unwarranted," he said, "and if a wage increase would make prices too high, I would make representations to whatever agency was necessary. We have the authority to make representations to the Office of Production Management."

HEDGING WHEAT.

Has the rise in wheat prices cut the profits of the Pillsbury Flour Mills? I would like to get a review of the company's earnings with emphasis on current profit factors.—M. G.

Answer: The Pillsbury Flour Mills company, Minneapolis, like other milling firms, protects itself against fluctuations in the grain markets by buying or selling grain futures against sales of flour or purchases of grain. Philip W. Pillsbury, president of the company, asserted in his recent annual report that as a result of these hedging operations grain price fluctuations had no material effect on the company's earnings.

He emphasized, however, that keen competition in the milling industry, especially in bakery flours, has narrowed the company's profit margin. Other adverse influences mentioned by Pillsbury were the loss of foreign markets, and increasing labor costs and taxes. Earnings in the last five fiscal years ended May 31 follow:

The company and its predecessors have paid dividends on the capital stock ranging from 15 to 50 cents a share in 56 consecutive quarters. An annual dividend rate of $1.60 a share was maintained from 1935 thru the first quarter this year. The second quarterly dividend this year was reduced to 25 cents, equivalent to an annual rate of $1 a share.

Capitalization of the company consists of $5,200,000 in funded debt, and 549,225 shares of $25 par capital stock, listed on the New York Stock exchange.

Pillsbury is the second largest domestic flour producer. Its output includes stock feeds, and such packaged foods as cake flour, pancake flour, farina, and wheat bran.

CROP FORECAST, RAINS WEAKEN PRICES OF GRAIN

Markets All Close Lower on Board of Trade.

The government crop estimate indicating the largest supply of grain on record for this country in the 1941-'42 season gave the markets a weaker undertone on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday.

Bearish sentiment was increased by rains and cooler weather over part of the corn belt, a sharp decline in cotton prices and a statement by Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard warning farmers not to ask too high prices for agricultural products.

All Markets End Lower.

Closing trades on wheat were ⅞ to 1⅛ cents lower with September at $1.09¾ cents. Corn lost ½ to ⅝ cent. Oats dipped early, but rallied later and closed unchanged to ⅛ cent lower. Liquidation and pressure from the northwest depressed rye ⅝ to 1⅛ cents with September leading. Soy beans lost 1½ to 2 cents. Lard declined 17½ to 20 cents per hundred pounds in sympathy with cottonseed oil.

Cash grain interests bought September wheat and sold December and May, regarded by brokers as changing over hedges into the distant months. Altho some improvement was reported in the demand for flour, only moderate buying of wheat futures was reported.

Space Nearly All Filled.

The department of agriculture said that a survey indicated that nearly 80 per cent of available grain storage space was filled as of Aug. 1. Of a total space for 450,776,000 bushels of grain, more than 357,503,000 bushels was filled, it said. A breakdown by sections follows in thousands of bushels:

FASTER, BETTER SHIPS URGED FOR TRADE STRUGGLE

American Marine Policy Declared Faulty.

Faster and more efficient ships instead of the "emergency type" vessels now being built should be constructed, J. Lewis Luckenbach, president of the American Bureau of Shipping, asserted yesterday.

The slower vessels not only are less suitable for present "emergency conditions," he said in a statement submitted to the bureau's board of managers, but will be too slow and inefficient to compete in the peacetime commerce of the future.

The British already are aware of this situation, he declared, and he quoted two British publications which urged construction of faster ships from the standpoint of the present war and so that Britain can "win the peace" of the future as well.

Urges Future Planning.

"I have quoted from the press of a country more involved in this war than we are, where it is urged that ships of a faster type be constructed," Luckenbach said. "Apparently others are thinking ahead and I strongly recommend that we do the same."

From British Motorship, of April, 1941, Luckenbach quoted the following:

"But however dire the urgency of the matter may be, we must still not forget that there is a peace to be won as well as a war. If at the end of the war most of our cargo tonnage is of slow speed, uneconomical type, which will not meet the demands of the situation then existing, nor the competition of other countries, we may not win the peace, whatever the result from the military standpoint."

Advantage in Faster Ships.

He quoted The Marine Engineer, another British publication, as saying that the fast ships can make two voyages while the slower ones are traveling one. With the faster ships the need for destroyers is lessened.

"Now that we have got into our war stride," the publication said, "the advantage of the fast cargo ship as against one of the 'box' type cannot be gainsaid."

Luckenbach cited figures to show that the United States merchant marine is being depleted thru transfers of ships to Great Britain.

PIPE LINE SEEKS U. S. AID TO GET RIGHT OF WAY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12 [Special].—The first application for federal assistance in obtaining oil pipe line right of way under recently enacted legislation was filed today with Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, oil industry coördinator. The Plantation Pipeline company filed the request in connection with a 1,200 mile, 30 million dollar line between Baton Rouge, La., and Greensboro, N. C.

The application will require issuance of a Presidential proclamation giving the company the privilege of eminent domain. Officials in the oil coördinator's office said the company has available materials for constructing the line, that contracts for actual construction have been let, but that inability to obtain certain parts of the right of way, especially in the state of Georgia, is holding up progress.

PRICE 'CEILING' METHODS HIT BY FURNITURE MAN

Debates Priorities System with T. V. Smith.

A business man yesterday likened the administration's policy of putting a ceiling on prices and letting the cost of production go up to one's holding his hand on the lid of a tea kettle and putting more heat under the water.

Alfred P. Haake.

Alfred P. Haake, managing director of the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers, used this illustration in a debate with former Congressman T. V. Smith before the Rotary club in Hotel Sherman. Smith, who teaches philosophy at the University of Chicago, upheld the government's method of placing certain products of industry on its defense priorities list.

"We are threatened with a shortage of steel. There is lots of scrap steel in the country, so the government sets a ceiling on scrap steel. But the ceiling is so low that no one finds it worthwhile to collect the scrap," Haake said. "There is such a low ceiling on scrap aluminum that the aluminum people can't handle it. So the government starts a bunch of pot and pan parties."

Prof. Smith said that most business men believe in planning and should welcome government planning.

"I expect that the American business man, and the Washington burocrat, too, will get sick and tired of priorities, but the priorities system will work," he said.

FARMERS BOOST HOG SHIPMENTS; PRICES AT YARDS DOWN SHARPLY

The largest Tuesday hog receipts in five weeks reversed the trend of the market at the stock yards yesterday. Light hogs fell mostly 10 to 15 cents, while others were weak to 10 cents lower. The average for the session showed 5 cents loss, at $10.65 a hundred pounds, while the top fell 20 cents, to $11.50, the lowest top price since July 14.

The department of agriculture reported that the number of cattle on feed for market in the 11 midwestern corn belt states Aug. 1 was 17 per cent larger than a year ago and the largest since the 1934 drought year. Illinois showed a gain of 14 per cent. No figures were given as to actual numbers.
